STAMPEDE FOR DRY LAW TEST

SEABURY SENDS WALKER CHARGE TO ROOSEVELT

Removal Action Put Up to Governor.

New York, June 8.—[Special.]—Accompanied by a suggestion that "the maintenance of decent standards among public officials" require the removal of Mayor James J. Walker from office," Samuel Seabury's analysis of the Walker testimony before the Hofstadter legislative committee was forwarded to Gov. F. D. Roosevelt by special messenger tonight.

The governor, in a recent newspaper interview, demanded the evidence concerning the mayor as soon as possible. Counsel Seabury and his aids finished the analysis of the evidence and a covering letter late today. Between them these documents accused the mayor of having offered an explanation of his finances "the same in principle as the tinbox alibi," and of having engaged in official conduct characterized by "malfeasance and nonfeasance."

Equivalent to Formal Charge.

Together with a transcript of the testimony and copies of exhibits, some of which were understood to identify the "unnamed person" to whom the mayor once paid $7,500, the letter and the analysis amounted to formal charges upon which removal proceedings could be predicated.

The two Seabury messengers bearing the papers arrived in Albany by train tonight and immediately went to the governor's mansion. Informed that Gov. Roosevelt had gone to bed, they left the documents with the butler and departed. The governor had said earlier that he would make no comment until he had studied the testimony.

Letter Summarizes Testimony.

The letter, which was in effect a summarization of the analysis of the testimony prepared by Mr. Seabury, listed fifteen specifications, bearing upon eight general points brought out in the testimony of Mayor Walker and in that of witnesses who had knowledge of the mayor's affairs.

Included in the eight items were the mayor's reputed relations with firms desiring taxicab legislation, with the Equitable bus franchise, with private persons from whom he received "beneficences," and with Russell T. Sherwood, Mr. Walker's missing financial agent. Other points charged under the general title of "conclusions" were that Mr. Walker held $10,000 in bonds from a firm which received a city contract, that he failed to explain the source of his own income and the accounts of Sherwood.

"Mayor Hindered Inquiry."

In addition there were accusations that the mayor had failed to prevent an arrangement under which his brother, Dr. William H. Walker, split fees with other physicians in city cases, and that the mayor had acted in such a way as to hinder the legislative inquiry into the city government.

In that part of his analysis which touched upon Mr. Walker's finances Mr. Seabury insisted that the evidence before the committee shows Sherwood's accounts of nearly $1,000,000 in five years, including $700,000 in cash, were sufficient for the conclusion that this money was actually the mayor's.

What procedure Gov. Roosevelt will follow remained in doubt tonight. Tammany Hall politicians, however, felt that the governor would study the Seabury data for several days, and then would be compelled to give Mayor Walker ample time to draft an answer. It was considered doubtful that the governor can act on the issue of removal before the Democratic national convention in Chicago, where Roosevelt hopes to get the presidential nomination.

Seabury Sends Letter.

Mr. Seabury's letter to Gov. Roosevelt is in part as follows:

"Dear Sir:

"I transmit herewith the stenographic transcript of the testimony taken before the joint legislative committee to investigate the affairs of the city of New York in so far as it relates to the conduct of the Hon. James J. Walker while he has held the office of mayor of the city of New York. The hearings, the record of which I transmit herewith, closed on the evening of June 1, 1932. I submit this transcript and the inclosed analysis of the evidence for your consideration and for such action as you may deem just and proper in the premises.

"This record is presented to you by me in my individual capacity as a citizen of the state of New York.

3 INSULL UNITS FACE 90 MILLION CUT IN SURPLUS

Auditors Suggest 9% Writeoff.

No Future Plan

Samuel Insull, dethroned from a gigantic utility empire, was asked yesterday to tell of his plans for the future. "I haven't any," he replied. Mr. Insull's concern now, it is explained, centers upon the recovery of Mrs. Insull, somewhat broken in health by her husband's misfortunes. Story on page 6.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Between $5 and 90 million dollars of assets in the three major utilities of Chicago and suburbs, developed by Samuel Insull, are to be "written off," according to reports in La Salle street. The utilities are the Commonwealth Edison, the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

Ninety million is said to be the total which Arthur Anderson & Co. and Arthur Young & Co., certified accountants who have been auditing for weeks, have found in the $947,300,000 of assets to "question," "doubt," or "depreciate." That sum represents approximately 9 per cent, which La Salle street looks upon as highly favorable and indicates "the thorough soundness of the properties," as one man phrased it. He added: "These properties are in good shape."

In Eastern Bankers' Hands.

The auditors' figures, suggesting a maximum writeoff of 90 million dollars, are reported to be in the hands of eastern bankers for this inspection and review. This sum is not looked upon as a loss. It represents the auditors' view of present values, rather than a sum which may be realized later. Sundry millions, it is said, may be obtained later from the assets which it is now proposed to "write off."

However, the accountants propose to write off, as a maximum amount, all but $7,200,000 of the combined surplus of the three corporations. The write-off of each company is set opposite the surplus of each on Dec. 31 last in the following table:

Company—	"Write-off."	Surplus Jan. 1.
Edison	$44,503,600	$49,903,398
Gas	28,400,000	29,169,787
No. Illinois	17,383,000	18,483,474
Totals	$90,286,000	$97,547,659

May Be Cut Five Millions.

It is admitted that the 90 million dollars may be reduced, but La Salle street informants do not expect the eastern bankers will permit the write-off to be lower than 85 million dollars. If this added five million dollars is left in the assets, the gas company and the Public Service company, it is expected, will gain the major portion of this surplus account.

It is reported that local bankers favor a cut of only 85 million dollars. If it is finally decided that the 90 million dollars must be eliminated, the revised assets of the companies, in comparison with the assets of Dec. 31 last, will be as follows:

	Revised assets, Dec. 31 assets.
Edison	$425,576,600	$470,079,998
Gas	205,484,000	233,884,184
No. Illinois	225,661,000	243,344,363
Totals	$857,021,000	$947,307,639

"Write-offs" on Subsidiaries.

On the specific assets criticized, comparatively little information has leaked out, but it is reported that the eastern bankers are still asking questions about the subsidiaries of the three corporations. It is said that they were particularly inquisitive about these last February and March.

The Edison company has invested $90,748,700 in its subsidiaries, the Gas company $46,789,556, and the Northern Illinois Public Service $32,598,700—a total of $170,136,956, according to the last published reports. This $170,000,000 is included in the $947,307,000 assets of the three companies. When questions began to be asked, Samuel Insull issued a statement saying that the investments in the subsidiaries were made as permanent investments with a distinct value to the parent company.

Subsidiaries of Edison.

The Edison company had $63,604,000 invested in utility companies with which the Edison company has electricity supply relations. These were the Illinois Northern Utilities company, the Western United corporation, the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, Midland United company, Chicago District Electric Generating corporation, and the Super-Power Company of Illinois.

There was also $9,559,657 invested

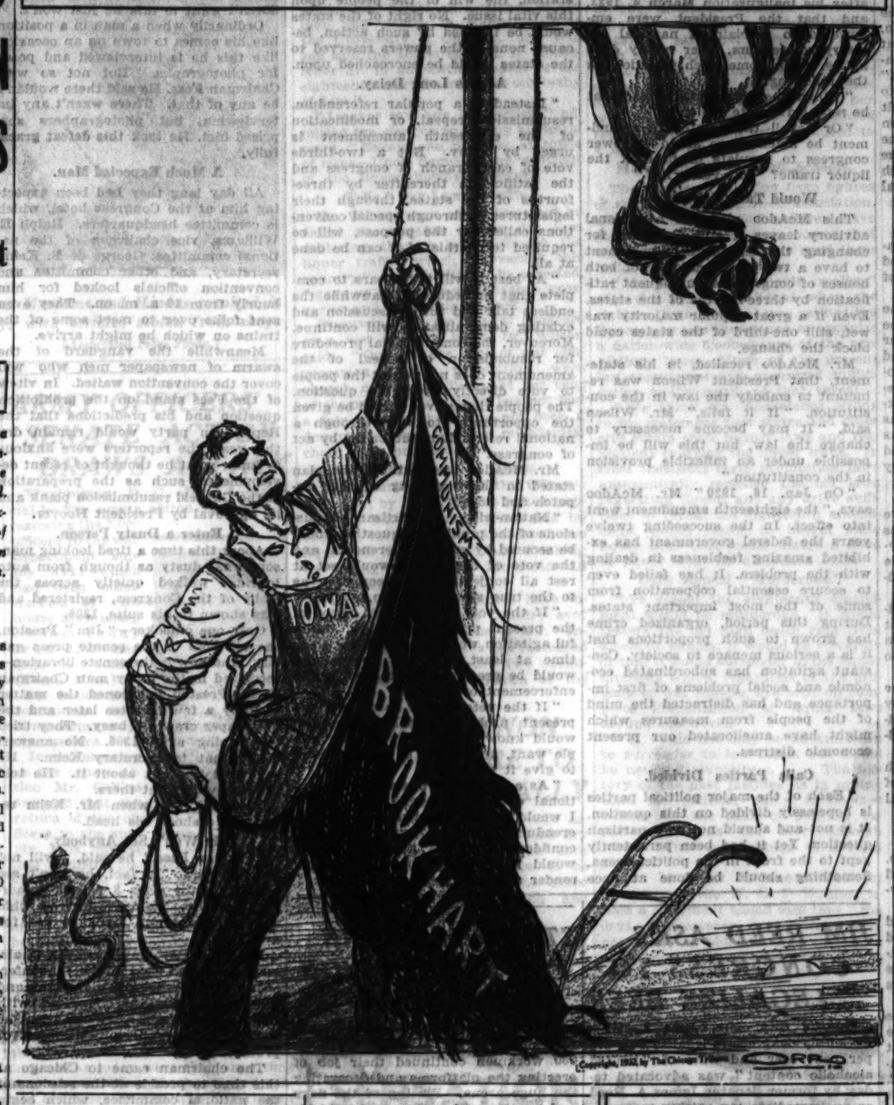
A RED, WHITE AND BLUE UPRISING



INFLATION ASKED TO END WOES OF JAPAN'S FARMERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, June 8.—Members of the Seiyukai party today decided to introduce a resolution in the diet urging devaluation of the yen for the purpose of aiding farmers. They will also propose the granting of 100,000,000 yen in loans at 3 per cent interest to farmers, a national control of fertilizer and distribution of the government's rice holdings among farmers. A section of the Seiyukai party favors devaluation of the yen to one-half or even one-fifth of its par value, but this is strenuously opposed by Finance Minister Korekiyo Takahashi and Railway Minister Chuzo Mitsuchi.

(The yen, ordinarily equal to 50 cents at par, today is quoted at 32.60 cents in American exchange.)

The agriculture and forestry ministries have proposed the loaning of 500,000,000 yen from postal savings to the farmers. Baron Hachiroemon Mitsui, head of the biggest financial and industrial organization in Japan, has contributed 3,000,000 yen to the relief of unemployment.

Premier Makoto Saito was called by Emperor Hirohito yesterday to explain the situation. After his meeting with the ruler the premier admitted that Japan is confronted by the worst economic situation in its history.

ROBBER IS SHOT BY SHOP OWNER AND CAPTURED

Two young men, with right hands in their pockets in pretense of being armed, held up David Trieber and his father, Benjamin Trieber, in the son's radio shop at 1821 Belmont avenue last night.

Compelling the father to get his spectacles and open the safe, they were fleeing with a wallet containing an undetermined sum of money and some of the Trieber family jewelry when the son pulled his pistol from a drawer.

His first shot sent one of the robbers scurrying across the street, unharmed, but the second grazed the temple of the other robber, stunning him, in the doorway. Father and son were pummeling the prisoner when Policeman William Raab arrived. At the Sheffield station he identified himself as Finney Pontello, 21 years old, 3311 Herndon street. Police took from him a watch the elder Trieber had given his wife forty years ago.

Find "Talkative" Fugitive Working as a Barker

When Chicago police sent out circulars last July asking the arrest of Richard G. Armstrong, a former clerk charged with embezzling $1,000 from the Illinois Bell Telephone company, he was described as "very talkative." W. H. McClain, chief of the Oregon state police, telegraphed the detective bureau last night that he had Armstrong under arrest. He found him working as a barker in a carnival.

Irish Senate Wrecks Bill to Abolish Oath

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, June 8.—The free state senate today eviscerated the bill to abolish the oath of allegiance to the British king to such an extent that President Eamon de Valera will not recognize it when it goes back to the Dail Eireann. Two sections of the bill were bodily removed and a new one was inserted which prevents the emasculated measure from operating until Great Britain and the free state agree that nothing in it impairs the efficiency of the Anglo-Irish treaty of 1921.

One of the sections removed was that which would repeal the provision of the free state constitution act stipulating that anything in the constitution repugnant to the Anglo-Irish treaty shall be null and void. The other section was the one which would amend article 50 of the constitution by deleting from it reference to the Anglo-Irish treaty.

In all divisions today the opposition party had a majority varying from eight to eleven. The government before the votes were taken was given the option of adjourning discussion of the bill until conversations now under way regarding the imperial conference to be held at Ottawa next month have been concluded.

De Valera Demands Action.

De Valera declared that these conversations have no concern with the oath bill, which he demanded be acted upon immediately. The senate then proceeded with the butchering process.

Speeches of the opposition members were reserved and brief, but Senator Connolly, in behalf of the government, was provocative and, as Senator O'Hanlon said, abusive. The members of De Valera's party were angry, but they knew what was coming because the opposition plans had been previously declared.

Tomorrow night De Valera and Vice President Sean T. O'Kelly, with Secretaries Walsh and Moynihan will leave for London to meet British negotiators. The meeting apparently will be short, for De Valera hopes to return Friday night.

Still a Wide Breach.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 8.—It was generally accepted in London today that there still is a wide breach between the English and Irish viewpoints on President Eamon de Valera's bill to abolish the oath of allegiance to the king. An empire tribunal, such as was approved at the last imperial conference, was suggested as one way out of both the oath controversy and that involving the refusal of the Free State to pay land annuities.

The Free State is due soon to pay the British government 7½ million dollars at par, both governments acting as collecting agencies for installments on land bought by Irish farmers from former English landlords.

Cabinet Gets Report.

Dominions Secretary J. H. Thomas and Secretary of War Viscount Hailsham, who returned from Dublin today, reported the results of their conversation with President De Valera to a cabinet meeting. De Valera, they said, is coming to London to resume the discussions Friday.

De Valera's suggestion that Ulster be brought into the Free State immediately as a means of obtaining lasting peace was ridiculed by Ulster officials.

"It would be altogether out of the question," Lord Craigavon, prime minister of Ulster, declared. "It is unnecessary to say anything more than that. It could not be discussed at all."

DRUNKEN DRIVING CHARGED TO WIFE OF CONGRESSMAN

Washington, D. C., June 8.—(A.P.)—Mrs. Bertha Huddleston, wife of Representative Huddleston of Alatama, was released tonight under $500 bail after her arrest earlier on charges of driving while intoxicated.

The arrest followed an accident in a residential section in which the car police said Mrs. Huddleston was driving with Mark M. Penn of Washington, crashed into a parked automobile owned by Mrs. J. K. Moore of Kenilworth, Md.

Penn was held on a charge of intoxication.

State Gets U. S. Loan

Washington, D. C., June 8.—[Special.]—The state of South Carolina has obtained a loan of $3,500,000, indirectly, from the federal Reconstruction Finance corporation to meet school pay rolls and other obligations. The Bank of South Carolina took the state's paper as security and gave its own paper to the government. The law prohibits the corporation from making loans direct to state or local governments.

Mayor Cermak yesterday made an informal request to the Federal Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan of $40,000,000 or more in federal funds to meet the back pay of city and school employés and other urgent obligations of Chicago governments.

The request was made at a conference with Howard King Preston, head of the Chicago office of the finance corporation organized to extend credit to the country's banks and industries. Mayor Cermak was accompanied by Robert F. Carr, school trustee.

Owes 20 Millions in Salaries.

Mr. Carr told Mr. Preston that the school board needs between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000 to meet its salary obligations alone.

Mayor Cermak did not request a loan of a definite sum, but said that Chicago governments could use as much as 150 million dollars to clear up their obligations pending the collection of taxes, now two years behind schedule. The conference was concerned principally with the procedure necessary to obtain such a loan.

In that connection the mayor received a telegram during the day from Senator James Hamilton Lewis stating that he had introduced a bill in the senate authorizing the Reconstruction Finance corporation to make loans directly to municipalities.

Loan Hinges on New Bill.

The corporation lacks that power now. However, it is understood that the directors of the federal credit body have had the matter under discussion for some time.

In the event of a loan being granted the city by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the city would be able to post its tax warrants, a first lien on tax collections, as collateral.

"Our paper is as good as gold," Mayor Cermak said when he emerged from the conference. "With the receipt of a federal loan we could pay employés and contractors. They in turn could pay their taxes, with the result that a large part of the money would flow directly back into the public treasury, and from there back to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for the redemption of the tax warrants and the retirement of the loan."

Banks Unable to Help Chicago.

Mayor Cermak pointed out that Chicago banks probably could not assist the city in negotiations for an indirect loan, such as was granted to the state of South Carolina for payment of teachers' salaries, because of the large amounts of tax anticipation warrants the local banks already are holding.

For the city and school board to get any federal funds it would be necessary for the banks to buy additional tax warrants and post them with the corporation. Even though the corporation would be putting up the money, the loans would be a direct liability of the banks, and bankers were inclined to be chary yesterday of incurring such large obligations.

File Mandamus Petition.

Thurlow G. Essington, Ald. Wiley W. Mills, and other attorneys for the teachers' unions in Chicago filed with the Supreme court yesterday a petition for a writ of mandamus to compel the board of education to meet back salaries for which it has no cash with "teachers' orders."

The board took a definite stand against the "teachers' orders" as a result of a ruling by bond attorneys that they would impair the security of board of education tax warrants.

A bill passed at the last of the legislature provided that the orders might be accepted in payment of taxes. They have been in use in downstate school districts for many years and formerly were cashed with merchants by teachers with little or no discount.

The present action, a friendly one, is designed to test the legality of the board's refusal to issue teachers' orders. A victory for the board will improve the salability of its tax warrants, it is anticipated.

The body was found in a clump of trees near the Delta Psi fraternity house. Death was caused by a head wound from the bullet of a .22 rifle.

Wet Predictions

Clamor for repeal or resubmission of the dry law spread over the whole country yesterday.

President Hoover said nothing, but it is said he is willing to run for re-election on a plank committing the party to resubmission of the 18th amendment. He is reported as opposed to unqualified repeal.

Franklin Roosevelt, leading Democratic candidate, came out against the 18th amendment, urging its elimination by means of a new constitutional provision. Control, he said, should be restored to the several states.

William G. McAdoo, known as a militant dry, gave out a statement favoring a national advisory vote and saying the present law was a failure.

John R. Mott, leader of the Y. M. C. A., declared for resubmission of the dry question to the people, keeping it out of politics.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 8.—[Special.]—With the anti-prohibition tide rising higher and higher the administration forces moved on Chicago today carrying President Hoover's approval of a resubmission plank for the Republican national platform.

Both Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, the President's chief political adviser, and James R. Garfield of Ohio, chairman designate of the resolutions committee, conferred with Mr. Hoover before leaving for Chicago.

To them the President confided his willingness to stand for reelection on a platform containing a plank along the lines of the Moses draft accepted by the 15 Republican leaders last Sunday, which commits the party to resubmission of the prohibition question to enable the people to decide whether the 18th amendment shall be retained, modified or repealed.

Repeal Demand Grows Stronger.

Although sentiment favoring outright repeal is growing by leaps and bounds and is certain to be strongly manifested in the convention the President made it clear that he is opposed to unqualified repeal. What he has agreed to is a middle of the road proposal about equidistant from the position of the drys favoring unqualified retention of the amendment on the one hand and the wets favoring unqualified repeal on the other.

The Moses draft is designed to hold the wets in line without alienating the drys. The hopeful opinion among Republican leaders here is that this will be the character and probably the phraseology of the plank that will emerge from the resolutions committee, despite the attack that will be made upon it.

Expect Two Minority Reports.

Two minority reports are expected to go to the floor of the convention. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler presumably will submit the minority report of the wets proposing a definite declaration for repeal. This may bring a fight on the floor which will go beyond the control of the administration. With Senator William E. Borah of Idaho declining to attend the convention the drys have no outstanding champion of their minority report.

Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.] who resents the characterization of his plank as a straddle explained today its modus operandi. It commits the party to a resubmission of the prohibition question, in a form to be determined by the congress elected next November. Congress will determine whether to submit an amendment repealing prohibition or one merely modifying the 18th amendment. Then the people will decide whether to accept the change proposed or to retain the 18th amendment.

"The plank does not commit congress to any formula of resubmission," said Senator Moses. "If the sentiment in congress should be for repeal a repealer would be submitted. If the sentiment should be for modification an amendment qualifying the 18th amendment would be submitted."

It was Senator Moses who once called the 18th amendment a "jackass law."

While Postmaster General Brown will be the official spokesman of the President at Chicago there will be three other members of the cabinet in the convention. They are Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson of New York, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri, and Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley of Oklahoma. Mr. Brown is a pioneer in the movement for resubmission of prohibition and was largely responsible for winning the President's support of this course, but the other three cabinet members are also dissenters in various degrees from prohibition orthodoxy.

The multiplying signs of reaction against the noble experiment were the subject of much comment here today. The defeat of Representative Ruth Bryan Owen [Dem., Fla.], who stood for a referendum on prohibition by an opponent who advocated outright repeal, was construed as further evidence of the crumbling of the support of prohibition, even in its principal stronghold, the solid south.

Louisiana to Vote on Repeal.

In Louisiana the legislature authorized a referendum for repealing the state dry law in the primary Sept. 8.

Meanwhile in New Jersey the assembly, by a vote of 42 to 1, was taking similar action, and the senate was expected to do likewise and send the bill to Gov. Moore before the evening was over.

From Indiana, which for years was dominated by the prohibition bigots of the Ku Klux Klan and the Anti-Saloon league, came the news that the Republican state convention would adopt the Moses draft plank for resubmission, or perhaps even a repeal plank.

From Kansas came the word that all but three members of the Republican delegation from that state will support the resubmission plank approved by the President. Kansas was one of the two out of the 48 states that voted dry in the Literary Digest poll. The other state was North Carolina, in which Senator Cameron Morrison, a rabid dry, has just been worsted by an opponent in the Democratic primary who advocated repeal.

Fear Revolt in Kansas.

Incidentally, the news from Kansas is of an anti-Hoover wave in that region. A call has gone out for Hoover men to man the ramparts. The first to respond is former Senator Henry Allen, who has resigned as assistant to the president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and is going home to run for senator if there appears to be danger of an anti-Hoover candidate being nominated.

The extent of the emergency may be gauged by the views of Republican leaders that the nomination of an anti-Hoover candidate for senator in the state of Mr. Hoover's running mate, Vice President Curtis woud be too awful to contemplate.

Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] indorsed the resubmission plank and disclosed that he is pressing for the adoption of a plank condemnatory by inference of various pending inflation schemes.

It would consist of but one sentence: "We stand for the integrity of our currency and the maintenance of the gold standard."

The Pennsylvania senator said he favors a platform of not more than 500 words "well written and easy to understand." Platforms generally are too "languageous," he said.

Fresh Fuel for Democrats.

Fresh fuel was added today to the row in the Democratic party over the choice of a permanent chairman of the Chicago convention. Jouett Shouse had accused Gov. Roosevelt of breach of faith in putting up Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana for permanent chairman after agreeing to the selection of Mr. Shouse. Robert Jackson of New Hampshire denied yesterday that he transmitted to Mr. Shouse Gov. Roosevelt's agreement to the choice of Shouse.

"This document, written in Mr. Jackson's handwriting," said Mr. Shouse today, "is as follows:

"'Resolved, That the committee on arrangements commends to the permanent committee on organization of the Democratic national convention for consideration as permanent chairman of the convention the name of Honorable Jouett Shouse of Kansas.'

Says Roosevelt Dictated It.

"This resolution was submitted to me and approved by me before its presentation to the committee. According to Mr. Jackson's statement at the time and according to Gov. Byrd and others who were present in the room in Chicago when the telephone conversation took place with Gov. Roosevelt, it was dictated by Gov. Roosevelt, was taken down verbatim by Mr. Jackson, and was re-read to the governor when completed.

"It may be there are authors or sponsors of resolutions who do not expect to be bound by the resolutions which they themselves dictate or submit. I know Mr. Jackson is not one of these.

"This is the record. The public may judge whether or not Gov. Roosevelt was committed to the plan. It was his resolution, proposed through his friends for adoption by the committee on arrangements."

GOV. ROOSEVELT ISSUES CALL FOR REPEAL "ACTION"

Too Much Delay and Debate, He Charges.

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

New York, June 8.—(AP)—In a vigorous call for "action" on the prohibition question, Gov. Roosevelt tonight said there had been too much delay and debate, and expressed confidence the Democratic platform would "clearly indicate" a method of repealing the 18th amendment.

The governor, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, also declared he was confident that "in the next congress practical machinery will be put into actual effect."

In answer to questions submitted to him at Albany by telephone, Roosevelt said that his stand on prohibition had not changed since 1930, when he came out for "elimination" of the "force and effect of the eighteenth amendment" by a new constitutional amendment.

Points to 1930 Letter.

He pointed out the following paragraphs in a letter he wrote to United States Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York at that time:

"The crux of the matter is that the 18th amendment has not furthered the cause of a greater temperance in our population, but on the other hand [quoting from language used in a resolution adopted by the American Legion] it has 'fostered excessive drinking of strong intoxicants' and has 'led to corruption and hypocrisy,' has brought about 'disregard for law and order,' and has 'flooded the country with untaxed and illicit liquor.'

"I personally share this opinion.

"Literally dozens of schemes have been proposed by well meaning citizens seeking means and methods of improving the existing situation while at the same time leaving the 18th amendment in full force and effect.

"The language of the 18th amendment is so direct and so clear that it seems to me the time has come when these people should no longer try to beat about the bush.

"It is not merely a matter of the Volstead act or the Jones act or any other piece of mere legislation, federal or state, under the 18th amendment—it is the amendment itself.

"The force and effect of the 18th amendment can be eliminated, of course, only by a new constitutional provision. That is clear.

Reiterates His Stand.

"This, as I stated a few weeks ago, still represents my opinion and stand on the prohibition question," the governor said.

"In regard to the particular method by which this idea should be carried out, there already have been presented innumerable plans and suggestions more or less definite in regard to this matter.

"I am confident, first, that the method will be clearly indicated in the Democratic platform, and also that in the next congress practical machinery will be put into actual effect.

"The most important thing is that there must be action on this matter.

"We have delayed and debated it too long."

In reply to questions about what the new amendment should provide, the governor again pointed to the Wagner letter and quoted the following paragraphs:

"The fundamental of a new amendment must be the restoration of real control over intoxicants to the several states.

"The sale of intoxicants through state agencies should be made lawful in any state of the Union where the people of that state desire it, and, conversely, the people of any state should have the right to prohibit the sale of intoxicants, if they so wish, within its own borders.

"Therefore, the control of any sale of any intoxicants should be wholly in the hands of the states or of state agencies.

Smith for State Control.

"Finally, there should be definite recognition of the extension of home rule to the lower subdivisions of government; in other words, a recognition of the right of cities, villages, or towns by popular vote to prohibit the sale of intoxicants within their own borders, even though intoxicants may be sold in other parts of the state through state agencies.

"So widespread in this state is the resentment against the results of the eighteenth amendment that the time has come to stop talking and to seek action."

While Gov. Roosevelt was making this statement, it was learned from former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's associates that he is still standing for the so-called "Raskob plan," which provides for repeal and a return to state control.

It has been indicated previously that Smith will make a fight for such a plank in the Democratic platform.

McAdoo, Arch Dry Democrat, Is for Dry Law Referendum

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., June 8.—[Special.]—William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, son-in-law of former President Woodrow Wilson, and for fourteen years a leader among the militant drys in America, came out today for resubmission of national prohibition to the electorate.

McAdoo's statement, handed out without comment, commits his influence to the movement of those who, whether wet or dry, desire to obtain a public expression on the eighteenth amendment.

"The people themselves," he said, "should be given the opportunity to vote on the question, through a national referendum authorized by congress."

His plan, as announced, is:

"Suppose that a special session were called by the new President shortly after his inauguration March 4, 1933, and that the President were empowered to proclaim a national advisory referendum, after ninety days notice, upon some such question as the following:

"'Shall the eighteenth amendment be repealed? Vote yes or no.'

"Or 'shall the eighteenth amendment be amended so as to empower congress to regulate or prohibit the liquor traffic? Vote yes or no.'"

Would Take Two-Thirds.

This McAdoo plan for a national advisory leaves it still necessary for changing the eighteenth amendment to have a two-thirds majority of both houses of congress. A subsequent ratification by three-fourths of the states. Even if a great popular majority was wet, still one-third of the states could block the change.

Mr. McAdoo recalled, in his statement, that President Wilson was reluctant to embody the law in the constitution. "If it fails," Mr. Wilson said, "it may become necessary to change the law, but this will be impossible under an inflexible provision in the constitution."

"On Jan. 16, 1920" Mr. McAdoo says, "the eighteenth amendment went into effect. In the succeeding twelve years the federal government has exhibited amazing feebleness in dealing with the problem. It has failed even to secure essential coöperation from some of the most important states. During this period, organized crime has grown to such proportions that it is a serious menace to society. Constant agitation has subordinated economic and social problems of first importance and has distracted the mind of the people from measures which might have ameliorated our present economic distress.

Calls Parties Divided.

"Each of the major political parties is hopelessly divided on this question. It is not and should not be a partisan question. Yet it had been persistently kept to the front in the politicalarena. Something should be done at once to divorce this issue from party politics.

"Is there any way by which a direct vote of the people can be had on the question as to whether the eighteenth amendment should be repealed or as to whether it should be amended to grant congress the power to regulate or to prohibit the liquor traffic?

"There is a way, and that is by a national referendum of an advisory character. Congress has, in my opinion, the power to offer such a referendum. By article 1, section 8 of the United States constitution specific power is conferred upon the congress 'to provide for the general welfare of the United States.'

"Clearly the 'general welfare of the United States' would be promoted if congress would provide the means for ascertaining, as a guide to deliberation, the will of the people upon this vital issue. No right of the states would be invaded by such action, because none of the powers reserved to the states would be encroached upon.

Admits Long Delay.

"Instead of a popular referendum, resubmission, repeal, or modification of the eighteenth amendment is urged by many. But a two-thirds vote of each branch of congress and the ratification thereafter by three-fourths of the states, through their legislatures or through special conventions called for the purpose, will be required to do this, if it can be done at all.

"At best it will take years to complete that procedure. Meanwhile the endless talk and futile discussion and existing demoralization will continue. Moreover, the constitutional procedure for resubmission or repeal of the amendment does not permit the people to vote directly upon the question. The people themselves should be given the opportunity to vote through a national referendum authorized by act of congress."

Mr. McAdoo then outlined the plan stated in the beginning of this dispatch and added:

"Nation-wide, nonpartisan discussions of the prohibition question would be secured by such a referendum, and the vote of the people would set at rest all conjecture or speculation as to the true state of public opinion.

"If the vote should be in favor of the present prohibition policy, harmful agitation would be ended, for some time at least, and the government would be greatly strengthened in the enforcement of the law.

"If the vote should be against the present prohibition policy, congress would know definitely what the people want, and would be in a position to give it to them.

"As a strong advocate of every rational effort to promote temperance, I would accept a challenge for a referendum on this subject, with supreme confidence that the American people would with intelligence and wisdom render a sound judgment."

JIM REED ASKS CONGRESS TO LEGALIZE BEER

Kansas City, Mo., June 8.—(AP)—Action by congress to legalize 3 or 3½ per cent beer and wine of "limited alcoholic content" was advocated today by former Senator James A. Reed as an immediate tax raising measure.

He declared beer and wine could be brought back by congress "acting fairly within the limits of the constitution."

Missouri's "favorite son" candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination estimated that the federal government could thus raise from half to three-quarters of a billion dollars by an excise tax and that state and municipal revenues could be increased correspondingly.

"The Supreme court has decided that congress may define as intoxicating that which is not intoxicating in fact," he said.

"That being the decision, it follows that congress could declare that to be non-intoxicating which is intoxicating in fact.

"However, acting fairly within the limits of the constitution, congress could permit the use of a sufficient amount of alcohol in beers and wines, so as to make them palatable and healthful and, at the same time, not intoxicating in the proper sense of the term."

STADIUM'S GARB FOR CONVENTION IS NEARLY DONE

The Chicago Stadium took on more of its convention garb yesterday as 300 workmen continued their job of erecting the platforms and decorating the huge arena. Placing of the flags and bunting and papier maché shields and portraits was more than three-fourths completed and by tomorrow night everything but the chairs will be ready, according to M. J. Doherty, superintendent of the Stadium.

The speaker's platform was boxed in yesterday and ten small offices formed within for the sergeant at arms, radio men and other workers at the convention. The press stands, immediately in front of the speaker's platform, were practically completed, with places for 750 newspaper men.

The demand for tickets continued brisk at the headquarters of the Chicago Citizens' committee, 208 South La Salle street. E. N. Hurley, chairman, announced that more than half of the mezzanine and first balcony seats had been disposed of and about one-fourth of the second balcony seats. Tickets available to the public may all be gone by tomorrow night, he said.

FESS ARRIVES; NOBODY KNOWS HOW DRY HE IS

He Comes in Silence and Stays That Way.

BY PARKE BROWN.

United States Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, who, as chairman of the national committee, will handle the gavel that will call the Republican national convention to order next Tuesday, proved yesterday that when he doesn't want to talk he just won't.

Ordinarily when a man in a position like his comes to town on an occasion like this he is interviewed and posed for photographs. But not so with Chairman Fess. He said there wouldn't be any of that. There wasn't any interviewing, but photographers surprised him. He took this defeat gracefully.

A Much Expected Man.

All day long they had been expecting him at the Congress hotel, which is committee headquarters. Ralph E. Williams, vice chairman of the national committee; George de B. Keim, secretary, and other committee and convention officials looked for him hourly from 10 a. m. on. They even sent folks over to meet some of the trains on which he might arrive.

Meanwhile the vanguard of the swarm of newspaper men who will cover the convention waited. In view of the Fess stand on the prohibition question and his predictions that the Republican party would remain dry this year, the reporters were anxious to know what he thought of recent developments, such as the preparation of the Garfield resubmission plank and its approval by President Hoover.

Enter a Dusty Person.

About this time a tired looking man, somewhat dusty as though from auto touring, walked quietly across the lobby of the Congress, registered and was shown to his suite, 1306.

Only one onlooker—"Jim" Preston, the old boss of the senate press gallery, who now is the senate librarian—recognized in the dusty man Chairman Fess. Preston mentioned the matter casually a few minutes later and the newspaper crew got busy. They tried telephoning suite 1306. No answer. They went to Secretary Keim. He said he'd find out about it. He told them to wait right there.

They did, but when Mr. Keim returned he shook his head.

"He Won't See Anybody."

"Senator Fess," he said, "will not see reporters. In fact, he won't see anybody until after 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. He drove in from Ohio and he's tired and going to bed for a while."

Late in the evening, however, Chairman Fess was said to be in conference with Vice Chairman Williams and others on questions connected with the convention arrangements. But he wasn't interviewed on the subject of prohibition.

The chairman came to Chicago at this time to preside at the sessions of the national committee, which begin today following a meeting of its executive committee. The principal business of the national body is to hold advance hearings on delegate contests, which this year are of an unusually inconsequential nature.

They are not expected to change a vote in the convention whatever their outcome. The rival delegations in each instance are both for Hoover. Contests have been brought from Mississippi, South Carolina, Georgia, Louisiana, Tennessee, and Virginia.

Despite the absence of Fess interviews on the wet and dry question, that subject continued to dominate the lobby conversation of the early arrivals and deep interest was shown in the plans of the Crusaders and other anti-prohibition organizations for demonstrations on Sunday and Monday in favor of repeal.

The Crusaders announced that Mayor Cermak, accompanied by members of his cabinet and of the city council, will head their parade which will form on Monday night north of the Michigan avenue bridge at 6 o'clock and move south to the Coliseum for the meeting arranged by the Republican Citizens' Committee Against National Prohibition.

The speakers at the meeting will include Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, the man to whom John D. Rockefeller Jr. wrote of his decision to favor repeal; Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor; James W. Wadsworth, former New York senator, and Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, president of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform.

Air Show a Feature.

On Sunday afternoon there will be a parade of yachts and an aerial show, both of which will have anti-prohibition features such as the casting of a dummy "Old Man Prohibition" from one of the planes.

The Republican delegation from Illinois will have its headquarters at the Stevens. The headquarters will be open on Monday for the distribution of credentials and Monday evening there will be a meeting for the organization of the delegation, including the election of a national committeeman.

JAILED FOR ROBBING CHILD.

Joseph Mickus, 18 years old, 3931 Commercial avenue, was sentenced to six months in the Bridewell and fined $25 yesterday by Judge John J. Lupe for snatching a $10 bill from the hands of Eugene Pufahl, 7 years old, 3708 Houston avenue.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN PREPARE TO GREET CONVENTION GUESTS

While feminine members of the Republican national committee sped toward Chicago yesterday for the preconvention session today the Woman's National Republican club met in the Congress hotel and made last minute plans for the entertainment of woman delegates to the convention.

A luncheon and conference of Illinois Republican women on Monday will open the week's program, Mrs. Jacob Baur, national committeewoman and president of the Woman's National Republican club, announced. This will be held in the ballroom of the Congress hotel. Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, director of women's activities of the national committee, and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms will speak.

A dinner on Tuesday at the Stevens hotel, a high light of the entertainment program, will be for Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley and Mrs. Hurley. It will be given by the Woman's National Republican club. A reception will follow, with women now living in Illinois acting as hostesses to the delegates from their native states.

On Tuesday also will be the luncheon at the Hamilton club to which all Republicans are invited. Senators Otis F. Glenn of Illinois, James E. Watson of Indiana, and Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan will speak.

Other events are planned for succeeding days.

The Congress hotel became a preconvention headquarters yesterday as Republican national committee officers installed themselves there, national committeemen and state delegations reported their arrival and decorators unfurled the flags, bunting, and welcome banners.

The lobby and the mezzanine floor buzzed with convention talk and "Please do not disturb" signs were hung on doors as the party leaders went into conferences.

Boosters began to arrive with their state delegates, prancing in screaming colors. One group in blue and white uniforms wore broad ribbons proclaiming "Dallas" across their breasts, and another, composed of young men and young women in scarlet smocks, were unmistakably from Joplin, Mo.

Executive Offices Busy.

The national committee offices on the second floor of the hotel were busy throughout the day. At work there were Executive Director Robert H. Lucas, Secretary George de B. Keim, Treasurer Joseph R. Nutt, and Sergeant at Arms Everett Sanders. Lafayette Gleason, secretary of the convention, joined the other leaders in the headquarters, and Ralph E. Williams, vice chairman of the committee, who has been here working on arrangements for three weeks, was scurrying around.

Two separate groups of the Mississippi delegation, one white and the other colored, arrived during the afternoon with two separate views on the prohibition question. The Negro delegates—S. D. Redmond, chairman of the state executive committee, C. F. Butler, and J. B. Woods—proclaimed themselves as wet.

"Something has got to be done about prohibition. The people are against it," said Redmond.

Other Group to Vote Dry.

"We are all instructed to vote dry and that's all we can say about prohibition," said Charles H. Blewett, who headed the other Mississippi group. With him came Ernest M. Hawkins, James C. Tyler, Charles U. Gordon, former postmaster of Chicago, and F. M. O'Shea.

A Georgia group of delegates arrived looking for cornbread, according to their leader, J. T. Rose. They also expressed indignation over a menu on the train coming up, which listed hog jowls but no black eyed peas.

Mr. Rose said they had never heard of prohibition and when asked about the sentiment down in Georgia he replied:

"We're all raising cotton."

Wet and Dry Talk Varied.

The talk on the wet and dry question and the battle it is expected to precipitate in the convention was as varied as the sectional views of the delegates and committeemen. There was widespread agreement, however, in the belief that the resubmission plank drafted by party leaders in Washington will not go into the platform without an argument.

The ardent wets, encouraged by the repeal pleas of John D. Rockefeller Jr. and Nicholas Murray Butler, it was said, will not consent to giving the state conventions a chance to vote on modification, one of the three propositions in the resubmission plank. One committeeman who has figured in many conventions characterized the tentative wet plank as "baloney," but he wouldn't be quoted.

"The wet and dry question will be rushed out in the convention and any conjectures on the outcome are simply conjectures," he said.

Demands End of "Bunk."

C. C. Hamlin, national committeeman from Colorado, said he and many others would demand this year that the party "cut out the bunk about 'we believe in the enforcement of all laws.'"

As to the wet and dry question he declared the delegates would demand some voice in the party stand and would refuse to accept any cut and dried plank.

"There'll be a fight," he said, "but in the end I believe they'll go on record for out and out repeal or else modification, with instructions to congress on what sort of modification the states want. The wet sentiment is getting stronger every day."

Former Senator Patrick J. Sullivan, national committeeman from Wyoming, adjusted his white sombrero as he sounded his dripping wet views.

"I don't see that it makes any difference," he said, "whether the modification question is submitted to the states or not, so long as modification would include 4 per cent beer and the national drink, which is not beer."

Hoover's Chief Scout Here.

Ray Benjamin of California, who is reputed to be chief scout and sounder out for President Hoover, was in the center of many lobby discussions, although he is here only in the capacity of an alternate. The California delegation will not arrive until Monday, he said. Mr. Benjamin, tall and affable, a veteran of conventions, will talk about anything, but not for publication.

Another arrival who created a stir at the Congress was former Senator Joseph I. France of Maryland, the only candidate who has campaigned against Hoover. He claims nearly 400 delegates as a result of preferential primaries, but only Oregon has instructed for him.

PASS ECONOMY BILL, 126 INSTEAD OF 238 MILLIONS

"Failure!" Robinson and Other Leaders Say.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 8.—[Special.]—The senate late today passed an economy bill which amendments had cut from a measure designed to save 238 millions to a measure expected to save only 126 millions.

It passed the measure with the senate walls still echoing to the declaration of Senator Joe T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], Democratic leader, that:

"The so-called economy program has broken down. Our work has resulted in a disgusting failure, in view of all the talk that has gone on about cutting the cost of government. We have done little, and it is also apparent that we don't know what we have done. Our accomplishments will be disappointing to those who have waited anxiously for a reduction in government expenditures."

And added to the words of Senator Robinson were those of other Democratic senators who charged President Hoover with the responsibility for having "wrecked the economy program."

Furloughs and Not Wage Cuts.

It was wrecked, Senators James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.] and Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], members of the special economy committee, declared, when today's vote was taken reversing the senate's previous action and substituting the enforced furlough plan for federal employés in place of the plan for 10 per cent pay cuts adopted last week.

Instead of saving 117 millions, as the 10 per cent pay cut plan was intended to do, the furlough plan, it is estimated, will save only some 80 millions and is also expected to knock out the 22 millions which the limiting of leave to fifteen days would have saved. The furlough plan was embodied in an amendment sponsored by Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.].

It was President Hoover, Senators Byrnes and McKellar charged, who brought about the adoption of the furlough plan which he first proposed, but which the senate in a vote yesterday had once rejected. After approving the recommendations of the economy committee for the pay cut plan and after resigning himself to the rejection of his furlough plan, the senators declared, the President had personally worked for the adoption of the furlough plan.

Byrnes Blames Hoover.

"My information is that the President requested a senator to offer the furlough program," said Senator Byrnes. "This senator and another refused. Then the furlough plan was given to Senator Moses, and he agreed to offer it. So we can thank the President for reducing the economy by 40 millions."

During its consideration of the economy bill, said Senator Byrnes, the house rejected the furlough plan, two to one, and would probably reject it again.

Senator Robinson moved to recommit the bill but his motion drew only 33 affirmative votes against 43 opposed. Only one of the 33 votes was that of a Republican, Senator Robert B. Howell [radical Rep., Neb.].

These Economies Lost.

As the bill was adopted, therefore, the original 238 millions which it was intended to save were cut as follows:

Through adoption of the furlough plan, 41 millions, since the original bill called for 121 millions to be saved by pay cuts.

And through the expected elimination of leave limitations, 22 millions—or a total of 112 millions, leaving only 126 millions in the bill.

The economy bill was attached as a part of the legislative appropriation bill. The same vote passed both. The legislative bill calls for appropriations of $18,508,825, a reduction of $1,706,044 under the bill as passed by the house, and of $9,618,561 under last year's appropriations.

Paid for Five Days.

The adoption of the Moses amendment today means that per diem federal employés will be paid for only a five day week; employés on an annual basis will be required to take one month's furlough without pay. The amendment, however, does not touch workers receiving $1,200 or less; and no furlough of more than five days can be imposed in any one month without the employé's consent. Members of congress and other specified officials are to be cut 10 per cent.

The previous plan, adopted last week, called for a 10 per cent cut in the salaries of all employés receiving $1,000 or more a year.

It was Senator Robert M. La Follette [radical Rep., Wis.] who made the motion to reconsider yesterday's vote of 36 to 41 by which the Moses amendment had previously been rejected. His motion carried, 36 to 33.

SENATE PASSES 90 MEASURES IN 3 HOUR SESSION

Federal Kidnaping Bill Is Approved.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 8.—[Special.]—Ninety bills were passed by the senate today in a three hour session devoted to unobjected measures on the calendar.

ROSCOE C. PATTERSON. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Outstanding among the bills, of which a large majority were private relief measures, was the bill sponsored by Senator Roscoe C. Patterson [Rep., Mo.] making interstate kidnaping a federal offense punishable by an indeterminate penitentiary term to be fixed by the court.

The annual authorization for federal highway aid was agreed to. Provision is made for the years 1934 and 1935 by the authorization of 109 millions annually for highways, 12½ millions for national forest roads and trails, 3 millions for roads in public lands, and 7½ millions for roads in public parks.

Husbands of American citizens will be given equal standing with wives and children under the immigration laws and with them are to be exempt from quota restrictions.

A pension of $125 a month was granted Mrs. Frances Agramonte, widow of Dr. Aristides Agramonte, whose name appears on the war department's roll of honor as one of those who volunteered as a subject for the experiments of the yellow fever commission in Cuba, which resulted in proof that the mosquito carried the disease.

WAGNER RELIEF BILL GETS APPROVAL OF SENATE COMMITTEE

Washington, D. C., June 8.—[Special.]—The big Democratic relief program was advanced another step today when the senate banking and currency committee approved the two billion dollar Wagner bill by a vote of seven to four.

As a result of the banking committee action today, the senate will be asked to vote on two Democratic relief bills. One, approved yesterday, provides 300 million dollars for loans to the states for direct relief work. The second bill, approved today, carries 500 millions for public works projects and adds 1 billion 500 millions to the borrowing power of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

This increased fund, under the bill approved today, would be available for loans to states, municipalities, and certain types of private organizations for use in financing profit making construction projects.

Prior to approving the Wagner bill the committee refused to approve an additional section which would permit reconstruction finance loans to "private competitive industries."

ARMY OFFICERS' SENATE ACTION DRAWS ATTACK

Washington, D. C., June 8.—[Special.]—The senate action yesterday in restoring the 2,000 officers to the war department supply bill which had been eliminated by the house drew sharp criticism today from Chairman Ross A. Collins [Dem., Miss.] of the house subcommittee handling army supply matters.

In commenting on the senate action Mr. Collins asserted that the return of the officers to the supply bills means that further cuts will be made in the air corps and the mechanized sections of the army. He asserted that the drive to return the officers to the bill after they had been eliminated had been inspired by the "old timers" in the army who still believed that foot soldiers rather than machines would fight the next war.

As a result of the controversy which had developed between the house Democratic leaders and the war department over the officer pay cut, indications today were that some time may elapse before the house and senate conferees on the war department bill will be able to iron out their differences and submit a harmonious measure back to the senate and house.

BISHOP CANNON COMING HERE TO LEAD DRY RALLY

Bishop Cannon is scheduled to speak Sunday morning at the Woodlawn Park Methodist church and Sunday afternoon at the Third Presbyterian church. At the opening session of the convention Friday night, F. Scott McBride will be a speaker.

WILSON CREDITS 10 YEAR PLENTY TO PROHIBITION

'Never Saw a Bootlegger,' Dry Leader Says.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, head of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition, and public morals, has never seen a bootlegger.

He made this statement last night in a debate on the dry law with Capt. Fred G. Clarke, national commander of the Crusaders, anti-prohibition organization, before an audience of 500 men and women in Mandel hall at the University of Chicago. Dr. Wilson said the action of John D. Rockefeller Jr. in advocating repeal of the eighteenth amendment "was unworthy of him."

"I never saw any bootleggers," admitted the clergyman during his argument. "Except one, perhaps, an uncle of mine—Uncle Sam—but he went out of the liquor business forever."

Tells "Dry Law Benefits."

Dr. Wilson went on to cite what he called the benefits of the dry law, declaring that it has outlawed the liquor traffic, which "governed this country." "Prohibition," he asserted, "gave us ten years of unbroken prosperity and will bring it back."

Discussing the makeup of congress on a wet and dry basis, Dr. Wilson said: "Only 21 per cent of our congressmen before prohibition were church members. Today 94 per cent of them are. Prohibition has not had a fair chance; there has not been a dominant figure in the presidential chair since prohibition."

Cites Increase in Crime.

Capt. Clarke answered Dr. Wilson's argument by declaring the prison populations have doubled, crime has increased, corruption has increased, the liquor bill has increased, and drinking by young people has increased—all since prohibition.

"Arrests for drunkenness have increased throughout the country ever since prohibition became a law. Intoxication among minors has increased 610 per cent. There are two speakeasies now for every saloon of the old days."

W. C. T. U.'S REPLY TO JOHN D. JR. IS A DENIAL OF FACTS

Order Statement Given Out All Over U. S.

Breaking official silence on the announcement of John D. Rockefeller Jr.'s desertion of the dry ranks, the national headquarters of the Women's Christian Temperance union in Evanston yesterday issued a statement combating Mr. Rockefeller's reasons why the eighteenth amendment is a failure.

The statement was dispatched to W. C. T. U. leaders in every state.

"The Rockefeller statement that drinking has increased under prohibition is without foundation," the statement read. "The American people have decreased drinking so much that alcoholism death rates have been cut in two; alcoholic diseases generally have been reduced to a point where it can be said that more lives have been saved by prohibition than were lost by us in the world war. The government's official estimate is that drinking has been reduced to 35 per cent of what it was; social agencies report poverty from drink reduced to a negligible minimum."

More Children in High Schools.

The statement, quoting from figures of the National Education association, asserted that 1,000,000 children have gone to high school from homes that would have been unable to send them under barroom conditions.

"Mr. Rockefeller should realize," said the statement, "that when the eighteenth amendment was ratified the liquor interests threatened to organize a nation-wide disobedience of the prohibitory laws. Much of the present lax observance and organized nullification is the result of that threat.

"We think Mr. Rockefeller wrong in his statement that states and cities still retain their former laws and regulations covering the liquor trade. In most instances state prohibition laws automatically repealed the old laws regulating liquor, and any drive sufficient to repeal the eighteenth amendment would result in liberal state liquor laws that would insure a flood of liquor with its attendant evils.

Calls Repeal "Murderous."

"To repeal the eighteenth amendment would be murderous. It would restore the old high death rate from alcoholic causes; it would be cowardly in that it would surrender to the liquor interests which, regardless of the protests of wet leaders, are bent on complete liberalization of liquor laws around the world.

"It would not only be un-American to surrender to low ideals but would be national stupidity. . . . The history of the past justifies us in saying that the political party is doomed which, for the sake of political expediency, opens the door through which liquor may return to a legal status."

Mrs. Margaret C. Munns, national treasurer of the W. C. T. U., also issued a statement which said that "the drys, if necessary, would walk from poorhouse to polls to vote against a party or candidate who offers aid to the repealists."

HITS JOHN D. JR. STAND.

Richmond, Va., June 8.—(AP)—Deets Pickett tonight asserted that "these are terrible times in this country—times of unrest and no day for men who have built large fortunes under protection of the law to forward a movement for its overthrow."

Addressing a group of Methodists of the Richmond district, the research secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, apparently pointed his remarks at the recent statement of John D. Rockefeller Jr., advocating repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"All of this ballyhoo about prohibition," he said, "does not come from the people but from a number of men of vast means who are dissatisfied with the government 'again in the hands of the people.'"

He said he believed Mr. Rockefeller to be a patriot and a Christian gentleman but a person touched by his environment.

ANOTHER DRY LEADER, JOHN R. MOTT, COMES OUT FOR RESUBMISSION

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, June 8.—John R. Mott, president of the International Missionary council and of the world's alliance of the Y. M. C. A., disclosed tonight on his arrival here from Scotland that he is now in favor of resubmission of the prohibition question to the people of the United States if some way could be found to do so which would keep the while matter clear of partisan politics.

Although still believing that the net results of the dry experiment have been good for the nation as a whole, Mott admitted that they have been "deplorable" in some sections.

His reasons for favoring resubmission are two—to give the generation which has come of age since adoption of the eighteenth amendment an opportunity to voice its views and out of respect to the "many good men" like John D. Rockefeller Jr. who have changed their views on the issue.

BADGER G. O. P. NAMES CHAPPLE FOR U. S. SENATOR

Walter J. Kohler Indorsed for Governor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., June 8.—[Special.]—The state conservative Republican convention today indorsed John B. Chapple of Ashland for United States senator; former Governor Walter J. Kohler of Kohler for governor; Harry Dahl of La Crosse, a newcomer in politics, for lieutenant governor, Senator Ben Gettelman of Milwaukee for secretary of state; District Attorney Levi Bancroft of Milwaukee for attorney general, and Edward J. Samp of Madison for state treasurer.

All indorsements were unanimous and came more or less as a surprise to observers.

Chapple, who is only 33 years old, made a thorough pre-convention campaign, assailing the La Follette administration and pointing to alleged communistic leanings at the University of Wisconsin. He covered all of the seventy-one counties in the state, making two to five speeches daily.

The seat in the senate which Chapple seeks is now held by Senator John J. Blaine, La Follette follower, who is a candidate for reelection.

Denounces La Follette Rule.

Kohler will be pitted against Gov. Phil La Follette, who will be a candidate to succeed himself. Kohler was defeated for reelection by La Follette. There had been a statewide movement to draft Kohler during the last few weeks, and the movement apparently had become general when his name was placed in nomination.

After being given the indorsement Chapple addressed the convention and declared:

"The La Follette racket is heading the state of Wisconsin down hill—straight down the chutes—to socialism and communism."

Gov. La Follette is a brother of United States Senator Robert M. La Follette.

Chapple long has supported President Hoover, and formally announced his candidacy after a conference at the White House a few weeks ago.

Kohler Is Lauded.

Chapple's nomination was followed by the naming of former Gov. Kohler as a candidate by demand for governor. "He was lied and slandered out of office before," declared Chapple, one of the numerous seconds to nomination of the former governor.

"Let's put him back where he belongs."

Opposing candidates for nominations, sensing the feeling of the convention for the leading candidates withdrew from competition and pledged their support to the victors, all promising to work whole heartedly for the success of the entire ticket.

The first and informal ballot in the contest for the senatorial nomination quickly revealed the sentiment of the delegates. The Chapple feeling had begun to be apparent through the first day of the convention. The question to be answered was to what extent he had been able to transform sentiment and sympathy into votes.

First Ballot Tells Story.

The first ballot told the story. W. J. Campbell of Oshkosh, wheel horse of the party; Walter S. Goodland, Racine, state senator, and Dr. Gerhard A. Bading, Milwaukee, former mayor and former United States minister to Ecuador, had been placed in nomination. The result of the first ballot was:

Chapple, 503; Campbell, 299; Goodland, 271; Bading, 39.

It required 559 of the 1,117 votes cast to nominate and Chapple was 51 votes short.

Voting on the first formal ballot revealed that the fight was over. County after county turned its vote in favor of the crusading Ashland editor and the voting was quickly interrupted by a resolution of Mr. Campbell to make the nomination unanimous.

Points to Victory.

Mr. Campbell took the platform and urged that the party take advantage of the best opportunity it had enjoyed for many years to insure a victory at the polls. He pledged his best efforts to insuring the nomination of Chapple at the primaries. Mr. Goodland had left the convention hall, but his first act on returning at the afternoon session was to appear on the stage and pledge his best efforts to the victory of the whole party.

Harmony among the candidates for governor made itself equally apparent.

Question whether Mr. Kohler would accept the nomination was set at rest by a telegram read before the convention. It stated, "I have repeatedly requested my friends not to present my name to the convention. However, if there is a general and undirected and genuine sentiment that I run as is stated in your telegram of this noon, with a full understanding of the difficulties and a willingness to give thorough support, I will accept the decision of the conference."

LIGHTNING HITS BARN SECOND TIME.

Canton, Ill., June 8.—[Special.]—For the second time in less than a week Frank and William Littlejohn suffered a heavy loss from fire when lightning struck a barn on their farm near St. David. The first blaze was due to the same cause.

Victor and Vanquished in Iowa Primary Election

Henry Field, Shenandoah, seed man and radio station owner, who defeated Senator Smith W. Brookhart for renomination by more than 50,000, shows he belongs to the plain people by leaving his spoon in his cup while drinking.

Silent on Defeat

Smith W. Brookhart, United States senator from Iowa, who was defeated for renomination in the Republican primary on Monday, passed through Chicago yesterday on his return trip from his home state to the national capital. He arrived by train and went directly to the Chicago airport, where he boarded an east bound plane at 10:30 a. m.

Efforts to interview Brookhart on the question of whether he will be an independent candidate in the fall election were not fruitful.

"I have nothing to say," was the reply to a question on this subject, "but some of these days I am going to do something."

He emphasized the "do" but declined to say what the "something" may be.

Upon his arrival in Washington, dispatches said, Brookhart again declined to comment on his defeat or on whether he will run as an independent. He spoke at length, however, on pending radical legislation in which he is interested.

HAIL BROOKHART DEFEAT AS BLOW TO RADICALISM

Wisconsin Regulars to Continue Fight.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., June 8.—[Special.]—The decisive defeat of United States Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart of Iowa, radical Republican, by Henry Field, seed merchant of Shenandoah, was taken by Republican leaders in Madison today as pointing to the end of radicalism in government.

They insisted it is the forerunner of a change of administration in Wisconsin.

A statement was made from the platform at the state Republican convention here that Senator John J. Blaine's "Bosom Pal Brookhart, of Iowa," had been made to "walk the plank and Blaine should be made to take a similar plunge."

E. P. McFetridge, chairman of the Sauk county delegation said the defeat of Brookhart, "shows what can be done and also indicates what is to become of Blaine in the next election."

Can't Soak the Rich.

Ben L. Mareus, Muscoda, Wis., and delegate to the national Republican convention in Chicago, had this to say:

"The defeat of Brookhart shows that people in various parts of the country are beginning to realize that we need persons with wealth to maintain the welfare of the United States just as we need large bodies of water to sail our ships on and carry on the commerce of the country."

Roy L. Brecke, executive secretary of the state regular Republican committee, said Brookhart's defeat signifies that the people of the country are thinking for themselves and are going to the polls to support their convictions.

Cheer Brookhart's Defeat.

When the permanent chairman, State Senator George W. Blanchard, interrupted an address in the convention today to call attention to the story in the CHICAGO TRIBUNE recording the defeat of Brookhart, the cheering from the floor was long and continuous.

Senator Brookhart has been one of the leaders in trying to build political position by promoting class prejudice at the risk of the American standard of government, John B. Chapple, chosen for the nomination for United States senator, asserted.

The situation in Iowa, he said, is similar to that in Wisconsin, and the defeat of the radical Brookhart reveals a growing public consciousness he anticipated would result in defeat of radicalism in Wisconsin at the primaries.

RUTH B. OWEN TRAILS WET IN FLORIDA VOTING

Daughter of Bryan Lags by 3,500.

BULLETIN.

Des Moines, Ia., June 8.—(AP)—With 15 of 2,435 precincts still unreported, the Republican vote for United States senator stood:

Henry Field, 193,546.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 8.—[Special.]—The dry stand of Congresswoman Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the late prohibition champion, William Jennings Bryan, appeared to be reacting against her as returns came in late today from the Fourth district in the Florida Democratic primary.

Mark Wilcox, West Palm Beach attorney and an advocate for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, was leading Mrs. Owen by 4,931 votes for renomination on the basis of returns from 301 out of 419 precincts in the district tonight.

An advocate of a prohibition referendum, Rep. Herbert J. Drane of the First district, was getting nearly twice the vote garnered by two opponents on the basis of returns from 139 out of 373 precincts in his district. The trailing candidates also had supported a referendum.

Millard Caldwell, who favors a prohibition referendum, was leading Representative Tom Yon, a dry, of the 3d district 3,743 to 3,491 in returns from 180 of the 283 precincts. R. G. Patterson, also for a referendum, had 4,618 votes.

Former Representative W. J. Sears, who served fourteen years in congress from the Fourth district, held a considerable lead over four opponents in the race for congressman at large. He also advocated a prohibition referendum.

Florida favors Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt overwhelmingly in the presidential primary, returns from the state at large have demonstrated. Returns from 316 of the state's total precincts give Roosevelt 37,413; Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma, 4,895; and L. J. Chassee of Milwaukee, 543.

SCHOOLS ADOPT PART OF STRAYER ECONOMY PLAN

The board of education yesterday approved a number of economies recommended by the Strayer committee.

One item approved was the elimination of household art and manual training under the seventh grade. This move is expected to effect a saving of $200,000 between now and Dec. 1, and a $500,000 saving for the following year.

The trustees also approved transfer of 3,000 pupils from the ninth grade of senior high schools to the ninth grade of junior high schools to relieve congestion. The estimated saving is $32,000 until Dec. 1 and $150,000 for the full year.

Tentative approval was given a recommendation to charge a fee of $5 for each pupil in the evening schools. The schools were to have been eliminated in the 1932 budget. Further consideration will be given a program to eliminate fire hazards, said to have been found in ninety-five schools.

SPEEDBOAT RAMS FEDERAL CUTTER; BOTH GET TO PORT

Cleveland, O., June 8.—(AP)—Skimming Lake Erie at a speed of forty miles an hour, a speedboat, the Miss Redemption, rammed the coast guard cutter CG8000 in the darkness early yesterday, tearing a great hole in the government boat's stern.

Each boat got into port under its power. Two coast guards and the three Cleveland men in the speedboat, who were going fishing, escaped injury.

The cutter was confiscated two years ago as a rum runner and put into government service.

LOUISIANA TO VOTE ON REPEAL NEXT SEPT. 8

New Orleans, La., June 8.—[Special.]—Louisiana will vote on the repeal of the state prohibition law at the Democratic primary Sept. 8. This action was made certain today when the house of representatives approved, by an overwhelming vote, a bill authorizing a referendum on whether or not the state shall petition congress to repeal the 18th amendment. This plan had been previously approved by the senate.

The senate also passed and sent to the house a measure calling for a vote repealing the Hood act, which is the Louisiana enforcement act of the national prohibition law. The house is expected to pass the measure.

Vote Referendum for New Jersey.

Trenton, N. J., June 8.—[Special.]—By votes of 14 to 4 and 42 to 1, respectively, the senate and house late today passed a bill for a referendum at the general election in November on repeal of the Hobart state prohibition enforcement act. If ratified the repealer will be effective Dec. 1.

U. S. DRY AGENTS PUSH INTO HOME AND BEAT OWNER

Carbondale, Ill., June 8.—[Special.]—Forcing their way into the home of A. M. Johns of this city, and declaring they didn't have to have a warrant, two federal prohibition agents, J. W. Ranfro and C. E. Watters of East St. Louis last night arrested Johns, after striking him, he asserted today. When Johns inquired of them as to their identity the dry agents pushed him aside and said we are federal agents and did not need warrants. Johns said he was then hit with a flashlight by one of the men when he attempted to empty a small bottle of liquor.

The officers obtained a small quantity of liquor and beer, but Johns said he did not sell intoxicating drinks and never had. After the raid Johns called Dr. H. C. Moss, who has been treating him for sciatic rheumatism in the hip, where the former said the prohibitionist kicked him.

Johns was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Porter and held under a $2,000 bond on charges of violating the national prohibition law.

G. O. P. OF INDIANA DEBATES ON HOW WET IT SHALL BE

Plank to Ask Referendum if Not Repeal.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., June 8.—[Special.]—A battle between wets and drys was shaping in bone dry Indiana tonight over a dripping wet plank or a moist one in the platform to be adopted by the Republican state convention which opened its two days' session this morning.

Wet leaders were declaiming when the resolutions committee met late tonight that they had lined up a majority of the members. It appeared that a divided report may be made on prohibition, and it will go to the floor of the convention to determine whether the plank shall be wet, damp, or dry.

The wets hold that the so-called Garfield damp plank framed at Washington Sunday does not travel far enough for a state party declaration. In its three pronged advocacy of action by congress and states to determine whether the 18th amendment shall be "retained, modified, or repealed, the wets hold it appears a bit of straddling, and they argue the plank should come out unequivocally for repeal.

Watson Sends His Views.

The wets also ask for a supplemental plank for repeal of the Indiana state bone dry prohibition law, which is so arid that it does not recognize whisky for medicinal purposes.

One suggested compromise between wets and moists was that the plank declare for modifying the state liquor law to make it conform to the federal law.

Senator James E. Watson, who is to be renominated tomorrow, was a participant in the Sunday conference at Washington which produced the tentative plank upon which the White House is declared to have stamped its approval. Both senators Watson and Arthur Robinson remained in Washington today—the first convention "Old Jim" has missed in many a year.

Over long distance Watson, a former dry who has become a resubmissionist, declared to liberals that both state and national platforms would contain wet planks.

Dry Domination Over.

The surge against prohibition, perhaps, is never better demonstrated than on the side lines of this convention. In former years Indiana and the G. O. P. were boss ridden by the Anti-Saloon league, which had a dictatorship spreading over the legislative and executive departments and sought even to bring the Supreme court under its thumb.

A few years back the league bosses cracked the whip and the delegates jumped through the hoops and turned double flipflops.

Today, however, affairs were somewhat different.

An explosion over the Anti-Saloon league and its methods occurred during the platform hearings. L. E. York, league superintendent, was heckled when he tried to crack the whip as of yore. One of his most persistent hecklers was John Scott of Gary, while Henry Marshall, publisher, of Lafayette, chairman, denounced the league methods as a cause of a lot of Indiana's political woes of the last decade.

Dry Official Reprimanded.

York pounded the table as he yelled a threat:

"The league will defeat the whole ticket if you adopt a wet plank."

"The chair demands that you conduct yourself like a gentleman," cried Marshall, while something that sounded like the good old raspberry echoed in the room.

Others leading in the fight for a dripping wet plank advocating repeal of the 18th amendment and the state dry law are Oscar Ahlgren of Gary, candidate for congress; Clem J. Richards, coal operator of Terre Haute, and Arthur Hall of Fort Wayne.

The wet and dry struggle is held to have sent up the stock of two candidates for governor—M. Bert Thurman, former national committeeman and Watson leader, and L. F. Orr, state accountant.

Some of the northern Indiana delegations are talking of throwing to him on the ground that a governor ought to be nominated who would not veto a repeal of the state prohibition law if passed by the legislature, as Gov. L. L. Emmerson did in Illinois last year, thereby precipitating the troubles in which the state party finds itself.

Eight candidates are out for governor. They are rated as liberals, moists, repealists, modificationists of varying degrees, and James M. Ogden, attorney general, is listed as the only one taking a bone dry stand.

The other governorship candidates are Edgar D. Bush, lieutenant governor; James M. Knapp, former speaker of the house; Frederick Landis, Logansport editor, old Bull Moose, and brother of the judge; Arthur H. Sapp, highway commissioner, and Raymond S. Springer, who was first state commander of the American Legion.

FARM LEADERS FRAME DEMANDS FOR CONVENTIONS

Charge Neither Party Keeps Promises.

A bitter attack on the federal farm board and a vigorous protest against granting the board any further funds for "ruthless squandering" was telegraphed to President Hoover last night by Thomas R. Cain of Bloomington, an Illinois dirt farmer and president of the Farmers' National Grain Dealers' association.

Mr. Cain, who declared his protest was in behalf of 900,000 stockholders and patrons of farmers' coöperative elevators, sent copies of his telegram to the chairmen of the appropriations committees of the senate and house in Washington.

Demands End of Spending.

His message follows: "The appropriation of further funds for the use of the federal farm board, following their ruthless squandering of 500 million dollars of tax money, would be the height of folly.

"We farmers are convinced that we cannot expect normal markets so long as the farm board is a factor in price making. The appropriation of more millions for their misuse would only prolong our distress.

"This is intended as a protest against all bills that have been or may be introduced to appropriate funds for the use of the federal farm board."

In a statement elaborating on his telegram Mr. Cain charged professional farm leaders and lobbyists betrayed agriculture in advocating an increase of 400 per cent in the tax on futures transactions in farm products.

"Agriculture has been betrayed again by so-called farm leaders and professional farm lobbyists. This measure, which threatens to cost grain producers many millions, was adopted as a means of raising a comparatively few millions in additional revenue.

Tax Falls on Farmers.

"It was accomplished by misrepresenting the facts and advancing the argument that only speculators would be affected, whereas the tax actually applies to all hedging transactions so essential to efficient marketing, and thus becomes a marketing charge against the farmer.

"It is the duty of congress," Mr. Cain concluded, "to repeal this crushing tax at once, to refuse more money for further farm board meddling and to free our markets now from political domination so we may harvest our coming crops with some spark of hope."

The farm leaders scored by Mr. Cain have served notice on delegates to the Republican national convention that agriculture will demand large consideration in the party platform, it was learned.

Chicago headquarters of the American Farm Bureau federation has indicated that its chief interest lies in amending the federal marketing act and monetary adjustment to bridge the gap between "bulging granaries and the millions in dire want of the products of farm and factory." Paradoxically, the federation also advocates government economy.

The National Grange and the Farmers' National union, although nursing their own pet schemes for eliminating the crop surplus, are expected to join the Farm Bureau federation in voicing so-called agrarian desires.

SEVEN KILLED, 200 HURT; BOMB ENDS CUBAN CONCERT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, June 8.—Three women and two men died today, raising the death toll to seven killed, resulting from the explosion of a powerful dynamite bomb at Vidal park last night. More than 200 others were injured. The bomb exploded during a military band concert. Five Cuban communists were jailed as bombers.

A new conspiracy to overthrow President Gerardo Machado was discovered today. Ex-President Mario G. Menocal, now a refugee in the Brazilian embassy, is named as instigator.

A cruiser and six gunboats were ordered to Pinar del Rio to guard against the landing of a revolutionary force of Cuban expatriates, Mexicans, Hondurans, and Nicaraguans. The force left Puerto Tela, Honduras, in three motor schooners well supplied with ammunition. Brig. Gen. Eduardo Lores said that simultaneously with the landing revolutionists within the country had intended to revolt.

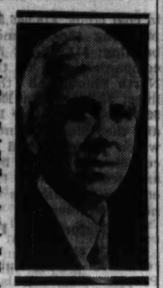
$195,000 BONDS SET FOR TRIO.

Three men charged by police with taking $10,000 in loan company robberies were held to the grand jury yesterday in total bonds of $195,000 by Judge Francis Borrelli in the felony court. They are Ralph Trimble, 33 years old; St. Clair McInerney, 24 years old, and George Dilley, 27.

DUNLAP URGED AS THIRD ENTRY FOR GOVERNOR

Friends Start Boom for State Senator.

A movement to make State Senator Henry M. Dunlap of Champaign county an independent candidate for the governorship of Illinois was started quietly in Chicago yesterday by a group of his friends.



SENATOR DUNLAP.

Senator Dunlap consistently opposed Len Small during the latter's eight years in the governor's chair, particularly in matters of expenditure. He has a dry record and is considered a dry now, although he has made no recent public declaration on this subject, so far as is known.

Whether he would consent to become a third candidate against Small, the Republican entry, and Judge Henry Horner, the Democratic nominee, has not been established, although the friends launching the movement in his behalf say he "knows what's going on." He is said to be on his way back from Florida at present.

Backers to Be Announced.

The announcement concerning the senator came from Frank L. Mather, a publicity man, who said the names of the committee pushing the new candidacy—or possible candidacy—will be announced soon. He said that the first meeting was attended by fifteen men from Chicago and downstate who have known and admired Dunlap for years.

The announcement came in the form of a circular which it was said will be distributed throughout the state to get the boom started. The slogan carried by the circular was: "Illinois' Best Material for Governor."

Some of the high spots of the text were:

"It means the end of favoritism, a square deal for all. It means political wire pulling will be barred, for Mr. Dunlap realizes that the job of the next governor is to pull the state out of a hole; and his record justifies the statement that he would not give one minute to selfish politics and would not permit any state employé whom he has the right to fire to play politics during his administration.

"It means economy in every sense of the word."

Praised by Voters' League.

Senator Dunlap was commended by the Legislative Voters' league in its most recent report in the following words:

"Henry M. Dunlap, Savoy, farmer and fruit grower. He has represented his district ably in the senate for nine terms (thirty-six years) and has a remarkable record of distinguished service in that body. Senator Dunlap fully deserves to be renominated and the state can ill afford to lose him as a public servant."

He was renominated from the 24th district in the April primary by a plurality of 3,714 and a majority over two opponents.

The Illinois Blue Book sketch of the senator says he was born in Cook county and was graduated from the University of Illinois in 1875. He resides on a farm three miles south of Champaign. He was a member of the state constitutional convention of 1920. He is a Mason, a Knight of Pythias, and an Elk.

His most vigorous battles in the legislature have been for the creation of a real state police force.

AIMEE M'PHERSON HUTTON REPORTED TO BE SERIOUSLY ILL

Los Angeles, Cal., June 8.—[Special.]—Special prayers were offered for the recovery of the Rev. Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton by her followers today while the stricken evangelist rested under supervision of a physician in an undisclosed retreat "somewhere in Los Angeles." She was removed in a stretcher from her Angelus temple parsonage last night. The woman pastor's husband, David L. Hutton Jr., said he considered her condition "critical."

DEAD FISH TRAIL LEADS RAIDERS TO FARM STILL

Backtracking along a trail of dead fish in the Kankakee river and sick cows in the pastures along the river banks, prohibition agents early yesterday raided a still in a barn near Beecher, Will county.

Ernest Heldt, the owner of the farm, and Tony France, 1337 Lexington street, East Chicago Heights, tending a still when the raid was made, waived a hearing later in the day and were held in bonds of $1,000 each.

For two weeks the prohibition department and the sheriffs of Will and Kankakee counties had been receiving complaints from farmers and fishermen. Fish in the Kankakee river and its tributaries were dying from some mysterious ailment. Cows were drinking from the river and sickening. Tests of the water and evidence of residue from a brewery or a still floating in the water gave indication of the cause.

After three days of trailing, a 750 gallon still was discovered in a large barn on the Heldt farm. The refuse was emptied into a small creek and the creek carried the residue into the Kankakee. For twelve miles down the river the still polluted the stream.

Retail Grocers Join Plea for Repeal of Prohibition

St. Louis, Mo., June 8.—(AP)—Repeal of the 18th amendment was advocated today in a resolution adopted by the National Association of Retail Grocers, over the protest of a minority of delegates, most of them from small towns. Repeal is necessary for "cleansing the body politic of the country and for its general social contentment," the resolution stated.

BUILDS GARDEN POOL; HIS BABY DROWNS IN IT.

In his spare moments last autumn Theodore Horner, a machinist living at 149th street and 48th avenue, Midlothian, constructed a rock garden in the yard at his home. Recently he filled the garden pool with 18 inches of water. Yesterday his 15 month old daughter, Geraldine, was playing there when she toppled in, head first. The mother found the child's body.

INSULL TAKES HIS LEAVE OF UTILITY EMPIRE

Fortune Gone, He Has No Plans for Future.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Samuel Insull sat at his desk yesterday in his luxurious office suite in the Commonwealth Edison building from which he had long directed the operations of a vast public utilities empire. But no longer was he there to issue the many orders such as occupied his long days in the past. He was there only to clear up the tag ends of his business preparatory to turning over the reins to others.

SAMUEL INSULL.

The huge empire he built up now disintegrated and its control passed into other hands, Mr. Insull had no plans for rebuilding it nor for recouping his great personal fortune which vanished with the collapse of his power in the many Insull enterprises.

Spread Over 32 States.

At its zenith, this "empire" was spread over 32 states in the central, eastern and southwestern portions of the United States and even extended into Canada. It represented properties with a total value exceeding 3½ billion dollars.

There were the three big Chicago utilities, Commonwealth Edison, Peoples Gas Light and Coke, and Public Service of Northern Illinois, with assets estimated at the height of Mr. Insull's power at nearly 1 billion dollars; the Chicago street car and elevated lines, valued at nearly 300 millions; the Middle West Utilities company, with assets once valued at 320 millions but controlling a system with properties valued above 1 billion, 300 millions; the three interurban lines radiating from Chicago, the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee, the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin, and the Chicago, South Shore and South Bend, rated above 100 millions; the Midland United company, with assets of 381 millions, and the two investment trusts, Insull Utility Investments and the Corporation Securities company, which had combined assets that at one time exceeded 406 million dollars.

The Middle West Utilities controlled plants in 32 states.

Talks to Newspaper Men.

For the first time since he was forced to give up direction of the many utility companies which he had dominated for years, Mr. Insull consented to talk with newspaper men. But it was more of a personal farewell, for he insisted he would not grant any interviews.

"I have ceased to be newspaper copy," he observed with a tremulous smile. "And I am out of public life and no longer a public figure. So I ought to be entitled to privacy."

Urged to tell something of his plans for the future, he replied simply. "I haven't any." And further urging brought only the reply: "My statement the other day told my whole story and was probably the last I shall make."

Still there were questions. Would he go to England to live, as had been reported? Probably not, as was indicated by his observation: "I read that in the newspapers with considerable interest, as it was the first I knew of it." And later in the day associates of Mr. Insull expressed the belief that he would remain in this country, where he has lived for more than a half century. And they thought it not unlikely that, after a period of rest, he would continue to live in Chicago, where he has lived for forty years.

Shows Strain of Battle.

To most other questions, Mr. Insull merely repeated that he would say nothing. His careworn appearance and trembling hand betokened the strain of recent months, during which he had labored vainly to save his companies from financial disaster. Yet, asked about his health, he said: "I had a good sleep last night; I feel pretty well today." His thankful tone seemed to imply other nights that were sleepless.

Mr. Insull showed an occasional flash of humor. When his secretary brought in a telegram from a New York newspaper asking him to write a long account of the breakup of his vast chain of utilities, he said with a chuckle:

"That's really too good, but just tell them there is nothing doing."

Not the least of Mr. Insull's worries is for his wife, a friend said last night. Mrs. Insull is now in seclusion, severely upset by the rapid changes which have affected their lives. With the rest of the Insull family she has also lost her individual fortune, and her remaining principal possession, it is said, is a cottage in England.

The wife of a famous man, Mrs. Insull was not unknown to fame in her own right. Before her marriage to the utilities chief on May 23, 1899, she was prominent on the stage as Gladys Wallis. Her real name was Margaret A. Bird. Her home was New York.

Mrs. Insull gave up her stage career for marriage, but in 1925, with the support of her husband and their son, Samuel Insull Jr., she returned once to the footlights in the rôle of Lady Teazle in Sheridan's "The School for Scandal." She later played in New York.

Her success encouraged her to organize a repertoire company, for which, in 1926, she leased the Studebaker theater for six years at a reported rental of $80,000 a year. She acted as director. A year later Mrs. Insull withdrew, disbanded the company, and turned the theater over to competitive attractions. She explained at the time that her ambition had been misdirected, that Chicago has not given hope for support.

Plans to Take a Rest.

Associates of Mr. Insull confirmed his assertion that he has no definite plans.

"We know that Mr. Insull plans to take a rest and Mrs. Insull will share his vacation—if it is merely a vacation," these associates said. "We know he plans to go away from Chicago, but he hasn't decided whether or not to make a trip to Europe. Mrs. Insull owns a small house in England.

"We have heard Mr. Insull say that he really doesn't know what he will do. He is 72 years old, you know, and that's pretty advanced to start a new career. He said the other day: 'I've gone from the bottom to the top and now to the bottom again; I only hope I'll be able to keep a roof over my head and care for my wife.' However, he may change his mind when the shock of recent events has passed and he has had a good rest."

There is no doubt of the complete loss of the great fortune of Mr. Insull, according to bankers, and with that fortune have gone those of Mrs. Insull and Martin J. Insull, a brother, who was president of the Middle West Utilities company. The personal affairs of the brothers are being examined by the Chicago and New York banks that had made large loans to them.

"It appears that Samuel Insull has definite obligations of about $10,000,000 and, in addition, there are subscriptions, pledges, etc., that may total several millions," a Chicago banker explained. "Most of his former great fortune, which once was estimated above $100,000,000, was lost in the collapse of his two investment trusts. He turned virtually his whole fortune in the common stocks of Insull Utility Investments and the Corporation Securities company. These stocks are virtually worthless.

Country Place to Creditors.

"Practically all Mr. Insull now has left is his big estate of 4,800 acres near Libertyville. However, arrangements are being made for turning this estate over to a trustee for the benefit of creditors. Mr. Insull placed a value of around $1,000 an acre on the estate, but what can be realized on it probably is much less. We have appraised it around $300 to $500 an acre and at the top figure it would be worth less than $2,500,000."

"There is likely to be litigation over distribution of the Insull assets. Undoubtedly the banks that hold Mr. Insull's notes will claim whatever salvage may be because they actually advanced money. On the other hand, the charities and other beneficiaries of Mr. Insull's subscriptions and pledges probably will assert that they share equitably in the proceeds from the estate. It will be a nice point of law whether the bank creditors have a prior claim because of the money involved, whereas there was no consideration involved in Mr. Insull's pledges."

Another Chicago banker estimated that Martin J. Insull has obligations of more than $7,000,000, most of which consist of borrowings from a New York bank. It also was said that Samuel Insull Jr. has bank loans of several hundred thousand dollars.

"There is no doubt that all of the Insull family stood together in both good and bad fortune," another banker said. "They went down with the ship."

Opera Fate Hangs in Balance Tips Toward Abandonment

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The fate of the Civic Opera company will probably be determined within the next few days. At present, it is hanging in the balance, with the scales apparently, although not yet finally, dipping toward abandonment of the enterprise.

The presidency of the company is one of the few activities that Samuel Insull has not formally relinquished. Requests for information at his office yesterday afternoon were met by his secretary with the statement that he would possibly have something to say on the subject in a day or two.

Meanwhile Herman Waldeck, treasurer of the organization, asked, "If we decide to continue the opera season, do you think the public will pay for it?"

The Rich Must Support It.

"There is only one thing worse than not giving opera," he added, "and that is to give opera without being able to meet its financial responsibilities. The depression has hit the rich worse than it has the poor, and opera must be supported by the rich.

"It is a matter deserving grave consideration, and the public is entitled to know what the outlook will be. There will probably be a meeting of the trustees within a few days to determine what is to be done. At present the Civic opera is a ship without a head."

Stanley Field, secretary of the organization, dictated a statement to the effect that the final decision on the continuance of the company rested with the board of trustees, who will meet in a few days, adding that in his opinion it was extremely hazardous to undertake a new season.

Mr. Insull organized the company ten years ago, taking over the assets of its predecessor, the Chicago Opera association, at a time when former sponsors had abandoned hope of continuance; he planned to meet the annual deficit out of a guaranty fund to be subscribed by public spirited citizens at the rate of $500,000 a year for a period of five years.

Raising New Fund.

The company has passed through two of these periods and is engaged upon the raising of a third guaranty fund. Something over $350,000 has been subscribed, but it was not considered advisable to take any definite steps until the full amount was on the books. It was pointed out, however, that the delay has caused four of the company's most notable artists, Tito Schipa, Richard Bonelli, Frida Leider, and Lotte Lehmann, to be signed by other operatic companies, even though Mr. Schipa could be called upon for appearances here for part of the season, in case there is a season.

Figures not verified by the company but believed to be accurate indicate that the deficit of the 1930-'31 season was about $1,050,000. Of this a sum said to be about $350,000 was paid by Mr. Insull out of his own resources, the remainder being met by the guaranty fund and other sources of income. The deficit of the season just closed is believed to be between $500,000 and $700,000.

Await Simpson Statement.

James Simpson, Mr. Insull's successor in his commercial enterprises, could not be reached to determine whether he would follow Mr. Insull in operatic matters as well. It was said at his office that he was taking a few days to straighten out his private affairs, and that he might have something to say on the subject later.

Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick said through her secretary that the opera group as a whole was working on a plan to save the company, but that no announcement could be made for another week. Mrs. McCormick addressed an open letter to Mr. Johnson on May 13, asking that the rental paid by the company to the Twenty Wacker Driver corporation, owner of the building in which the Civic Opera house is located, be reduced, and pointing out that its rental amounted to $3,000 a performance, or a total of $270,000 for a season of ninety performances.

This matter, it is said, has been under consideration by the opera company, though no decision has been announced. It would result in a smaller cost for the opera season. On the other hand, it was pointed out, such a step might seriously endanger future prospects of the Opera company through the ownership of the building.

3 INSULL UNITS FACE 90 MILLION CUT IN SURPLUS

Auditors' Report Suggests 9% Write-Off.

in coal lands; $16,086,503 in real estate, including the Commonwealth Edison building; $11,115,477 in transportation companies, such as the Elevated, the North Shore, and the Aurora-Elgin lines; $3,746,879 in Edison stock, and $5,366,249 in Walker Electric company and the Illinois Maintenance company which were credited with developing considerable power business. It was asserted that more than 90 per cent of these investments were of a permanent character.

Natural Gas Pipe Line.

A like statement was issued with reference to the subsidiaries of the Peoples Gas. This company has natural gas and utility investments including 26 per cent of the Natural Gas Pipe Line Company of America which brings natural gas from Texas to the Chicago district. Peoples Gas also has an interest in the Midland United Company, which is represented as an outgrowth of the Peoples Gas interest in the Indiana gas situation, dating back to the acquisition of the Chicago Economic Fuel Gas company in 1897 and the Indiana Natural Gas and Oil company in 1906, and a substantial amount of the bonds of the last named company.

The Peoples Gas investment in coal properties is set down at $1,548,541. This protection of future fuel requirements is represented by an interest in the Peabody Coal company, which owns and operates properties in Illinois and West Virginia, said to produce coal of a quality required for the efficient operation of the gas company's coke ovens. The railroad investments of the gas company are placed at $352,430 and the subsidiary had $8,283,414 invested in the gas company stock.

Includes Store System.

Another $8,505,400 was invested in nonutility property. These include the Peoples Gas Stores, organized to promote the sale of gas by introducing modern appliances, and the Peoples Gas By-Products corporation which refines and markets light oils produced in the manufacture of gas. These companies, wholly owned by the Peoples Gas company, had real estate appraised on Jan. 1 at $10,416,582. These properties include the gas building on Michigan avenue, a warehouse building, six branch stores, refining plants at McCook and Cicero, and land around gas tanks. Miscellaneous investments amounted to $3,044,710.

Similar information has been given the stockholders of the Public Service of Northern Illinois regarding their subsidiary.

The proposed "write-off" of $90,000,000 is not intended to interfere with the earning power of the three utilities. Net earnings for the first quarter of this year show considerably more than enough to meet the dividend requirements for that period.

Court Clerk Is Alibi Witness at Hoodlum's Robbery Trial

Steve Ladd, a deputy clerk of the Municipal court, appeared as a witness yesterday in Judge John Prystalski's court and supplied an alibi for Danny McGeoghegan, south side beer hoodlum, on trial for the $60,000 robbery of the State Bank of Clearing.

DANIEL McGEOGHEGAN.

Ladd, the first defense witness, took the stand after two officials of the bank had identified McGeoghegan. Ladd testified that the south side hoodlum was in church at the time of the robbery at 10 o'clock on Dec. 6, 1930.

Excused Because of Toothache.

The funeral of his uncle, James Ladd, was held at that hour in a church at 87th and Aberdeen streets, the witness said, and he was positive that McGeoghegan was there. The bank was robbed at 10:20 o'clock on the same day. Ladd went into detail to describe the wake held for his uncle on the night of Dec. 5, and to assure the court that McGeoghegan was present and went to the funeral following the wake.

Ladd, while on the witness stand, identified himself as a deputy clerk in the court of Judge Donald S. McKinlay in the city hall. A telephone caller inquiring for Ladd in Judge McKinlay's courtroom was told that Ladd "had gone home because of a toothache."

Before the surprise move of the defense Lambert Bere, vice president of the bank, took the stand and pointed out McGeoghegan as one of the bandit gang.

Confirms Identification.

"That's the man," he said. "He came into the bank, his left hand holding his coat lapel and his fingers shielding the lower part of his jaw." The identification was corroborated by John Camphause, a teller, who followed Bere to the stand and pointed out McGeoghegan as one of the bandits.

Assistant State's Attorney Walker Butler, in his opening statement, had pointed to McGeoghegan as the leader of the gang who forced a bank official to lead him to a secret box in which a $40,000 pay roll was kept.

William L. Dewer, assistant cashier, was compelled to point out the box, thought to be known only to bank employes. Dewer did not see the bandit who followed him because he was ordered not to turn. After taking the pay roll the bandits also scooped $20,500 from the tellers' cages.

BANK TO HANDLE NEW TWO CENT CHECK TAX AND CHARGE PATRON

Washington, D. C., June 8.—(AP)—Collection of the new two cent tax on checks, drafts and similar instruments which goes into effect on June 21 will cause no inconvenience to bank depositors of the country, but will be handled entirely by the banks.

The internal revenue bureau said today the banks would pay the tax to the treasury at the end of the month entering the charge against the depositor's account. Counter checks which are cashed by the depositor at the bank are not taxed.

The new postal rates go into effect next month. The higher rates on second class mail become effective on July 1 while the three cent rate on first class mail is effective July 6.

Tax experts of the internal revenue bureau continued today to work out regulations under which the new billion dollars in taxes will be collected.

While the regulations will not be completed for some time, those applying to the taxes effective June 21 will be promulgated before that time. Most of the new excise taxes are levied upon the manufacturer and will be collected from that source.

Income tax—Jan. 1, 1932.
Gift taxes—June 6, 1932, after 5 p. m.
Manufacturers' excise taxes—June 21, 1932.
Miscellaneous taxes—June 21, 1932.

DIVORCEE TAKES POISON IN ROOM IN LOOP HOTEL

After taking three doses of slow acting poison at intervals within 48 hours, Mrs. Jeanie Martin, 27 year old divorcée, a guest at the Stevens hotel, became violently ill last evening. Dr. A. H. Baugher, the house physician, sent her to the Illinois Central hospital where she told Sergt. Fred Tapscott of the Hyde Park police, that she had a 7 year old son. She said she was "tired of living."

Record at the hotel revealed that since she registered Tuesday she had telephoned to Paul W. Pogue, an attorney living at 746 Bittersweet place, and Victor Alexander, 3163 Abbott court. Neither could be reached by police. The woman is expected to recover.

ONLY A FEW VETS IN U. S. HOSPITALS DISABLED IN WAR

Survey Shows Nation-Wide Abuses.

Washington, D. C., June 8.—[Special.]—Conditions like those at the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital in Chicago, where only 215 of the 1,615 veterans being treated at government expense suffered their disabilities in active service, prevail on a countrywide scale, according to the National Economy league.

This organization, of which Archibald B. Roosevelt is secretary, has presented a petition to President Hoover which asserts that the principle of just and fair veterans' relief has been abandoned for "a subsidy of a favored class that will destroy all confidence in the government unless it is stopped."

In the brief supporting this petition it is stated that the league is composed principally of men who saw service in the world war. These men, it is further related, have been astonished to learn that $450,000,000 of the $928,387,795 appropriation for veterans in the independent offices appropriation bill passed on April 9 will go to veterans who in fact suffered no disability in active service.

Many Not War Disabled.

"We expect our nation to be liberal toward men disabled on account of their service to the nation and liberal to the dependents of those who lost their lives in service," the document continued, "but we are emphatically demanding that the executive and legislative . . . branches of the nation take immediate steps to eliminate all governmental payments for veterans whose disabilities did not arise in fact from their war service. This is the principle on which the world war veterans' legislation was first conceived."

Breaking down the figures in the appropriation bill, the league shows that the country is paying $109,000,000 for pensions rising from wars previous to that with Spain. Spanish-American war pensions and hospitalization costs annually now reach $119,000,000. More than thirty years after the war with Spain these pensions and hospital expenses have just reached a new high level.

The league referred to this appropriation as "fantastic and unjustified." It was added that if the Spanish war system of benefits was applied to the 4,700,000 Americans who served in the world war the annual cost would exceed two and a half billions a year.

In the opinion of the petitioners for economy the Spanish war veterans' subsidy could be fairly cut to $10,000,000, a saving per year of $109,900,000.

Calls Half Unjustified.

Coming to the world war veterans, the league declared that the expenditures for the fiscal year ending with this month for these men alone would reach $700,000,000, and that half of that is going to men not harmed in any way by their service.

It was pointed out that in 1931 more than 75 per cent of the world war veterans treated in government hospitals had diseases or injuries not connected with their service in the field or in garrison. Also, it was asserted, the number of cases under treatment has mounted rapidly in late years. From 1925 to 1929 the number of patients remained between 24,000 and 27,500. It rose above 30,000 in 1930, beyond 34,000 in 1931, and in April, 1932, had climbed to 43,211.

This increase, according to the league, was all due to the influx of men with disabilities not connected with warfare or war service.

Recommendations of the body were that $104,000,000 be cut from disability allowances for world war veterans, $125,000,000 from disability compensation, $30,000,000 from administrative expense, $39,000,000 from hospital costs, $25,000,000 from military and naval insurance expenditures, and that the construction of proposed hospitals to cost $12,587,000 be abandoned. These slashes, with the Spanish veterans cut $109,000,000, would exceed $450,000,000 in savings.

"Bonus Army" Parades in Washington

Men who are in capital to press their demand for the payment of the full bonus voted for veterans of the world war marching down Pennsylvania avenue toward the capitol. The veterans moved in military order and the parade developed no trouble.

COURT DISTRIBUTES $300,000 INSURANCE OF NIXON-NIRDLINGER

Philadelphia, Pa., June 8.—(AP)—More than $320,000 from life insurance policies taken out by Frederick G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, theater magnate, who was slain in Nice, France, by his wife, the former Charlotte Nash, today was ordered distributed by the Orphans' court.

His widow, who had her name changed to Charlotte Isabelle Nixon after her acquittal of the charge of murder in his death, was not specifically awarded any of the life insurance money. She will come in for any share to which she may be entitled, however, when the court audits the general account of the executors of the estate.

His two children were awarded $25,061, to be held in trust during their minority. Mrs. Laura B. McKenna Nixon-Nirdlinger, his first wife, who was divorced, was awarded $70,964. The balance was ordered turned over to the estate.

PRIEST TO FLY TO CAPITAL AND ASK VETS TO GO HOME

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 8.—(AP)—The Rev. James R. Cox, rector of old St. Patrick's church, will fly to Washington tomorrow and urge the bonus seekers there to return to their homes by Monday.

Father Cox will also present the war veterans' plea for a cash bonus to congress.

The priest, who last winter led a caravan of jobless to the capital, received an invitation to go to Washington in the bonus seekers' behalf from Robert R. Williams, Cleveland war veteran, who said he was sent by the general committee of veterans.

Williams said 20,000 people, most of them former service men, will hear Father Cox speak at the tomb of the unknown soldier at 11:30 a. m., and that the priest will be one of a committee of three to appear before congress.

Williams told Father Cox that President Hoover's secretary had refused to grant a representative of the "bonus army" an interview.

BARRED BY VETS, REDS PLAN OWN DEMONSTRATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 8.—[Special.]—Barred by the veterans from last night's peaceful parade of the bonus army and rebuffed at every turn by city and federal officials, self-styled communist leaders today planned to ignore capitol barriers and stage a veterans' siege on congress Friday.

The demonstration has been substituted for the parade to capitol hill that radical organizers had announced for today.

In a defiant mood over the rough reception accorded members of the Workers' ex-Service Men's league, a radical organization, its officials declared the "rank and file" of the veterans would "storm" the capitol and carry their demands to the Vice President and speaker of the house.

Reds Ejected from Ranks of Vets.

Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner [Dem., Tex.] yesterday authorized David Lynn, architect of the capitol, to refuse a permit for any demonstration at the capitol. The league decided to take decisive action after hurriedly summoned Red recruits from several large cities were ejected summarily from ranks of the prospective marchers in last night's strange procession down Pennsylvania avenue.

The Reds claimed a membership of several thousand of the encamped veterans, but police estimated their strength at a few hundred. About 3,000 of the nonradical bonus advocates have arrived on the banks of the Potomac, while thousands more are en route from as far as the Pacific coast.

Faced by the daily arrival of new recruits for the bonus expeditionary forces and a rapidly dwindling food supply, district officials today were apprehensive over the future. Some predictions today were to the effect that at least 25,000 veterans will be in the capital prior to the adjournment of congress.

Last Free Meal Today.

Newspaper men who have been virtually living with the veterans since their arrival in the district report that most of the city's uninvited guests plan to stay here for several weeks longer. In the meantime the attention and publicity which has been accorded the bonus marchers on their arrival here has inspired thousands of other veterans to make the trek to Washington.

The army's commissary was nearly bare today and police have announced they will distribute the last municipal meal tomorrow morning. District authorities will offer trucks to the campers tomorrow for transportation out of town, but indications are that few will accept the proffered ride.

PASCHEN JURY LOCKED UP FOR SECOND NIGHT

Still deadlocked after 24 hours of deliberation, the jury debating the fate of Chris Paschen was locked up for the second night last night. At 9:30 o'clock Federal Judge John P. Barnes adjourned court until 10 o'clock this morning. The jury was rumored to be divided 9 to 3, but which way was not known. The jurors were given the case at 10:18 p. m. Tuesday.

Paschen, a former building commissioner, was on trial five weeks and two days, charged with evading $114,000 in income taxes in 1927 and 1928. His defense was that he spent most of the money he made in those years and owed no tax in 1927 and only $818 in 1928, the amount he paid.

Paschen Waits Outside Court.

Paschen and his brothers, Henry and Jacob, remained in the corridors adjoining Judge Barnes' courtroom all day and almost fifty friends and curiosity seekers kept them company. The defendant evinced little outward signs of worry, talking and laughing as the hours dragged along and no word came from the jury room.

Many rumors drifted about the federal building concerning the jury's deliberations, but little significance was attached to them.

One report said an observer in the building had watched the jury from a window not far from the juryroom and said that two or three of the jurors were taking little part in the deliberations of the others.

Jury Debate Sets Record.

The Paschen jury has been in deliberation longer than any in previous income tax cases. The jury in the Al Capone case debated eight hours, setting the previous record.

Paschen fought the indictment strenuously. His lawyer, Cassius Poust, a former first assistant United States attorney, had, as a government prosecutor, taken a major part in four successful tax prosecutions and he called more than 150 witnesses to the stand in Paschen's defense. Most of the government's evidence was handled by Assistant United States Attorney Samuel Clawson.

WATCHMAN ADMITS ARRANGING PLOT TO BOMB BENDIX PLANT

South Bend, Ind., June 8.—[Special.]—Gordon Miller, 28, special investigator for the Bendix Aviation corporation, was arrested today as being responsible for the plot that resulted in bombing the Bendix plant in South Bend Sunday. According to John B. Kuespert, chief of police, and Samuel P. Schwartz, prosecutor, Miller, with three other men, arranged the bombing to make his job "good" with the corporation. Miller is a former member of the Mishawaka police and fire departments.

The arrest of Miller followed quizzing of Wallace Woodward, 24, nominee of the Socialist Labor party for clerk of the Indiana Supreme court. Warrants have also been issued for the arrest of Britt Taylor and a fourth alleged participant, who have disappeared. They are former employes of the Bendix corporation.

Miller is also said by police to be responsible for letters threatening kidnaping officials of the Bendix corporation.

British Government Balks Move to Cut Tax on Beer

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 8. — The tax on British beer is to remain. Chancellor of Exchequer Neville Chamberlain refused to yield to the demand for reduction of the duty from $24.50 to $18.95 per barrel as provided in an amendment to the finance bill which was debated in the house of commons tonight. The chancellor admitted that beer was overtaxed, but said that the exchequer could not afford to lose the revenue. The admendment was rejected.

Wounded Man Says He Was Shot Standing in the Street

James Hamza, 21 years old, of 2453 South Harding avenue, walked into the South Town hospital this morning seeking aid for a gunshot wound in the right shoulder. He told police that he was shot while he was standing at 45th and Justine streets. He did not see his assailant nor did he know the cause, he said.

Santiago Is Shaken Up by a Slight Earthquake

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 8.—(AP)—A slight earthquake was felt here just before noon today. The damage was slight.

700 ARE RESCUED AS SPANISH SHIP SINKS OFF AFRICA

MADRID, June 8.—(AP)—Radio dispatches from Fernando Po, an island off the west coast of Africa, where the Spanish steamer Teide was wrecked today, said all 700 of her passengers and crew had been saved by the British vessel Attam. The Teide, formerly the German steamer Crefeld, of 3,829 gross tons, was reported entirely lost.

The Teide went aground off Oscura, southeast of Fernando Po, and the Attam arrived at 1 p. m. in response to S O S signals. She plans to land the rescued persons at Santa Isabel.

The cause of the accident is unknown, but it was suggested in shipping circles here that the shifting sands may have led the skipper into his difficulty. More than 500 Negroes were among the passengers. The vessel was en route from San Carlos to Bata, Spanish Guinea.

URGE PRIVATE HOSPITAL CARE FOR VETERANS

Treatment of veterans in private hospitals is urged in an editorial in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association. The editorial points out that thirteen states have no government veterans' hospital and that physicians believe that 90 per cent of all illnesses are better cured by the family physician in the community where the patient lives.

The journal replies to arguments of opponents of the plan that treatment is more costly in private hospitals. The veteran is allowed $80 a month while in the government hospital, the editorial says, and is kept longer than the time required for treatment in a private hospital. The argument in favor of private care is concluded with the statement that its value in holding homes together and in preventing pauperization cannot be measured in money.

Removal of Mayor Put Up to Governor.

and not as the representative of or as counsel to the joint legislative committee. My duty as counsel to this committee has been to adduce the facts that could be ascertained. That duty I have performed.

"I think the transcript of the testimony and the annexed brief analysis which I have made of it make the facts clear. I think the testimony justifies the following conclusions with respect to the conduct of the mayor of the city of New York, to wit:

"1. That he has failed properly to execute the duties which, as mayor of the city of New York, it was incumbent upon him to discharge; that he has so acted in his official capacity as to prejudice the best interests of the people of the city of New York; that, in the course of his official conduct, he has been actuated by improper and illegal considerations; that he has, while holding the office of mayor, been guilty of gross improprieties; and that his explanations of circumstances seriously reflecting upon the manner in which, as its chief executive, he has conducted the affairs of the city of New York, have been either so incomplete or so unworthy of credence as not to constitute acceptable explanations.

Accepts $26,000 in Bonds.

"2. That the mayor accepted ten $1,000 Reliance Bronze and Steel corporation bonds, ten $1,000 Parmelee Transportation company bonds, and thirteen $1,000 Hygrade Food Products corporation bonds, said thirty-three bonds being of the aggregate value of approximately $26,000, from J. A. Sisto, who then had a large financial interest in bringing about a limitation of the number of taxicabs operating in New York City and who was desirous of inducing the mayor to bring about such a limitation of the number of said taxicabs; that thereafter the mayor actively sponsored and caused to be enacted legislation, the passage of which was, to his knowledge, desired by the said J. A. Sisto and by certain corporations, in the securities of which the said J. A. Sisto and Samuel Ungerleider & Co. were substantially interested.

"3. That at a time when Samuel Ungerleider & Co., in association with the aforesaid J. A. Sisto, was substantially interested in the future of Parmelee securities, the value of which would be increased by a limitation of the number of taxicabs operating in New York City, Samuel Ungerleider & Co. paid Russell T. Sherwood, the mayor's financial agent, $22,000 more than the then market worth of shares of stock which Ungerleider & Co. purported to buy from Sherwood; that thereafter the mayor actively sponsored and caused to be enacted legislation, the passage of which was, to his knowledge, desired by the said J. A. Sisto and by certain corporations, in the securities which the said J. A. Sisto and Samuel Ungerleider & Co. were substantially interested.

Illegally Owned Stock.

"4. That the mayor, in violation of the provisions of section 1533 of the Greater New York charter, was the owner of ten $1,000 debenture bonds of Reliance Bronze and Steel corporation, convertible into stock of the corporation at the election of the holder thereof, with which corporation the city of New York on or about Feb. 3, 1931, entered into a contract for the purchase of 104 traffic light standards at a purchase price of approximately $43,000.

"5. That, to the great detriment of the city of New York and its inhabitants, the mayor, in violation of his duty, advocated and used the influence of his office to procure an award of a bus franchise for the boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn, and Queens to Equitable Coach company, Inc., a corporation which he knew was not fit or qualified to receive it."

Bus Franchise Pushed.

The letter, in paragraphs 6 and 7, points out the mayor influenced the award of a bus franchise to the Equitable Coach company and then proceeds:

"8. That on or about the day prior to the signing of the Equitable franchise, the mayor was provided with a letter of credit, in the amount of $10,000, which was paid for in cash by J. Allan Smith, one of the promoters, and the agent of all of the promoters, of the Equitable Coach Company, Inc., and that subsequently, and after the exhaustion of the said letter of credit, but while the Equitable Coach company was and continued unable to comply with the requirement of its franchise that it commence operations thereunder, and during the period when the Equitable Coach company was, from time to time, applying for and receiving from the board of estimate and apportionment extensions of the time within which to commence such operations, the said J. Allan Smith paid a draft in the amount of $3,000, plus interest, for the payment of which the mayor was liable.

"9. That the mayor permitted himself to be placed in a position inconsistent with the position which he, as a public officer, would at all times have maintained, by accepting substantial gratuities, which he calls "beneficences," from persons who might seek benefits from the municipal authorities. In the case of Paul Block, such "beneficences" were accepted from a person who subsequently became interested in a corporation which sought, and procured, approval from the board of transportation of a tile which said company intended to manufacture for use in the subway.

Charges Sherwood Was Dummy.

"10. That during the period of five years next succeeding his entering the office, Mayor Walker, for the purpose of concealing his interest therein, caused his financial transactions to be conducted through, and in the name of, Russell T. Sherwood; that his agent, during said period, deposited in bank and brokerage accounts close to a million dollars, of which upwards of $700,000 was in cash, and that the mayor has failed and refused satisfactorily to explain the sources of the moneys belonging to him and deposited by Sherwood in said accounts.

"11. That as soon as it became known that the joint legislative committee desired to examine the said Russell T. Sherwood with respect to his financial transactions on behalf of the mayor the said Sherwood disappeared and the mayor has failed and neglected either to cause his agent to return, or to cooperate with the committee in its efforts to locate him, thereby preventing the disclosure of facts essential to a complete investigation of the conduct of his office by the mayor.

In paragraph 12 Mr. Seabury says that when the mayor was ordered by subpoena to bring in all his personal financial records from Jan. 1, 1926, to date, and adds:

"That the mayor has not produced a single record showing his financial transactions during the year 1926 nor for the first five and a half months of 1927.

"That he has not produced the cancelled vouchers of his Chatham and Phoenix checking account for the period from Jan. 1, 1926, to January, 1927; for the six months, June 21, 1927, to Dec. 30, 1927; for any part of the year 1928; for any part of the year 1929; for the first eleven months of the year 1930; for the eight and a half months from April 18 to Dec. 31, 1931; nor for any part of the year 1932.

Calls Walker Evasive.

"13. That Mayor Walker, in his testimony before the joint legislative committee, was neither frank nor truthful, and that his purpose in being evasive and untruthful was to hinder and obstruct the joint legislative committee in the prosecution of the investigation which the legislature directed it to make, and to prevent an effective investigation of his activities as mayor of the city of New York.

"14. That the mayor neglected his official duty in permitting his corporation counsel to designate, in city compensation cases, doctors who split their fees with the mayor's brother.

"15. That in the matters above referred to, and generally since he assumed office, the mayor's conduct has been characterized by such malfeasance and nonfeasance in disregard of the duties of his office as mayor, and he has conducted himself to the prejudice of the city of New York and its inhabitants in a manner so far unbecoming the high office which he holds as to render him unfit to continue in the office of mayor."

GERMAN JOBLESS 1,500,000 HIGHER THAN YEAR AGO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 8.—Despite the fact that this is the time of the year when unemployment usually drops, Germany still has 6,883,000 jobless. Compared with last year, this figure is higher by 1,500,000. Officials had hoped unemployment would drop to 4,000,000 this month.

FORT SHERIDAN LAUNDRY SWEPT BY $100,000 FIRE

A brick building housing the post laundry at Fort Sheridan was destroyed by fire last night with an estimated loss of $100,000.

Expensive machinery was reduced to junk and the freshly pressed laundry of the 1,300 men and officers at the post went up in smoke.

Only the walls were standing when the Fort Sheridan fire department, aided by equipment from Lake Forest, Highland Park, and Highwood, extinguished the blaze about 10 p. m.

For a time the blaze threatened to spread to nearby stables and destroy 350 cavalry horses brought here for the bicentennial tournament on June 24 and July 4.

The entire personnel turned out to lead the horses from their stalls and the stables were saved.

U. S. TAX EVADER LOSES FIGHT TO ESCAPE PRISON

Washington, D. C., June 8.—(AP)—Efforts of Clyde L. King, Atlanta manufacturer, to avoid serving sentence for income tax evasion failed when the department of justice announced today that Attorney General Mitchell would not recommend that the President commute King's one year sentence.

The department said the attorney general had looked into the appeal for commutation and had found there were no favorable recommendations from officials concerned. Because of this Mitchell declined to forward King's petition to President Hoover, the only person who could commute the sentence.

Do You Inhale?

Silence may be golden

. . . but is that why other cigarette advertising is generally silent on this question?

WHEN the truth hurts—it's only natural to avoid the subject! Inhaling has long been an "untouchable" topic in cigarette advertising. And no wonder! In every tobacco leaf—even the finest, the mildest—nature hides certain impurities which, when not removed, are unkind to delicate membranes!

And since, knowingly or unknowingly, every smoker inhales some part of the smoke from his or her cigarette, Lucky Strike developed that great scientific process which removes certain impurities. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? More than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

GASTON B. MEANS TRIAL FOR LINDY SWINDLE OPENS

Jury Hears a Story Like a "Mystery Thriller."

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 8.—[Special.]—Gaston B. Means, sleuth with a penitentiary record, went on trial here today for the most fantastic of his many alleged escapades—the larceny and embezzlement of $104,000 from Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, given him in the expectation that he'd bring about the return of the Lindbergh baby last March.

As Means sat in the crowded courtroom, a fat, smirking defendant, District Attorney Leo A. Rover, in charge of the sensational prosecution, unfolded before a jury of eleven men and one woman a story as glamorous and giddy as any one would write. It had everything, from gangsters' machine guns to the Austrian ambassador's automobile; from mysterious code words to piles of greenbacks; from a Roman Catholic priest to a supposed sleeping powder with which to dispose of a supposed kidnaper.

Reveal Earlier Negotiations.

Everybody in the courtroom knew the main details of the Means-McLean story, of how the wealthy mother of three living children and one dead little boy had given the former front-page detective the money in the assurance that he would bring little Charles Lindbergh back to his distracted parents.

But the crowd was not prepared for a revelation made early in his recital by Attorney Rover. This was that Means, before Mrs. McLean had summoned him, had gone to Col. M. Robert Guggenheim of Washington, brother of Harry Guggenheim, aviation associate of Col. Lindbergh, and had started secret negotiations with him.

About fifty hours after the famous kidnaping, Rover today declared, Means got to work on the Guggenheims and so aroused their interest that Col. Guggenheim agreed to get a "neutral automobile," ready on demand for the kidnapers to go and get the baby. The colonel then went to the Austrian embassy, where the ambassador, according to Attorney Rover, immediately offered his big limousine, liveried chauffeur and all.

Turns to Mrs. McLean.

But the automobile was never used. As the Guggenheims' interest mounted, said Mr. Rover, Means lost interest. That, he pointed out, was because on March 3 Mrs. McLean came to him and asked him if he could find the lost baby.

Means told Mrs. McLean, so the prosecutor maintains, that he was the right man to come to, for just a few days earlier a famous underworld character whom he had met during his stay at the Atlanta federal penitentiary had come to him, offered to cut him in a quarter on a "famous 'nap' case." He had, the story goes, spurned the offer; but now he was sure the "nap" case was the spectacular Lindbergh one.

The day following, Mr. Rover asserted, Means returned to assure Mrs. McLean that he had contacted the kidnapers.

Elaborate Plans Described.

The following plans were carefully described to the jury: The enlistment of Capt. E. S. Land, a cousin of Lindbergh's, a sort of personal emissary to Hopewell; the enlistment of the Rev. Father Francis J. Hurney as a church emissary to whom the baby should be returned.

Later there was, said Mr. Rover, the conference at Mrs. McLean's Massachusetts avenue mansion, where she, the sleuth, and the priest counted out the $100,000 worth of bills, old money, which she had got that day from the bank.

Still later, the prosecutor's opening statement alleged, Means demanded a further $4,000 (and none of this money was ever marked, or the numbers recorded) for expense money for the kidnapers.

Mrs. McLean "Sweetheart."

The courtroom hunched forward to hear Attorney Rover reveal the code words which he said Means had made them use: Means was number 27, or Hogan; the kidnapers were number 19, or Fox; Father Hurney was number 7, Mrs. McLean was Sweetheart. And the little baby they were supposed to be about to receive safe and well was referred to variously as Package, Manuscript, or Book.

After the $100,000 was turned over to him on March 7, Means, said Mr. Rover, kept stalling the eager Mrs. McLean, who waited at Fairview, her Maryland estate.

Then, charged Mr. Rover, came details, excuses, a suggestion that the baby be returned to Miami. Mrs. McLean's counter suggestion that it be done down at her home in Aiken, S. C. There came Means' dark talk of machine guns at either end of the quiet little street in Aiken, as protection when the final dramatic restoration was accomplished.

There came dire hints from him, Rover told the jury, that he might have to "bump off" one of the kidnapers, and the alleged recommendation of Mrs. McLean that a more gentle substitute, the use of a sleeping potion, be resorted to.

On March 22 Means is alleged to have brought to Mrs. McLean "a very dangerous man" whom he described as "possibly one of the killers." This man promised her she would receive little Charles Lindbergh safe within 48 hours. But nothing happened, Mr. Rover recalled.

IOWAN HUNTED AS EMBEZZLER DIES IN FLORIDA

Ex-University Treasurer and Bank Head.

Daytona Beach, Fla., June 8.—(AP)—The body of a man who died here yesterday was identified tonight as that of William J. McChesney, former treasurer of the Iowa State university, and facing charges of embezzlement in Iowa.

The identification was made at an undertaking establishment by E. Sangster, formerly of Iowa, who said he had known McChesney for 25 years. Sangster now lives at Lake Helen, Fla.

McChesney had been living here for three months under the alias of W. J. Andrews of Chicago. Persons who made his acquaintance said he hinted his wife was in Paris seeking a divorce.

Theft of Funds Charged.

Iowa City, Ia., June 8.—(AP)—W. J. McChesney, former University of Iowa treasurer, who was reported in dispatches to have died yesterday at Daytona Beach, Fla., was under charges of embezzling university funds.

The charges, contained in warrants issued at the request of Attorney General John Fletcher, dealt with the handling of interest on the funds. McChesney also was a former president of the defunct First National bank and the Farmers' Loan and Trust company.

Fletcher, following an investigation of the treasurer's office, announced his findings on March 31, listing nine items alleging irregularities in handling of the university finances, several of them concerning loans of university funds on mortgages.

Fletcher also had charged that McChesney permitted his two banks, as holders of second or third mortgages on property which the university had a prior lien, to receive proceeds from the mortgaged property "without regard for the lien of the first mortgage."

Unable to Find Him.

McChesney, who had been in ill health, was not in Iowa City at the time the warrants were issued and officers have since failed to locate him in order to serve the warrants.

McChesney also faced several civil suits brought by prominent Iowa City residents seeking an accounting of funds they had placed under his administration during his tenure as president of the two banks.

McChesney was born at Iowa City Feb. 23, 1871, and was appointed secretary of the University of Iowa on Oct. 3, 1903. On May 28, 1911, he was appointed secretary and treasurer of the university and resigned as secretary in 1912 to devote all his time to the office of treasurer.

He resigned as treasurer of the university Feb. 16, 1932, shortly after submitting his resignation as president of the First National bank and the Farmers' Loan and Trust company, which he had headed for about 15 years.

The widow and two children, Fred W. and Helen, survive.

Riot Suspect Charges a Policeman Beat Him

Policeman Joseph W. Aim of the West North avenue station, who was knocked down, beaten and robbed of his revolver by rioting communists on March 11 in Humboldt park, was charged yesterday with assault with a deadly weapon by Gust Johnson, 1626 North Troy street, one of those arrested after the riot. Johnson charged that he was rearrested on April 23, charged with taking Aim's revolver, and was beaten with a blackjack by the policeman. Aim denied the charge. Municipal Judge Leon Edelman continued the hearing until today.

LICENSE ISSUED TO CUT PRICE DAIRY COMPANY

Plans to open a "cut price" milk business in Chicago were being made yesterday after the issuance of a dairy plant license to the Meadowmoor Dairy company, 1334 South Peoria street. The license was issued by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health. The dairy company announced that it expected to start soliciting customers Saturday morning.

The plant was the target of an attempted bombing three weeks ago, when a watchman picked up a lighted bomb and threw it into the street, causing considerable damage to neighboring buildings. The dairy company said yesterday it would sell quarts of milk at 9 cents, 2 cents under the regular Chicago price, and pints at 6 cents, one cent under the regular price.

Jury Commends Policeman for Killing Young Bandit

West Park Policeman William Campbell, who shot and killed Philip Vine, 18 years old, 1319 South Spaulding avenue, Tuesday night when the latter attempted to rob him at California avenue and Roosevelt road, was commended by a coroner's jury at the inquest yesterday. The jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

2 TRUST FUNDS LEFT BY J. P. MORGAN NOW NEAR DOUBLE VALUE

New York, June 8.—[Special.]—Two $3,000,000 trust funds created for his two daughters in the will of the elder J. Pierpont Morgan have increased to almost $5,000,000 each since the financier's death on March 31, 1913, it was disclosed today by an accounting filed in Surrogate's court.

Another trust fund of $100,000 established for Mrs. Jenny Bigelow Tracy, widow of Mr. Morgan's brother-in-law, has increased to $502,737, according to the accounting filed by the trustees of the three funds: J. P. Morgan, Herbert L. Satterlee, Junius Spencer Morgan and the late Lewis Cass Ledyard.

The $3,000,000 fund for Mrs. Juliet P. Hamilton was appraised at $4,983,383 on Jan. 27 last. The trustees reported receiving $5,351,206 in principal since 1924 and expending $367,823. They have paid $1,733,568 in income, leaving an income balance of $5,115. The capital increase was realized from securities valued on the books at $2,135,659, which were sold for $4,314,364.

Similarly the increase in the value of securities in the $3,000,000 fund for the other daughter, Mrs. Louisa P. Satterlee, increased the value of the trust to $4,972,906 on Feb. 8 last.

BETWEEN RUSH HOURS FELLY TALKS ABOUT OIL

An Interview by ROBERT J. CASEY

Chicago Daily News Reporter

WHATEVER the cook books may have to say about the best lubricant for a skillet, many a student of the University of Wisconsin owes his morning flapjacks to something besides lard substitute.

Take the word of Alfred Felly for it, and Mr. Felly ought to know inasmuch as he is the compiler of the flapjacks.

Mr. Felly runs a restaurant at 814 University Avenue, Madison, Wisconsin, opens his place early in the morning and is the last one to leave it at night. Between there and home he drives a Chrysler.

"I got to using Iso-Vis Oil because somebody told me it would let you start your car on cold winter mornings and wouldn't burn out on hot summer days," Mr. Felly told his interviewer. "That point may not mean much to some people but it means everything to me. My garage isn't heated and many winters before I began to use Iso-Vis I had trouble getting out of it. I open up here at 5 o'clock in the morning—in both summer and winter. At that time there aren't any cars or busses running out this way. If my car stalls it means no breakfast for quite a lot of customers.

"I've driven this car 39,000 miles in the past three years—mostly between here and home—and I've never had any sort of engine trouble with it. The valves have never been ground. If there's any carbon in the motor, I haven't heard about it yet . . ." He spun the starter and let the engine idle.

"The car tells its own story," he said. "There's no more noise in that motor than there was the day I got the car. Listen to it for yourself. Cars are like salads—you've got to lubricate them."

Mr. Felly's 39,000 trouble-free miles prove again what Iso-Vis has demonstrated in laboratory tests and in A. A. A. tests on the Indianapolis Speedway—Positive Lubrication Protection. Iso-Vis (a Standard Oil product) will not thin out from dilution. See the Ball and Bottle Test at Standard Oil service stations and dealers.

REVOLT FLARES UP IN HONDURAS; 51 DIE IN BATTLE

Three Provinces Placed Under Martial Law.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, June 8.—(AP)—The tension of campaigning for the October presidential election has snapped into revolution in the north, and 51 men have been slain in battle.

The conflict became known today in an announcement that Gen. Justo Umana and 500 government troops clashed with a slightly larger rebel force at La Barranca yesterday.

The government said the revolutionists carried the colors of Gen. Tuburcio Carias Andino, Nationalists candidate for the presidency, and that after a battle of several hours they were routed. The loyal troops were said to be pursuing the rebels into the mountains.

Gen. Andino issued a statement condemning the revolt and asserting that he and his followers had had nothing to do with it.

Meanwhile, President Mejia Colindres declared marital law in the departments of Cortes, Santa Barbara and Copan to cope with the situation there. The rest of the country was said to be quiet.

Chilean Workers Pledge Aid.

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 8.—(AP)—Workers of Chile tonight offered to take up arms in support of the new Socialist government.

Labor groups, after two mass meetings, submitted to the government a proposal for the formation of a Republican Socialist guard, composed of workers, who would be given arms.

The guard would assist the revolutionary junta, headed by Carlos Davila, former ambassador to Washington, at any time it needed such aid.

The junta, which earlier had promised a throng of laboring people that the welfare of the workers would be its first concern, said it would give consideration to the plan for armed assitance.

Demand Club for Selves.

More than 5,000 unemployed men demanded at a massmeeting today that the government turn over to them the Club de la Union, owned by an organization of wealthy and fashionable residents of Santiago.

The jobless, who assembled in Boulevard Alameda, the city's principal street, asserted that the club building should be used by working class people as a social gathering place.

While the massmeeting was going on the new government pressed ahead with preparations to deal with the nation's outstanding problems.

Plan to Seize Sugar Refinery.

It was announced that a plan was under consideration which would bring about public operation of the sugar refinery at Vina de Mar. The refinery would be taken over from private control and would be operated by a committee.

Orders were issued today to reopen the law courts, which were suspended as a result of the Socialist coup d'état which ousted the régime of President Juan Esteban Montero Saturday.

The new administration took under consideration a plan to swap Chilean nitrates for soviet Russia petroleum. This plan was advanced after the dwindling supply of gasoline had made it necessary to resort to rationing.

Banks to Reopen Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, June 8.—After being closed for three days since the Socialist junta came into power, Chilean banks will open tomorrow and renew ordinary transactions. It is believed, however, that the government will place restrictions on withdrawals to prevent runs.

Bank managers have held several meetings to consider the situation. Walter Lebig was appointed superintendent of a bank controlling bureau and Bruno Krumenacker was appointed controller general.

Stock exchange transactions tomorrow, when the exchanges will reopen, are keenly awaited. A heavy fall of prices is expected. It is pointed out that the government will not control exchange operations. This task has been left in the hands of exchange directors of Santiago and Valparaiso, who intend to postpone transactions in case there is an exaggerated tendency to low quotations.

Dedication Saturday

Events on the three day World's Fair program for delegates to the Republican national convention were announced yesterday by exposition officials. The entertainment will start on Saturday with the dedication of the Wigwam, one of the Lincoln replica buildings. Judge Henry Horner, Democratic nominee for governor, will speak.

Outboard motorboat races will be held in the exposition lagoon early Saturday night. Powerboat races, Boy Scout ceremonies, and a fireworks display will follow. Other races and aquatic events will be held on Sunday, with a vesper service in the court of the hall of science at twilight.

The naval reserves will stage a drill and races on Monday, followed by a tug of war between two elephants labeled "Wet" and "Dry." Then will come a parade of yachts, a demonstration of life saving by the coast guard, an illuminated smoke screen laid down by planes of the 6th corps army area, and fireworks.

FAMILY OF EIGHT KILLED IN THREE TRAFFIC MISHAPS

Tacoma, Wash., June 8.—(AP)—Four survivors of a family of eight were killed in a grade crossing accident in Puyallup, today, traffic deaths thus wiping out the entire family.

Mrs. Christina Richards and her three children, Robert, 21; Tolden, 35, and Gertrude, 18, were killed when their small truck was hit by a train this morning.

Three children, Margaret F., Herman, and Delbert, were killed in a train-automobile crash near Orting, Wash., Aug. 24, 1927, while the father, Uriah Richards, was killed when he was struck by an automobile at McMillan two years ago.

KILLED BETWEEN 2 FREIGHT CARS.

East St. Louis, Ill., June 8.—(AP)—Peter Dodd, 61, car inspector for the Missouri Pacific railroad, was killed when caught between two freight cars that were being switched in the company's yards at Dupo late yesterday.

PATRIOTIC LOAN FAILS; ARGENTINE FINANCE AT CRISIS

Wealthy Citizens Spurn Government Securities.

BY HAROLD TATAM.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, June 8.—Argentina has arrived at a critical moment in her history. Faced with a difficult financial crisis from which there was no escape by the time honored device of obtaining a foreign loan, she determined to launch an internal loan of $125,000,000. It was anticipated that by paying up government debts, or a large portion of them, with the proceeds of this loans, the country would once more enter easy street, with her credit abroad intact, or even improved, and the slump in the exchange value of her currency definitely arrested.

An improving trade balance, which bids fair to reach $125,000,000 by the end of the year, gave encouragement to such hopes. But the "Patriotic Loan" which was to bring about this state of affairs has 'flopped' badly. A fortnight after its launching a bare $20,000,000 had been subscribed by the public, and a very large proportion of this amount was subscribed by foreign residents or by foreign entities established in the country.

Wealthy Refuse to Subscribe.

It would not be fair to deduce from this that the Argentine citizen has small faith in his own government's securities, but it is a fair deduction that no investment other than a mortgage upon land at 8 or 10 per cent interest holds much attraction for him.

It is a noteworthy fact that while fifty millionaire families in the province of Buenos Aires alone possess 12,000,000 acres of land valued for taxation purposes at $250,000,000, very few among them figure in the published list of subscribers to the loan.

This failure of the Argentine people to respond to the government's appeal to take up the Patriotic Loan with enthusiasm automatically converts the the administration's discount of unissued bonds with the conversion office from a "temporary accommodation" into a sheer emission of paper money which is not unlikely to entail a further slump in the exchange value of the peso, and continue to restict imports to a negligible quantity.

Fears Ottawa Parley.

To the uncertainty regarding the future resulting from this bad jolt to official complacency must be added the uncertainty regarding the outcome of the coming imperial conference at Ottawa, from which under no circumstances can Argentina gain anything but from which she may lose a very great deal.

At present there is no indication that the government is prepared to convert the patriotic loan into a forced loan, but unless a totally unexpected spurt in subscriptions should materialize promptly, there is certain to be a demand from the Socialist opposition in the chamber of deputies that some such measure should be taken.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

THE TRIBUNE yesterday carried an account of the arrest for drunkenness in De Kalb of Joe Mooney, 48 years old, who claimed that he rode Black Gold to victory in the 1924 Kentucky Derby. The jockey who rode the horse is J. D. Mooney, 30 years old, 287 15th street, Chicago Heights, now ill at his home.

We are continually gaining new patrons—men who have found Sulka's a house where the best materials are in profusion, where expert fitting is unrivalled, and where pleasing service is paramount. Present economic conditions make necessary a careful study of values, and people are thus better informed than ever before—better judges of quality, more particular in buying, and more discriminating in taste.

It is largely the better qualities that have proved to be a real economy. Nevertheless, the persistent demand for lower prices is tending to increase cheaper grades of merchandise. By strictly adhering to our high standard of quality, priced as low as possible, we have maintained our reputation for only the best and also have greatly increased the prestige of our four shops—New York, Chicago, London and Paris.

Here's a delicious ready-to-eat cereal that will help. Made especially for active people. Serve Kellogg's PEP Bran Flakes.

These better bran flakes are full of a flavor men love. But even more important, they're filled with whole-wheat nourishment. Whole wheat is a favorite food for active people. Nature has made it a storehouse of the food elements that build and nourish. And just enough bran to be mildly laxative. An ideal dish for the whole family.

Have Kellogg's PEP Bran Flakes for breakfast tomorrow. For your own lunch. For the children's supper. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. In the red-and-green package. Quality guaranteed.

BRITAIN, FRANCE TO HOLD 'PRIVATE' PARLEY ON DEBTS

MacDonald to Visit Paris Over the Week-End.

LONDON, June 8.—(AP)—Great Britain and France, long at odds over post-war finances, today decided to hold preliminary discussions before entering the Lausanne war debts and reparations conference next Thursday.

This was revealed today when Prime Minister MacDonald accepted an invitation from Premier Herriot of France for a week-end get-together in Paris.

MacDonald, accompanied by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, and by his daughter, Ishbel, will go to Paris Saturday morning.

Herriot Adopts "Reciprocity."

Exactly what trend these conversations will take was not divulged. Officially, Great Britain long has stood for absolute cancellation of all war-time obligations, but her statesmen have more recently shown a disposition to compromise.

France has not been willing in the past to give up her independent payments from Germany. In his cabinet declaration yesterday, however, Premier Herriot announced that he would go to Lausanne with a policy of "reciprocity," although he would not stand for any treaty revision.

The decision to hold preliminary discussions was announced after the cabinet had met today to discuss the Lausanne conversations. It was denied that the cabinet had decided to follow a "bold policy" at Lausanne.

Ishbel to Nurse Father.

Miss MacDonald will go along to see that her father obeys the doctors' orders for the care of his eyes, both of which were operated upon recently. A semi-official statement said the prime minister's eyes were showing satisfactory progress, which would in the future be dependent upon conservation of eyesight.

A dispatch from Paris tonight said MacDonald's acceptance of the week-end talk had been received and that both premiers would leave for Geneva and Lausanne on Monday.

The purpose of the Lausanne conference is to find an answer to the Hoover moratorium on war debts and reparations, which will end on June 30. The United States has declined to take part in these discussions.

Herriot to Meet Von Papen.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, June 8.—The German delegation to the reparations conference will leave for Lausanne next Tuesday. In connection with this it is recalled that when the League of Nations union met at Lyons in 1924 Edouard Herriot, who then was premier, refused to receive Count von Bernstorff on the ground that he had supposedly supported Frans von Papen's war activities in the United States. Now Herriot and Von Papen, who is now chancellor of Germany, will meet at the council table.

NO VACATION PAY FOR MINNESOTA STATE WORKERS

St. Paul, Minn., June 8.—(AP)—Payless vacations for state officials and employés under his jurisdiction were ordered by Gov. Floyd B. Olson today as an economy measure.

He estimated the step, affecting 6,000 of the state's 10,000 workers, would save $360,000 this year.

Those receiving $100 or more monthly will be off duty two weeks without pay. Those receiving less than $100 monthly will get a vacation of two weeks, one with pay and one without.

Gunmen Rout Employes and Pour Acid on Cloth

Two gunmen yesterday drove seven employés of the Elvin Lester company, 228 South Franklin street, into a rear room and poured acid over woolen goods valued at $3,000. The management, according to Sergt. James Keating of the central police, attributed the attack to business rivalry engendered by the company's recent entry into the retail tailoring business after 20 years of activity as an importer of woolens.

FIRE IN FURRIERS' STORE.

Fire started by crossed wires yesterday caused $200 damage in the basement of D. Kaplan & Co., furriers at 61 West Austin avenue. Furs valued at $200,000 are stored on the first floor, store employés said.

Rear Admiral Watt T. Cluverius, now commander of a cruiser division of the scouting force on the Atlantic seaboard, will replace Rear Admiral Walter S. Crosley as commandant at the Great Lakes Naval Training station on Aug. 20, according to an announcement from the navy department yesterday. Admiral Crosley is being transferred to command of a division of the battle fleet in Pacific waters and will leave for his new post Aug. 1. The wife of the new Great Lakes commander is a daughter of Admiral W. T. Sampson, senior officer of the United States navy in the Spanish-American war.

GREIN PICTURED AS THE APOSTLE OF KRAUT JUICE

City Sealer Joe Grein was pictured yesterday in the court of Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward as a benefactor who made the public sauerkraut juice conscious. Grein is not on trial, but the sauerkraut was arraigned with less reputable corkscrews and malt seized two years ago in a government raid on a store owned by Grein and J. Pahls.

JOE GREIN.

The government has brought an action against $25,000 worth of Grein's seized merchandise in order that it may be destroyed as illegal under the Volstead act. Assistant United States District Attorney Heber T. Dotson, in his opening statement charged that articles for the manufacture of beer and flavors that could be used only in making liquor were sold in the Grein establishment at 210 West Madison street.

Defense Attorney William F. Waugh pronounced the store legitimate and pointed out that tomato juice, sauerkraut juice, and loaded cigars were listed, and that the malt, filters, and other materials could be used for other things than manufacture of beer. He then told the jury how Grein had first discovered the medicinal value of the sauerkraut juice.

Hugh T. McGrath and Edward Deardon, government agents, took the witness stand and told of the purchase that led to the raid.

Trustee for Assets of Feinberg Kinsman Named

Arthur Wick yesterday was appointed trustee of the assets of Irving B. Tow, real estate dealer and brother-in-law of Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg, by Referee in Bankruptcy Harry A. Parkin. Tow filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, listing liabilities of $463,913 and assets of $742,967. The assets consist largely of real estate.

BAVARIA BLOCKS "DICTATORSHIP" PLAN IN PRUSSIA

Hitlerites Unable to Form New Government.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 8.—Bavaria today blocked a threat by the federal government of Chancellor Franz von Papen to establish a dictatorship in Prussia, Germany's biggest state, and tonight the question of a new Prussian government was placed before Adolf Hitler.

The Prussian storm arose when Chancellor von Papen asked Hans Kerrl, president of the Prussian diet, to hasten the formation of a new state government. Kerrl promised to do his best, but failed when the Centrists refused to support a purely Hitlerite nationalist cabinet. Without the votes of the Centrists, the Hitlerites cannot command a majority in the diet.

Von Papen Makes Threat.

Von Papen then threatened to install a "commissar" to administer the state. This aroused the ire of the other German states. Bavaria lodged a formal complaint, warning Von Papen that it would consider the appointment of a commissar as interference in state rights and that it would not tolerate such interference.

Von Papen backed down, issuing a statement saying that the government did not intend to interfere, but would adhere strictly to the provisions of the republican constitution.

Tonight Kerrl and another Hitlerite leader, Wilhelm Kube, went to Munich to ask Hitler how he wishes to handle the situation.

Slap on New Taxes.

While the parties were thus bickering the Prussian administration, which is being carried on by the previous cabinet pending the formation of a new government, issued an emergency decree intended to balance Prussia's budget. The decree includes a tax on cattle for slaughter and an increase in the rent tax. Salaries of officials will be curtailed by 2½ per cent. These salaries were previously cut 30 per cent. The money saved on salaries will be repaid with interest in 1937. The decree also provides for a reduction in old age pensions.

Prussia, which lacks cash to pay salaries due on June 20, hopes the decree will enable it to obtain a loan of $9,000,000 to avoid bankruptcy.

Centrists Repudiate Cabinet.

The Centrists held a meeting in the reichstag today. Dr. Ludwig Kaas, Centrist leader, declared: "The powers in force now will realize that they have chosen the wrong way by returning to the old political groups and playing with anti-social forces, social prerogatives and ideas of restoration. They endanger Christian society, and therefore we are against them."

For the first time in his career, Hitler will address Germany over the radio next Tuesday, June 14. In previous campaigns Hitler was not allowed to speak over the radio, since it was controlled by the government. Hitler's speech will initiate the campaign for the reichstag election to be held July 31.

Presidents of the German states are due in Berlin tomorrow to attend a confidential conference with Von Papen, when he will divulge his "concrete plans."

Complete Jury to Try Vernon Royals for Rape

A jury was completed yesterday in the Criminal court of Judge James J. Kelly to try Vernon Royals, 17 year old convicted murderer, on a charge that he raped Mrs. Jane Meyers, 53 years old, 5241 Ardmore avenue. Royals is under sentence of 25 years for the murder of Mrs. Agnes Lavander, who was shot to death in the Forest Glen forest preserve in February, 1930. The session was taken up by an argument over the admissibility of Royal's confession after the jury had been excluded. Royals claims that he was beaten by police until he signed a false confession.

A RED FLAG COMES DOWN.

The red flag came down with a run in Iowa when Smith Wildman Brookhart lost the Republican primary by a plurality which at this writing is 49,000 and will be more when all returns are in. The event has a meaning beyond the limits of Iowa.

Brookhart began his political career as a representative of the agrarian protest against railroad conditions. The voters of Iowa wanted stricter regulation, defense against what they deemed unfair exactions. Brookhart voiced that discontent and its demands. He rode that horse hard to his own political profit until it died under him. Meanwhile he took on labor, and with this combination he was too strong for any adversary that yet appeared. He staged a big drama with himself as the hero and Wall Street, Big Business, the Power Trust as the dragons he was out to slay. It looked like a meal ticket for life for Brookhart, his relations and friends.

But by this time he had got far away from the realities known to the men and women who sent him to Washington. He had joined there the group of socialistic radicals who were working for the expansion of federal power and bureaucratic domination of American enterprise and individualism. It has taken some years for the full meaning of Brookhart's development to come home. But the people of Iowa, we have been always confident, are not for socialism, disguised or not. They are not for the abolition of Iowa as a sovereign commonwealth or for setting up a gigantic government machine at Washington to run all their affairs. They still demand that the representatives shall represent them, and not a group of radicals who want to do their thinking for them, to pile up public debt upon them, and to rule them from afar.

Brookhart, dressed up as a champion of the plain people against the dragons of this, that and the other, no longer represented Iowa, but a tendency and policies which Iowa only wanted one good straight look at to repudiate. All the big show needed was some Iowa horse sense, and Henry Field brought it into the field. Field showed up the Brookhart bunk and the stage fire has fizzled out.

Iowa is a commonwealth of Americans, quite able to defend American rights and institutions and with no disposition to throw away their heritage in exchange for the bogus promises of socialism. Other states now represented by the clique of which Brookhart made himself a vociferous member are not going to submit much longer to their misrepresentation by self-styled progressives whose ideas of progress have no roots in America and would land us in a tyranny of overwhelming debt and bureaucratic rule.

COMMUNISM IN CHILE.

The revolution which has just taken place in Chile is interesting because it may mark the beginning of a new revolutionary wave in Latin America; and more especially because the socialist and communist elements seem to have the upper hand in the new government. While it is true that the new president, Carlos Davila, is not much of a communist by ordinary standards, the fact remains that the declaration of the new government is directed against private property and in favor of government control of mining, manufacture, and distribution; and there are two avowed communists in the new cabinet.

Reports of a counter-revolution suggest that the new government and its program have not met with undivided approval. What the complaint of the counter-revolutionaries may be is not yet clear, but what it might be is altogether obvious. Chile is one of the last countries in the world which can undertake a communist experiment with any hope of success. Chile has been able to prosper only by virtue of its export trade, chiefly in nitrates, iodine, and copper. Its present difficulties arise almost entirely from the collapse of the markets abroad. Since the war, the electro-chemical processes for extracting nitrates from the air have created competition for the nitrate mines; farmers the world over have been obliged to reduce their purchases of fertilizers; and copper is selling at the lowest price in history. Under the circumstances Chile was doomed to suffer from unemployment.

As might have been expected, her substantial export balances of the middle '20s have disappeared. An annual export balance of around 75 million dollars in '27, '28, and '29 was changed into an import balance of 8 million dollars in 1930, the last year for which full statistics are available, and since then the trend has been even more markedly against Chile. Without exports, Chile can, perhaps, feed her population, though a shortage of sugar, coffee, rice, and tea would be felt, but she cannot clothe her people or supply them with many of the manufactured products to which they are accustomed.

The new government has promised work to all, but how that work is to be paid for is another question. If no one wants Chile's nitrates and copper ore, there is no use extracting them from the ground. All that a communist revolution in Chile can be expected to bring about is the certainty that foreign capital, without which Chile cannot equip herself for competition in world markets, will shun the country.

Relatively speaking, Russia is much more nearly independent of the world than Chile. Nine-tenths of the Russian population was almost self-supporting on the land when the revolution broke and the proportion since then has not greatly changed in spite of the efforts to industrialize. Half of Chile's population of 4 million live in towns of 1,000 or more and are not self-sustaining. An experiment which could continue for fifteen years in Russia hasn't a chance for success in Chile unless there is a marked improvement at once in the world's economic outlook. And if that comes, Chile's revolution will serve as a hindrance rather than a help to her economic recovery.

GARNER POSTOFFICES.

Other towns and cities are being heard from in protest against the Garner postoffice pork bill. They say they do not want unnecessary federal expenditure under pretense of relief. These protests should be taken up by every community whose citizens are intelligent enough to see through the Garner fallacy and realize that any immediate benefits they may derive from it will cost more than they are worth. As for local pride, there will be reason for pride in not having a Garner postoffice, for such an edifice will be only a monument to bad public policy and unscrupulous politics.

Only a few days remain to make the protest of citizenship against this huge waste felt in congress. Communities and organizations should act at once.

NEW PUMPS ON A DRY WELL.

When the senate tried its hand at the economy bill (courtesy title) it was apparent that the high cost statesmen were in general the high tax statesmen. The men who opposed reduction in expenditure were the men who sought the imposition of taxes. This probably is logical. The doctrine of confiscation requires that all the sluices be kept open. One system runs from the productive wealth to the federal treasury, the other from the treasury to the outlets in government spending. The outgoing system works the pumps and the theory of high spending and high taxation is that if the pumps are kept going the well must fill itself.

PARKING IN THE LOOP.

The traffic engineer of the street car company has presented a statistical argument to the city council to show that merchants in the loop are better off as a result of the present parking prohibitions than they would have been if no such restrictions had been enforced. The figures are impressive, but it must be remembered that they come from a prejudiced source, interested in moving cars through the loop rather than in doing business within the loop.

It seems fair to assume that the merchants know their own affairs better than the street car company does. If the merchants think their business has been injured by a no parking regulation, the presumption is in their favor. And certainly if they have suffered severe losses as a result of the ordinance they are entitled to relief. Their taxes are among the heaviest in the city and are as high as they are only because the sites they occupy command more business than any other sites in the city. The city which taxes the loop because of the large business it does and then restricts that business by onerous regulation is not playing fair. Such a policy, if persisted in, not only will injure the merchants in the loop but must result, as well, in reducing the city's income from taxation.

The prohibition of parking in the downtown district is doubly unfair in view of the absence of similar restrictions in other parts of the city. Though the taxpayers have been put to great expense to widen outlying business streets, many of these streets are rendered almost impassable by parked automobiles. Street cars can move through the loop with less delay than through some of the outlying sections.

Property owners in the loop are justified in asking a modification of the present rules. No one wants unrestricted parking downtown, but half-hour parking should be permitted, at least experimentally, for a period of months.

Editorial of the Day

BACK TO THE FARM.

[Beloit Daily News.]

No aspect of the depression is much more interesting than the way in which out-of-work city people have been slipping back to the farm lately.

In nearly every part of the country there is going on a quiet but steady exodus from the city to the country. Abandoned farms are getting new tenants. Men who have toiled in factories for years are getting out on the open acres to try their hands at agriculture. Children used to cramped city streets are discovering that country fields can make fine playgrounds.

To be sure, the plight of agriculture is very little, if any, better than that of industry. The farmer is having his troubles just as the city man is—has been having them, in fact, for years. Prices paid for farm produce are down, and if the number of farmers is to increase they probably will go still lower.

But the exodus continues; for when it gets right down to a struggle for the bare necessities of life, the man on a farm enjoys an enormous advantage over the city chap.

The farmer may be plagued by mortgages, high taxes, overproduction and so on; but, unless he is a one crop specialist, he doesn't starve to death. He may not have a dollar in the bank, or any immediate prospects of getting any, but he has food in his larder and he knows where tomorrow's meal is coming from.

The factory hand seems to have been pondering over this fact. As a result, he is heading for the country. A few acres along a dusty road look good to him, even though he knows that they'll never make him rich. They'll take him out of the breadline.

The danger in all of this is that many people utterly unsuited to farm life are apt to try to make farmers out of themselves. For such people—those who know nothing whatever about farms, and have no capital to get them started—the change is likely to be a leap from the frying pan into the fire. But for those who are willing to work, who know something about farming, and who go into it with a full realization of the difficulties ahead, it ought to be an excellent move.

A BAD HABIT.

When a man speaks of sluggish liver he means sluggish colon. In more direct language, he means chronic constipation. The person referred to has a faulty bowel habit. This simply means that there is no impulse to empty the lower segment of the bowel, or that the impulse is not acted upon. In this mechanism no organ has any necessary part except the last foot or two of the bowel. The liver and the stomach, both of which organs are often charged with responsibility, are almost as disconnected with the bowel function as though they were located in other parts of the body.

The principal cause of constipation is indulgence in cathartics. This group of remedies has been slow to come under the ban. They still are found in every home medicine chest; papers that have excluded patent medicines from their advertising columns still admit cathartics; and persons take and give them with no thought of the ultimate harm they do. Not even babies escape. Popular opinion has been against the opium habit and the sleeping powder habit for a long time, but there are few crusaders against cathartics and the habit is quite general.

We have learned that we can depend on nature to take care of needs in almost every field except this one. The truth is that nature is just as dependable here as elsewhere. If a person has the constipation habit established there is a reasonably good chance that he can break it by the establishment of other habits.

The first essential is regularity. The time chosen should bear some relation to other habits. Many drink a glass of water as they finish dressing and then go to stool. Change from the prone to the upright position and from a quiet to an active state makes this an advantageous time to fix the habit. Others select some hour or time shortly after one or more meals.

When the stomach is digesting food its muscle is contracting and relaxing. This muscle movement, beginning in the stomach, tends to travel throughout the length of the digestive tract. Whatever time is set there must be no interruption of the habit. In addition, any impulse to have a bowel movement, whenever it occurs, must be acted on and not suppressed.

Diet is of service in overcoming constipation, though the diets that are of service to some harm others. Near the top of the usually serviceable foods are buttermilk and all forms of soured milk. A considerable quantity of lactose, or milk sugar, is of service. Fats are laxative. This applies to salad dressings, olive oil, fat meats, and butter. To most persons fruits and vegetables are helpful.

The average person needs more wheat bran and other brans and other unbolted foods than the regular diet contains. The minority do better if their diet is softer and contains less roughage. Some get help from eating molasses, while to some other foods are laxative. Among the near foods which act partly by supplying volume and partly in other ways are agar, flaxseed, and psyllium.

Many persons are constipated because they do not drink as much water as they should. Some find the best remedial method is to drink one or two glasses of water on arising. Many are served by using a glass of neutral salt solution instead of plain water. This is composed of seven grains of salt dissolved in one thousand drops, or grains, of water.

CAUSES OF DROPSY.

J. K. writes:

1. What causes dropsy?
2. If a person has dropsy, both in his legs and abdomen, can it be cured with the proper care?
3. Would a certain climate help?

REPLY.

1. There are many causes of the symptom commonly known as dropsy. Among the more important are heart disease, Bright's disease, cirrhosis of the liver.
2. Dropsy is a bad complication in any disease. However, it often happens that treatment of the basic disease causes the swelling to disappear.
3. Climate is not of much value in the treatment of most of the diseases which bring about dropsy.

EXERCISE IS ADVISABLE.

Mrs. J. W. writes: About four years ago I was operated on and had a tube removed. Two years ago I had my gall bladder and appendix out. I am now very much overweight. Do you think it safe for me to exercise? My incisions healed very quickly after the operation.

REPLY.

Of course, it is safe. More than that, it is advisable. You have had all the removals you need. Try to live more vigorously and save what's left.

POLICE FORCE VACANCIES.

Chicago, June 3.—[Friend of the People.]—When will the city fill the five hundred vacancies on the police force? Will they be filled from the list of those who passed the last examination held on Dec. 14, 1931? What disposition will be made of the old civil service list now up and which is three years old? When will the new list of those who passed the last police examination for patrolman held Dec. 14, 1931, be posted? F. D.

I wish to inform you that the commission has no power to certify to fill vacancies in any department until the department head concerned has requested the commission for certification. The above certifications depend entirely upon when request is made and also whether these positions are provided for in the new budget yet to be passed by the city council. The commission has not yet determined what ultimate action will be taken on the present list. The results of the last examination held for patrolman cannot be posted for some time owing to the large volume of clerical work.

Secretary, Civil Service Commission.

WORKING HOURS.

Chicago, June 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is there a law against working women fourteen and fifteen hours a day? 2. Must they be paid overtime? 3. Can the employer be sued for back overtime? E. G.

1. There is a ten hour law applicable in specified employments, otherwise there is no legal objection.
2. The question as to pay for overtime depends on the contract of employment.
3. Not on the bare facts stated.

RISE, SPRING POETS! TELL IT TO CONGRESS! ON TO WASHINGTON!

News that the government is turning out millions of new three cent postage stamps and that soon we'll have to buy 'em and put them on each and every letter is rousing the spring poets to frenzy. And they get frenzier every time they think of it. Three cents to mail a spring poem to an editor. And another three cent stamp inclosed if they want it back. Two cent postage was bad enough, but three cents hits the spring poem industry an awful wallop. It looks as though the industry might have to go out of business and thousands of poets be thrown out of work. But they're rising. Their idea is to advance on Washington from every point of the compass between Maine and California and tell congress that a special stamp rate must be made for poets.

The poets plan to be perfectly peaceable. They are going to force the railroads to carry them free, but they will not soap the tracks or lock themselves inside of freight cars. Their idea is to clamber on the trains and if the conductor and brakemen start to throw them off they will read springs poems to them until the train crew, in desperation, lets them stay aboard as the train goes on to Washington.

It looks as though the idea was great and bound to succeed. Take an ordinary freight train and its two brakemen. They look around and find the tops of half a dozen cars filled with journeymen and master poets carrying banners announcing they are going to Washington to have a bill passed reducing postage on spring, love, and death poetry. "Youse guys," says the freight conductor, who is himself not a poet nor given to speaking in rhyme, "git the hell offen them damn cars."

"Sorry," says the spokesman of the poets, all of whom are highly cultured persons and many of them college graduates; "please listen a moment while I read my latest masterpiece entitled, 'When Spring Comes to the Hot Dog Stand.' It goes like this:

"'When Spring comes galloping over the hills,
Prancing as gay as a circus pony;
It brings us happiness and joy.
Hooray, hooroo, likewise baloney.'"

The conductor and the brakemen, being plain, blunt men, couldn't stand it. The conductor would faint and the brakemen crawl under the wheels and beg the engineer to start the train and put them out of their misery. Then a compromise would be arranged. The conductor would gladly promise to carry the poets gratis if they wouldn't read any more spring poems. It's a great idea, poets. Organize your groups and on to Washington.

LETTER OF THANKS.

Roses! 'Twas nice of you to send—
You were always a kindly one,
And 'tis like you, my dear, to mark the end
With a geste finale well done.

Roses . . . In truth, a lordly way—
How easily you go!
Gracious with words that you could not say,
Thoughts that I dare not know.

False sweet sighings of lost desire
Clinging to petals wet . . .
Do you mind if I throw them into the fire—
The sooner to forget?

JUDY SHEA.

TSK, TSK, TSK! the shocks and surprises and turnovers that happen these days. Mr. Brookhart no longer the idol of Iowa and the patron saint of the farmer; a wet we never heard of before, whose name we can't recall now, trims Sen. Cameron Morrison, the great dry Moses of North Carolina; the Hohenzollerns liable to get back the kaiser job in Germany; Charley Dawes talked about for Vice President and also mentioned for a much higher place on the ticket. It's a mixed up world, but, thank Heaven, this month come the June graduates, who will immediately set everything right.

CHANCEY, who happens at the moment to be our official attention caller, calls our attention to the newest great saying of great men, John D. Rockefeller Jr.'s declaration, "I was born a teetotaler." Then some of us must have been born beer drinkers and others born moderate drinkers or old soaks. Personally, unlike John D., we were not born a teetotaler. Our first wailing cry was for a glass of beer, and we threw our milk bottle out of the window and raised general rough-house until we got our beer. We would like to have been born a teetotaler, but it simply wasn't that way. And Chancey says he was born a champagne drinker and never changed. That's the way it goes! Happy those infants who are born with a craving for sarsaparilla and soda pop. That is, unless the sacred 18th gets the bum's rush next November. Otherwise it's better, like John D., to be born a teetotaler.

Teach me, little playmate,
Teach me to be wise;
A universe of wisdom
Is cradled in your eyes
And their trustful look can give Ample faith by which to live.

Teach me, little playmate,
Teach me to be gay,
For I've felt your laughter
Lightly sweep away
Doubts and cares of heart and mind,
Mists before a golden wind!

Every Man's University

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor is Fay-Cooper Cole, professor of anthropology.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

Is there a missing link?

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION:

What do we know about the antiquity of man?

ANSWER:

The most ancient being known which can be called man was discovered in Java. It was imbedded in a stratum containing fossil plants and animals of at least a half million years ago. This being, called Pithecanthropus erectus, had a small head, with huge ridges over the eyes. Its teeth were much like those of today, and it walked erect.

Next in age are the remains of eleven individuals discovered deeply buried in a cave near Peking, China. These people were much like the Java man, but were somewhat more advanced. The associated animal bones indicate a period only a little later.

Near Heidelberg, in Germany, a human jaw was found during commercial excavations. The stratum in which it lay was deposited in the second interglacial epoch, probably two hundred and fifty thousand years ago. The jaw is huge, it has no chin, but the teeth are human.

Another find of about the same age was made near Piltdown, Sussex, England, and consists of a very simple skull, combined with a jaw which resembles that of a chimpanzee.

Fifty thousand years ago a people called Neanderthal were living in the caves of Europe. They were distinctly human, but in many ways resembled the anthropoid apes. They had long, low heads, projecting faces, and walked in a semi-erect position.

About twenty-five thousand years ago they were displaced by newcomers, the Cro-Magnon, a people much like modern Europeans.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 9, 1916.

CHICAGO.—Achievement of peace between the Republicans and Progressives and the nomination of a fusion candidate for President now rest chiefly with Theodore Roosevelt. Leaders in both parties anxiously will watch today for a sign from Oyster Bay that the colonel is ready to eliminate himself and pave the way for fusion on Hughes or one of the minor candidates. Despite the contemplated program of a resumption of peace parleys tonight, Senator Smoot, chairman of the Republican conferees, early this morning expressed some doubt that there will be further negotiations. It also transpired that the Progressive leaders will meet this morning to determine whether to await another conference with the Republicans or to proceed to name the colonel today. Some of the Progressive leaders think nothing can prevent the nomination of Roosevelt by the Moosers today save a personal appeal for delay or a message of refusal of the third ticket nomination from the colonel himself. The joint conference labored from 9 o'clock last night to 12:30 this morning to reach an agreement. For the Republicans the conference consisted of Reed Smoot, W. Murray Crane, William E. Borah, Nicholas Murray Butler and A. R. Johnson; for the Progressives, Hiram Johnson, Horace S. Wilkinson, Charles J. Bonaparte, John M. Parker and George W. Perkins. The Progressives went into the conference with the tumult of their convention demanding the immediate nomination of Roosevelt ringing in their ears. The Republicans entered the pourparlers with no such insistent demands for any particular candidate.

LONDON.—Twelve men from the cruiser Hampshire, sunk west of the Orkney islands with Lord Kitchener and his staff, have reached shore on a raft. Although neither the name of Lord Kitchener nor any of his party appears on the list, the news that there were survivors was received with relief, for now at least the story of the sinking and the loss of the secretary of state for war will be told.

THE FORGOTTEN MAN.

Chicago, June 6.—I am only a humble salaried worker, due to be hit by the new income tax. There is no longer any person or political party to appeal to: Both parties rob us with equal enjoyment for the benefit of themselves and their supporters. There is no one left in the country for us to appeal to but the publishers of the newspapers. They have the only weapon—publicity—effective against the predatory congressmen, legislators, and councilmen.

You listed Al Capone and his gangsters as public enemies, and numbered them. You have put them where they belong. I submit to you that Al Capone and his gang are calendared saints in comparison to the thieves that impose our taxes. The gangs at least took their lives in their hands; the political gangs rob us wholesale and are protected by the powers of government. For the benefit of $75,000 a year bureau heads and their unnumbered satellites, for the benefit of the 875,000 people who toil not, neither do they spin, but take their toll from us workers and small business men, the whole machinery of government operates.

Will not your paper, probably the greatest in the world, list every scoundrel who voted for the income tax as a public enemy? Concentrate upon the scoundrels that represent us in the territory served by your paper. Induce your associates in the publishing business to concentrate upon those in their territory. Publish their names in box car letters with every thieving vote, and inform the poor ignorant among us of the hand that reaches out to steal our wages and our homes. Most of us never read the political news, nor understand it if read. We merely vote for some slick scoundrel who promises us a park or some form of dole, something free from the government.

It is not your business to do this. You are not paid to do it. And it's a disagreeable duty. But you did not shirk when you proceeded against the gangsters. You took your life in your hands. The thieving politicians are too cowardly to shoot you, so you can proceed to demolish them without danger to yourself.

I hope you will make a personal campaign against every thieving congressman, legislator, and councilman so hot that he will be compelled to live in Europe for fear of being mobbed if he returns to solicit votes.

T. R. PATERSON.

FROM THE FOREMAN OF THE JURY.

Chicago, June 4.—THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE on June 3 carried an article anent the acquittal of Carl Parker and Stanley Wilson of the charge of assault with intent to rob, upon the person of one Samuel S. Stoller. You intimate in your article that the jury was swayed by the testimony of Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach. This is not true, and as foreman of the jury and in fairness to the jury I think you should print the true facts of the case.

The men were charged with assault with intent to rob and not robbery with a gun. According to Attorney Stoller he was not assaulted, nor was any attempt made to rob him. He was not even ordered to raise his hands. He was the only witness who saw fit to identify the men, and by his own testimony they did not molest him. The druggist whose place of business was robbed for some reason or other could not identify them, and if he had there would have remained a reasonable doubt about their guilt as charged.

Several of the jurors talking with Mr. Stoller after the trial asked him what he thought of the verdict. He said he was satisfied, that he had not expected a guilty verdict, and he criticized the state for the manner in which they handled the case.

It would be interesting to know just why these men were not brought to trial on a robbery charge and just why the druggist did not see fit to aid the state.

GEORGE R. CHESTER.

UNUSED SHOP FRONTS.

Chicago, June 4.—During the month of June there will be a large number of strangers in our city. Men of affairs from all parts of the country will come to the Republican and Democratic conventions and without doubt they will be taken around Chicago to see the beauties of the city.

Don't we want them to see evidence of a people that can smile in the face of depression, that can make every effort to bring about satisfactory results as far as business is concerned? We do, and one of the important things that can and should be done is to make every store look prosperous.

There are a tremendous number of vacant stores in this city, some of them large, others small; many of them on car lines or at or near transfer points, and why shouldn't every business man and manufacturer perform a duty in filling the windows of these vacant stores with merchandise or display material that will brighten the district?

If there is a vacant store next to or near a prosperous business, the proprietor of that business will assist himself and the community by having some of his merchandise displayed in this store. Clean windows and bright merchandise all over the city mean prosperity. E. W. SARGENT.

AFTER 14 YEARS.

STATIC—

Were These America's Best Read Advertisements for the Month of May?

Announcing a revolutionary new service for advertisers and their agents

An EVERY-WEEK count of the number of men and women seeing and reading EACH advertisement published in America's three biggest weekly magazines.

Watch for "Best Read Ads of the Week" reproduced in bulletins every week in Printers' Ink, Advertising Age, Automotive Daily News, Drug Trade News.

Each time YOU advertise in Liberty, Collier's or Saturday Evening Post, we count YOUR readers . . . if you appeared in May, we have your ratings . . . write for them.

Five thousand. Ten thousand. Twenty thousand.

Dollars.

For a single advertisement!

What happens to it?

In the interests of more resultful advertising, Liberty sponsors an ambitious plan to find out.

The Plan: An actual count—every week, week after week—of the number of men and women seeing and reading every advertisement in America's three biggest weeklies, Liberty, Collier's and Saturday Evening Post.

Watch for Bulletin of Results Each Week

The advertisements on this page are offered as the "best read ads of the week" for each week in May. They rated from 70 to 113 per cent higher in attention value than the average. That's equivalent to 70 to 113 per cent more circulation without greater cost!

Each week, hereafter, Liberty will publish a bulletin illustrating the "best read ads" of the previous week (regardless of which weekly they appeared in); revealing the margin of advantage they enjoy. Watch for them. Study them. Consider, as the weeks go by, the characteristics represented by these winning advertisements.

Make the Big Weeklies Your Experimental Laboratories

Every time you publish an advertisement in Liberty, Collier's or Saturday Evening Post, a count will be taken of the number of men and women seeing and reading it.

At your request your ratings will be sent to you regularly as your ads appear.

This offers you an opportunity in addition to your private research, for comparing one type of appeal with another, styles of layout, kinds of illustration.

You may also check your own findings on the effectiveness of black-and-white compared to two color and four color; large space and small space; position; season; weather; and how much difference the different magazines make in getting your ads seen and read.

Individual research along these lines has shown the way for some companies to make their dollar reach twice as many readers. Such companies will welcome this service as an adjunct to their own investigations . . . offering the added advantage of comparing their own ratings with others made under identical conditions.

Important: This Checks Reader Interest Only; Not Ultimate Results

Like all research data, these figures must be used judiciously.

They check one thing: The number of men and women seeing and reading your advertising.

It is possible for a poorly read ad to sell so well to the few who read it that it pays its way. It is also possible for a widely read ad to lack profitable selling punch.

One thing, however, all must agree on: an ad must be seen before it can sell.

The more persons that see it, the more potential sales power it has.

And when one considers that:

". . . while one out of three may be impressed by an ad, less than one out of fifteen may take the trouble to read it. . ." (Gallup) . . .

Count Made by Percival White, Inc. Using Gallup Method

Using the Gallup method—now so popular with leading advertisers, agencies and research organizations—Percival White, Incorporated, Marketing Counselors, has entire charge of all field work and tabulation.

A mature staff of expert investigators, under Mr. White's personal supervision, is constantly in the field. Each week they visit a different city. Each week they make about a thousand calls, uncover about one hundred and fifty men and women who actually have read current issues of Liberty, Collier's or the Saturday Evening Post.

As each reader is found, he is conducted through his magazine page by page. Every single item—editorial as well as advertising—is checked for having been seen or read.

The magazines appear one week. They are checked the next week. Results are air-mailed to New York and published the second week after the issues were read.

Write for Your Reader Interest Rating Card

In order to make your study easier, we have prepared a "reader interest rating card" illustrated below. It provides a convenient form for entering the percentages of men and women seeing each of your advertisements as it appears—affording ready comparison of the results of your different ads.

One of these cards is filled out in our files for every advertiser in one or more of the three big weeklies.

If you advertised in Liberty, Collier's or the Saturday Evening Post during May, one of these cards has already been made out for you.

Merely drop us a note and it will be sent to you by return mail.

Then as each of your subsequent advertisements appears, a new card containing your full record up-to-date automatically will be sent to you.

Since this work is already being done, your request involves us in no extra expense, places you under no obligation.

Merely write: "Send me my Reader Interest Rating Card." Address Liberty Research Department, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York City.

Watch next week in the publications listed above, for our bulletin reproducing the "best read ads" of the week of June 4th

Agencies and Advertisers Invited to Send Observers

Several advertising agencies have expressed interest in learning more about the technique of the Gallup-type reader interest investigations. Such organizations are invited to send an authorized representative into the field to spend a week working with the Percival White, Inc., investigators. For advance schedules, address Percival White, Inc., 130 W. 42nd St., N. Y. C.

Percival White, Inc. Employs Gallup Method to Obtain Data

These week by week reader interest figures are being found by Percival White, Inc., with the methods initiated by 6 similar studies last summer by Dr. George Gallup (formerly Professor of Journalism and Advertising at Northwestern University, now with Young & Rubicam, Inc., Advertising Agents). Probably no more exhaustive authority than Mr. White could be found to put the Gallup method to the sharpest test. With a background as marketing consultant to such organizations as Aluminum Mfrs. Inc. DOCTORS ASSERT TILTON'S SALVES WERE WORTHLESS

Cardinal's Physician Says He Closed Clinic.

The combined prestige of Northwestern university, Loyola university, and the American Medical association was invoked by the state yesterday in an effort to prove the worthlessness of Old Doc Lester Tilton's cancer cure, as the trial of Tilton and two others on charges of conspiracy to violate the medical practice act entered the rebuttal stage before a jury in Judge Desort's criminal court.

DR. L. D. MOORHEAD.

Dr. Louis D. Moorhead, head of the medical committee of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago, dean of the surgery department at Loyola and personal physician to Cardinal Mundelein, testified that he headed a committee of physicians who, at the cardinal's request, investigated the Felician convent clinic conducted by Tilton and ordered it closed.

No Reports Available.

"We found fifteen or twenty patients being treated," Dr. Moorhead said. "Several patients had lesions of various types. All were being treated with salves. I asked for reports on the patients and was told that none was available. No biopsies were taken to determine the presence of cancer. I asked Dr. Tilton for the formula of medicine and was told that that was his secret."

An effort to elicit Dr. Moorhead's opinion on the efficiency of the Tilton medicines was blocked by an objection of Defense Attorney Stuart B. Krohn. The prosecution covered the point, however, by bringing out the fact that Dr. Moorhead's committee ordered the clinic closed.

Dr. John A. Wolfer, head of a Northwestern university clinic where the Tilton remedies got another test, was called. Wrangling arose between Prosecutor Charles A. Bellows and Defense Attorney Krohn as Dr. Wolfer tried to testify. The judge ordered the attorneys to "behave."

Patients Get Worse.

"Most of the patients proposed for treatment were rejected by Tilton as too far advanced in the disease," Dr. Wolfer said. "We finally agreed on a number of patients, however. The medicine was applied under Tilton's direction. The patients got worse and some of them died."

H. L. Tschentke, chief chemist of the laboratory of the American Medical association, testified that the principal ingredient of the Tilton medicines was zinc salts, a strong corrosive.

Dr. Henry Schmitz, also of Loyola university, testified he applied the Tilton remedies to four cancer patients at Mercy hospital. He said the four died.

Death from Auto Fumes Held Accident by Jury

A verdict of accidental death has been returned by a coroner's jury that investigated the death of Joseph Leider, 49 years old, of 4008 West End avenue, owner of a restaurant at 18 North Crawford avenue. He was found dead Monday night of carbon monoxide poisoning in a garage at the rear of 217 North Kildare avenue, where earlier he had stored a rented car. Police reports indicated that he ended his life, but his family testified that he had been in good health, that his business was good, and that he apparently was tinkering with the motor when overcome accidentally by fumes.

Injured Brakeman Goes to Court in Plaster Cast

William Strong, 32 years old, of Elkhart, Ind., was carried into the courtroom of Judge Michael McKinley in the Superior court yesterday in a plaster cast to testify in his suit for $65,000 against the New York Central railroad. He is now a patient in Augustana hospital with a broken back, hip and leg. He was injured March 4, while working as a brakeman in Elkhart. Strong charges that while riding on a moving train a grabiron to which he was clinging broke and he fell to the ground.

WIFE KILLS SELF WHEN POLICEMAN WORKS OVERTIME

Policeman Joseph K. Morrison, 3703 East 113th street, a member of a detective bureau squad, worked overtime early yesterday morning on the arrest of some stickup men. When he arrived home, he said, his wife, Hazel, 22 years old, accused him of having an affair with another woman.

He went to bed. While he slept his wife took the pearl handled revolver which she had given him for Christmas and killed herself. Morrison was aroused by the shot and summoned police. He told Lieut. Otto Erlanson that several times recently his wife had quarreled with him when he returned home late from work. They were married less than a year ago, after Morrison had been divorced by his second wife.

His wife threatened to kill herself following a quarrel a week ago, Morrison said. Mrs. Elsie Johnson, Mrs. Morrison's mother, told police that her daughter had spoken recently of leaving her husband.

AMELIA PUTNAM SAYS SHE'LL FLY ATLANTIC AGAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, June 8.—"I am just beginning to fly. It is not the last time I will fly over the Atlantic," Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam said today on her arrival here from Milan today in a big Italian army plane with her husband, George Palmer Putnam, and other people.

As she sprang out of the plane Mrs. Alice Garrett, wife of the American ambassador, planted two big kisses on each of Amelia's cheeks. Officials and notables were on hand to see the flyer arrive. Mrs. Garrett introduced Mrs. Putnam to Gen. Italo Balbo, minister of air. They then drove to the Hotel Excelsior, where Mrs. Putnam will stay while she is in Rome.

Tomorrow Mrs. Putnam will see Premier Mussolini and Pope Pius XI. Saturday she will fly back to Paris. Gen. Balbo gave a dinner for the trans-Atlantic airwoman tonight.

CHARGES FALSE STATEMENTS ON FLOWERS' BANK

CRIMINAL COURT.

Daniel Ognyenovich, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary; Dillard Smith, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge Walter Stanton.

False statements were intentionally made to the state auditor to keep the Roosevent Bankers' State bank open after it was insolvent, Prosecutor Wilkie Ham charged yesterday in his opening statement to the jury in the case of Alexander Flower, former chairman of the board of the bank, and his brother Samuel, who was president of the institution.

"Four times a year officials of a bank submit a sworn report on the affairs of a bank, its resources and liabilities," Mr. Ham said. "We expect to show a number of perjured statements in this case. According to the banking law, this particular bank was not authorized to allow loans of over $37,500 and we expect to prove that Alexander Flower had personal loans of $109,000 which were not mentioned in the statements."

The prosecutor said he also expected to prove that the two brothers used a fictitious name to obtain $32,000 of the bank's funds for their own use. The presentation of the evidence will start today in the court of Circuit Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court yesterday made formal assignment of the case of John Bain and his five co-defendants to Judge John M. O'Connor of the Superior court, who has been sitting in the Appellate court. This assignment was believed to have solved the problem of jurisdiction that has heretofore delayed the trial. Judge Fisher said he understood the petition asking a change of venue to another county would be withdrawn and that Judge O'Connor would dispose of preliminary motions on Monday or Tuesday and that the trial would start on Wednesday, probably in the county building.

Bain, former president of a chain of twelve banks; his two sons, John H. and Robert A.; his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, Dr. Walter Buhlig, and Frank A. Mulholland are under indictment on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the public of more than $300,000.

JUDGE IGNORES SHERIFF, GIVES FREE MARRIAGES

Judge Edward B. Casey, now hearing civil cases in Municipal court, married seven young couples free of charge yesterday and announced last night that he would continue the practice regardless of the protests of Sheriff William D. Meyering and Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby.

"The chief deputy sheriff, Charles Peters, went before Judge Sonsteby and said he had established a marriage court to counteract racketeering justices of the peace, who were charging $10 fees," Judge Casey explained. "I find that the marriage court performed 6,289 marriages at $5 each in 1931 and that the $34,145 so gathered was turned over to the sheriff's fund.

"Peters claimed that couples lacking the $5 charge had no business getting married. I maintain that if they had $5 they were entitled to keep it rather than turn it over to the marriage court or the sheriff's fund. My right to perform marriages is given me by statute. I will continue to exercise it for the benefit of all young couples who call upon me."

TRIES SUICIDE TWICE ON WAY TO $4,000 A YEAR JOB

New York, June 8.—[Special.]—He had been graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and he was on his way here to take a post with the General Electric company at a salary of $4,000 a year, but life seemed worthless to John Gibson, 21, of Bennington, Vt., who today made two attempts at suicide.

Both attempts failed. Gibson is at Metropolitan hospital, Welfare Island, and physicians said he would recover.

Gibson slashed his wrist and throat shortly after he boarded the steamer New York in Boston last night. Then he lay down in his berth to await death.

He awoke today when the steamer was passing between Manhattan and Welfare Island. He had just strength enough to pull himself through a porthole.

A mason working on Welfare Island, dropped his trowel and swam to the assistance of the young man in the water. Other workmen assisted the two men up the sea wall.

Gibson said he had been contemplating suicide for weeks. He had seen enough of the world, he declared, and life held nothing for him.

ELUSIVE CULPRIT "LOST" BETWEEN COURT AND JAIL

When Roxy Murray, 39 years old, an alleged pickpocket, appeared yesterday before Judge Thomas A. Green in the South State street court on a charge of disorderly conduct the judge recognized him as a defendant he had sentenced to the Bridewell for six months last February for vagrancy.

Judge Green then learned that Murray had never served a day of the sentence. Investigation showed that another judge, without Judge Green's knowledge, had granted Murray a stay of execution. The stay expired April 29. Without further preliminary Judge Green resentenced him to the six months' term.

Murray was loaded into a bailiff's patrol and taken to the Bridewell. That was at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. At 6 p. m. it was reported that Murray was not in the Bridewell. Court officials and police began a hunt for the missing prisoner. Their worries ended when at 1 o'clock this morning Murray was found sleeping in the north block of the Bridewell, where he'll stay for the next six months.

FINDS EVIDENCE OF TAX SHIRKING IN AUTO SURVEY

Chicago Owned Cars with Suburban Licenses.

BY HAL FOUST.

Chicago's traffic includes a large volume of automobiles with license plates of states other than Illinois or with municipal tags of suburban villages, cars without any city stickers, vehicles with no licenses at all, some with state plates only, and a few with 1931 numbers.

To the average Chicago automobile owner who has paid his city and state fees, it might seem that the city is crowded with visitors from other states, from other Illinois cities, and from rural Illinois, and with a few Rip Van Winkles from another year.

But the "Voice of Traffic" of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has received a number of letters from motorists complaining that their neighbors, permanent Chicago residents, are using plates or tags of other states or municipalities to evade Chicago's vehicle tax of $10 or $20, depending upon the horsepower of the machine.

Many Out-State Plates Found.

A drive from Howard street to THE TRIBUNE Tower yesterday between 5 and 7 a. m. revealed that the curbs in many blocks were occupied by automobiles with plates of Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, New York, Missouri, and Florida, and a few from other states.

Most of these cars, no doubt, were really transients. However, if reports are true, there are a number of Chicagoans who have friends or relatives in other states get these foreign plates so as to escape the wheel tax collected for the repair of streets. The Illinois highway department, through this arrangement, is also cheated of its fee, thus increasing the burden upon the taxpaying motorists.

As for the parked automobiles with 1932 Illinois plates and suburban tags examination of the records of the secretary of state showed that most of the plates were mailed to suburban addresses. The municipal fee in towns near Chicago ranges from one-half to one-fifth of the Chicago tax.

City Addresses; Suburban Tags.

Some of the cars with suburban licenses, however, carried state numbers that were issued to Chicago addresses. Among these were: Illinois 314-861, issued to Michael G. Koch, 604 Gary place, with Wheaton tag 215; Illinois 164-825, issued to E. R. Drucker, 2817 Cambridge avenue, with Wilmette tag 1866, and Illinois 1-041-307, issued to Fred G. Lanter, 9200 Cottage Grove avenue, with a Lake Villa panel.

Examination of the state license records showed that the owners of some of the parked automobiles with no municipal tags were residents of farms or villages exempt from any city tax. Some of these cars, however, carried state numbers that were issued to Chicago addresses. These included the following: 1-002-258, issued to Bob Whitener, 1206 Foster avenue; 582,785, issued to William Conis, 1759 Howard street; 752-194, issued to Lucile Krumbein, 4857 North Oakley avenue, and 379-473, issued to B. Cohen & Sons, 2249 South La Salle street.

1931 Licenses Are Noted.

The following 1931 licenses were noted: 678-046, issued to John V. Watering, 5531 Glenwood avenue; 674-355, issued to Max Lanchner, 1434 Farragut street; 1-098-824, issued to Louis Conurisher, 1260 North Dearborn street; 702-642, issued to Mrs. Anna Hickey, 1460 East 69th court; 1-170-804, issued to Martin E. Friedman, 713 Rush street; 1-042-930, issued to Frank H. Wilkins, Oak Park; 1-228-191, issued to Robert Franks, Prophetstown, Ill.; 1-272-798, issued to Charles Goldblatt, Elmwood Park, and 1-398-487, issued to Peter Lord, 3124 South Wells street.

The reporter, in making this two hour survey, wasn't trying to be a detective on the trail of tax evading motorists. Among the names reported herein there are probably persons with a logical explanation for any peculiarity in the licensing of their automobiles. Illinois and Chicago employ investigators to prosecute any fraud in vehicle licensing. In the memory of Joseph H. Braun, general counsel for the Chicago Motor club, there has never been a conviction.

W. J. Stephens, Advertising Executive, Wins Divorce

Walter J. Stephens, 30 years old, a resident of the Medinah Athletic club and head of the Stemar Advertising company, was granted a divorce yesterday from Mrs. Adeline Charlotte Stephens, 28 years old, 1955 Northmoor road, Ravinia, on grounds of desertion. The decree was signed by Superior Judge Harry B. Miller after both parties to the suit appeared in his courtroom. Mrs. Stephens was awarded the custody of her daughter, Phyllis, 9 years old, and $60 a week for her support, a one-half interest in her Ravinia home, an automobile, and the house furniture.

Trace Source of Obnoxious Odor on Lincoln Park Shore

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, yesterday relayed to Lincoln park officials a number of complaints of an obnoxious odor that for a week or more has annoyed residents and travelers along the park grounds and lake front between Belmont and Foster avenues. The source of the odor was traced to a water filled hole formed during the making of new land north of Montrose avenue. H. Otto Weege, park superintendent, promised that filling of the hole with sand will be completed as rapidly as possible.

Mayor to Hear Protests on City Trucks' Rate Cut

Mayor Cermak yesterday promised owners of private trucks hired by the city a hearing today on their protests against rate reductions. The owners agreed to keep the trucks in service and accept compensation on a retroactive basis. Formerly the city paid $37.50 a day for large trucks and $27.50 for smaller ones. The new rates are $25 and $22 a day. The truck owners want $35 and $25.

YANK TELLS HOW CHINESE CHAINED AND BEAT HIM UP

Bandits Threatened Death 50 Times.

SHANGHAI, June 8.—(AP)—Charles Baker, American steamboat captain, who was abducted by Chinese brigands last winter, arrived in Shanghai today and told his story of five months of terror, in which he was threatened with death fifty times.

The captain, 30 pounds underweight as a result of exposure and filthy food—all he had to eat was half cooked rice and fish—will remain in Shanghai to get back his strength and then will join his family in Oakland, Cal.

Freed Without Paying Ransom.

Although his captors frequently threatened to kill him unless a ransom of $50,000 [Mexican] was paid, he finally was released without any money changing hands. American missionaries arranged it.

"I was threatened with death fifty times," he said. "I never expected to survive. Those half civilized, treacherous, inhuman bandits, who call themselves communists, are conducting a wholesale kidnaping business. Their victims are any foreigners or wealthy Chinese they can lay their hands on, who, they believe, would be capable of paying huge ransome.

"I was told they are now holding 6,000 Chinese for ransom, most of whom are doomed to die because the ransom payments are impossible. The provincial and national governments are helpless before these outlaws, who make their living killing, plundering, and kidnaping."

Chained and Beaten.

The captain said he was mistreated physically only once.

"Then I was chained and beaten," he said, "apparently because a newly arrived chief wished to impress his followers."

The captain was kept prisoner in the area above Hankow on the north bank of the Yangtze river. For a distance of 200 miles along the river, he said, lawless, brutal men are in full control.

The food, Capt. Baker said, was filthy, "but I ate it occasionally. I refused to drink the water they offered me, however, until it was boiled. I slept in mud huts on bare boards beside the outlaws."

His captors showed a rough discipline. They were dressed in black uniforms, bearing the soviet sickle and hammer insignia, he said.

Lice Made Life Nightmare.

Capt. Baker was brought here from Hankow on the United States naval river gunboat Panay.

"The Americans treated me royally," he said. "I cannot express how good the clean bed, food, and water they offered me looked after five months of wallowing in dirt and filth in disease infested bandit huts.

"I had no bath or change of clothing during the entire time I was a captive and the lice made life a nightmare."

IDENTIFY BANDIT SUSPECT.

Piles Go Quick

No Salves—No Cutting

Thousands of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have learned that quick and lasting relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine should be used to stimulate the circulation, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the same marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets with a rigid money back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and Walgreen's invite every Pile sufferer to try a bottle of HEM-ROID and guarantees to refund the purchase price if they do not end Piles in any form.

MINERS OF INDIANA AGREE TO NEW WAGE SCALE OF $4 DAILY

Terre Haute, Ind., June 8.—[Special.]—Agreement under which Indiana union coal mines may resume operation was reached today by members of the subcommittee in session here since Thursday.

Prior to the latest conference miners informally agreed to approve a cut from $6.10, the old day wage, to $5.

INDIANS REBEL IN PANAMA; ANGRY OVER ELECTION

COLON, Panama, June 8.—(AP)—The San Blas Indians of northern Panama were reported today to have started an insurrection because they are dissatisfied with the election of Harmodio Arias as president last Sunday.

Ten boatloads of Indians carrying banners and the Tule (San Blas) national flag were reported to be attacking island residents along the northern Panaman coast, and the governor of Colon state has recommended sending a contingent of police immediately.

Several tribes of Indians, reportedly led by one Nele Cantule, who supported Francisco Arias Parades, the defeated candidate, have declared their intention of separating into an independent nation. The Indians have announced their decision to burn all the islands "which voted for Harmodio Arias."

VICTIMS REVEAL SPEAKEASY'S $50 PRICE OF A DRINK

Probe N.Y. 'Clip Joints' for New Prosecution.

New York, June 8.—[Special.]—On the theory that operators of so-called "clip joints" may be prosecuted under the nuisance section of the prohibition laws the government today continued its probe into the inner workings of an alleged speakeasy in West Seventy-second street by calling a series of victims who were said to have been lured to the place by cruising taxi drivers.

Louis Greenstein, alleged operator, and Marion Whaler and May Darling, two hostesses, are on trial before Federal Judge Coleman charged with conspiracy, maintaining a nuisance and possession of liquor.

According to the testimony of Frank S. Long, auto sales manager, a "clip joint" is best defined as a place where one is presented with a bill for $95 after being served two drinks and two bottles of ginger ale. That was his experience on Dec. 3, 1931, after being taken to a speakeasy with a friend by a taxi driver.

William H. Turner, a salesman, of St. Albans, L. I., testified that he was taken to the place on March 2. The next morning he was shaken into consciousness by Greenstein and told he had signed a check for $100.

When the check could not be cashed Turner said Greenstein called him up several times and that some one, he was not sure who, suggested that if he did not make good he might lose an ear.

OLD FEET MADE INTO NEW BEFORE MEDICAL CLINIC

A patient's old feet were made into new ones by an operation performed by Dr. Philip H. Kreuscher yesterday as one of the features of the seventh annual postgraduate clinic of the Chicago Medical society. In the operation the bunions were corrected, arches reshaped, and bones straightened.

No discomfort will result, Dr. Kreuscher explained, except that the patient must wear plaster casts for a month, after which he may expect to have perfectly normal feet and be able to walk and work as well as ever.

Foot deformities are more prevalent today than ever before, according to Dr. Kreuscher, who blamed not only ill fitted shoes but also tight stockings.

ADJUDGE WIDOW, 84, COMPETENT TO CONTROL ESTATE

County Judge J. G. Van Keuren yesterday denied a petition for the appointment of a conservator to control the $200,000 estate of Mrs. Mary A. Cheeseman, an 84 year old widow residing at the Hyde Park hotel, after a jury had returned a verdict adjudging her sane and competent to handle her own affairs. The petition was filed by Attorney Harvey T. Fletcher, who formerly was counsel for Mrs. Cheeseman. He told the court that he was acting in the interests of his former client and seeking to preserve her property.

Mrs. Cheeseman opposed the action and a number of witnesses testified that she was a shrewd business woman and and actively directed her affairs in Chicago and in Joliet. Attorney Fletcher testified that Mrs. Cheeseman had assigned $15,000 worth of her property to her nephew, Albert J. Stevens of Joliet, and then attempted to recover the property. After that transaction, the attorney testified, she asked him to have a conservator appointed. This Mrs. Cheeseman denied.

"JIX," FAMOUS IN BRITISH POLITICS, TAKEN BY DEATH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 8.—Viscount Brentford, known in the United States when he was home secretary as Sir William Joynson-Hicks, died of heart failure today. He was 67.

The viscount entered the house of commons in 1908, when he defeated Winston Churchill. He held numerous cabinet portfolios and was elevated to the peerage in 1929. Sir William was married to Grace Ann Joynson in 1895, hyphenated his name as Joynson-Hicks, and later was familiarly known as "Jix."

It was while he was home minister from 1924 to 1929 in the Stanley Baldwin cabinet that he was most prominent for his activities against Reds, support of the Protestant side in the Anglican prayerbook controversy, and cleanup of Scotland Yard. He motivated the raid on Arcos, headquarters of the soviet trade delegation in London, which was responsible for the severance of diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Russia.

ANN NICHOLS' SON RUNS AWAY TO 'CONQUER WORLD'

Los Angeles, Cal., June 8.—(AP)—Just where Ann Nichols' missing 13 year old son, Henry Jr., would start in to conquer the world troubled police today.

Henry Jr. and Russell Wade Fishbeck, 14, disappeared last night with an automobile and two revolvers belonging to the author of "Abie's Irish Rose," after leaving the following note on the dining room table:

"Mother dear: We are going to conquer the world. Don't be afraid.

"HENRY."

Miss Nichols asked the sheriff's office to aid her to convince Henry Jr. the world could not be conquered in an automobile, no matter how many revolvers.

When dawn produced no Henry or Russell, a state-wide police broadcast was made and a sheriff's squad began a systematic search of the wharves, beach resorts, and highways. Ships were checked, every hot dog stand became a potential shelter for the youths and police north, south, and east were asked to watch the roads.

LOYOLA university's 833 graduates yesterday received their diplomas, certificates and degrees along with a sort of apology for the condition of the world they are being turned loose in. They were the first of Chicago's many graduating classes to have commencement exercises, which were held in the open air in the Lake Shore campus stadium.

"In sending out these 833 graduates we realize, as they do, that they are facing a future less propitious than any faced by a previous graduating class," said the Rev. Robert M. Kelley, president of the university, in his address, "The Challenge of the Times."

"We older people have not done our part as well as we might have done it. We are passing along our responsibilities to the young. The young are courageous. Theirs will be a battle for life and for a livelihood."

The hundreds of young men and women in cap and gown who previous to his address had trooped across the campus in impressive array nevertheless showed no trace of gloom or worry on their faces. Later they walked with quick and sprightly step across the speakers' platform and received their diplomas or certificates or degrees, usually with a grin.

A section of medics, wearing caps with green tassels, burst into whistles and applause and laughter as another section of medics, their green tassels bobbing, walked jauntily on the stage to grasp their sheepskins. Young bachelors of commerce, apparently unconcerned with the tribulations of La Salle street, waved diplomas at parents in the audience.

The Rev. Father Kelley in concluding his address spoke of the various changing theories of education in recent prosperous times.

"But the essential core of education remains the same as it was in the days of Plato and Aristotle, I believe," he said. "This university stands for the great tradition in education.

"This prayer do I offer on this sunny day in June as we send out these 833 graduates: That in their pursuit of the great adventure of life, they will find success—spiritual success at least—and peace and happiness."

Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone of the 3d army corps, with headquarters at Baltimore, one of three awarded honorary degrees by the university, delivered the commencement address.

"Disguise it as we may, the history of this country has been the history of armed force," he said. "No major political decision vital to the history of America ever was rendered but by the victory of armed forces on the field of battle."

Mother Mary Samuel Coughlin, mother general of the Sisters of St. Dominic, Sinsinawa, Wis., and Louis J. A. Mercier, associate professor of French and education at Harvard, also were given honorary degrees, Mother Mary and Maj. Gen. Malone receiving the doctor of laws degrees; Mr. Mercier, the doctor of literature degree.

The class was the largest to be graduated from Loyola in 62 commencement exercises.

At Northwestern university today Guy Thompson, St. Louis lawyer, president of the American Bar association, will deliver the annual Coif address at the class day exercises of the school of law, and will also speak at the annual alumni dinner at the Chicago Bar association tonight.

The forty-fifth annual commencement exercises of St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing will be held tonight in St. James' church, Wabash avenue and Huron street, Mrs. Ada Reitz Crocker, director of the school, announced. A class of seventy will receive diplomas, to be presented by Charles H. Schweppe, president of the hospital board of trustees.

A banquet in the Blackstone hotel attended by 450 members of the St. Luke's Hospital Internes' Alumni association climaxed a program of events marking their annual reunion.

The Rev. Alfred Newbery, rector of the Church of the Atonement, will deliver the commencement address. Homecoming day will be tomorrow at St. Luke's, guests at luncheon to be graduates of 25 years ago.

Commencement exercises of the National College of Education were held yesterday morning in Harrison hall, Evanston. Degrees of bachelor of education and diplomas for kindergarten teaching were conferred upon 136 students.

The Armour Institute of Technology will hold commencement exercises for 154 members of the class of 1932 at 4 p. m. today in the Armour assembly hall, 3300 Federal street.

The graduation exercises of the Faulkner school will be held at the Kenwood Evangelical church tonight at 8 o'clock, when Miss Elisabeth Faulkner, principal, will give out the diplomas to fourteen young girls.

Twenty-nine students were graduated from the Garrett Biblical institute at exercises held in the institute's chapel in Evanston yesterday afternoon. The Rev. Ivan Lee Holt, St. Louis, delivered the commencement address. Honorary degrees of Doctor of Divinity were conferred on Dr. Carl Frederick Eiselen, president of the institute; William C. Terril, Methodist missionary in Africa on leave here, and Bishop Juan Nicanor Tascoe, of the Methodist church of Mexico.

Among others who received honorary D. D. degrees in absentia was the Rev. Stanley Wilson Clemes. Dr. Clemes, on leave in Portland, Ore., at the home of his wife's father, Dr. W. B. Norton, former Chicagoan, is district superintendent of Methodist mission work in the Rurki district in India.

Period Room in Miniature

This room, 18 inches high, 18 inches deep and 30 inches across, is one of ten miniature period rooms designed and arranged by Mrs. James Ward Thorne. This one, in primitive Italian style, was suggested by the furniture and architecture of the Davanzatti palace in Florence. Mr. Thorne took the photograph.

Model Rooms by Mrs. Thorne to Be Shown

Lovely Miniatures Will Have Preview.

BY JUDITH CASS.

AT last Mrs. James Ward Thorne's friends are to have a chance to see those exquisite miniature model rooms on which that lovely lady has been working so industriously since Christmas for Mrs. Thorne and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett have sent out cards for a preview at the Ackermann galleries, 408 South Michigan avenue, on next Monday afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock.

The rooms are to be on exhibition to the public at the galleries from June 14 to July 9 for the benefit of the architects' relief fund for a small fee but those whom Mrs. Thorne and Mrs. Bennett have invited for Monday will pay a bit more, the proceeds also to go to the architects' relief fund.

I predict there will be such a crush Monday afternoon, for every one is so anxious to see those marvelous little rooms—that all those who are invited for that day will have to go another day to really see the rooms. No cursory examination would suffice for them—they are worth careful examination for each detail is perfect and the rooms are as lovely examples of period architecture and decoration as one could find anywhere.

Mrs. Thorne has been collecting tiny articles, the nucleus of each room, for years, but it was not until after Christmas that she really began working in earnest, and since then she has carved wee pieces of furniture, upholstered them, made draperies, done tiny pieces of petit point, and assembled and had made all the other things that go to make up these little rooms.

Rooms Are 18 Inches High.

The rooms are 18 to 20 inches high, 18 inches deep, and 30 inches across and there are 10 of them. A Venetian room that makes one think she is in an old Venetian palace; a Spanish bedroom with the most gorgeous bed [an old Spanish comb is the headpiece] and a Spanish hall; a Mallorcan kitchen; a dining room and a bedroom of Louis XVI. inspiration; a Victorian sitting room with even a jar of cattails, ever present in a proper Victorian room; a modern entrance hall; a French antechamber modeled after the Temple of Love in the Versailles gardens; and a primitive Italian room.

Mrs. Thorne has been most ingenious in finding substitutes for the things that cannot be obtained in miniature, and in the Italian room she has used tiny beads from ten cent necklaces as nail heads and the effect is perfect. Few substitutes are used, however, for almost everything is genuine; the tapestries are real, the iron candelabra are iron, and so on and so forth. She had all the iron work done by an artist in Santa Barbara, all that she could not find already made, and it was out there last

Newest Shoes Are Delight to Wise Shoppers

Artistry Used in Design of Footwear.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

SOME of the things you never see any more are the discouraged looking displays of so-called "sensible shoes"—those flat, square heeled atrocities that were certainly built for service from the ground up. They must have caused more distasteful shudders than any other display of a shopper's daily sightseeing trip around the shops. Even sensible shoes have style now.

And another thing to be thankful for, we, the greatest shoe buying public in the world, no longer squeak on the hoof. Our shoes, made especially for the feet of discriminating individuals, may not have the square inch magnitude of those dejected looking old timers, but the few straps and small portions of leather and fabric that make our 1932 models are deftly and exquisitely combined with as much imagination and artistry as a French gown or hat.

It takes a genius to lace and interlace narrow straps of leather . . . to plan color combinations . . . to invent clever new duets of fabric and leather . . . to cunningly cut out just at the right spot . . . to plan strategically a defense for dancing toes, a thin and beautifully slender shell that protects these exposed toes against the depradations of a wandering and clumsy dancing partner's stiff soles and gouging heels.

All these clever designers must have worked madly and almost wildly to be able to display such generous summer shoe collections as are now on display . . . they have used every color, every possible leather and fabric accomplishing some breathtaking results with combinations that will positively stun you.

If you want color, breezy, bold colors to spectacularly contrast white clothes, some of the good looking dress oxfords are just what you are searching for . . . two shades of good strong blue combined with a brilliant tone of red and dusky brown . . . agile fingers have twisted, laced and interlaced pieces of suede and the result is a knockout pair of shoes. With such shoes a matching bag is worn of the same delightful color scheme . . . the red and blue leather motifs are appliqued on a background of glorious old gold colored suede.

Evening sandals continue to be a good scandal since the confining straps shrink nightly, till apprehensive souls shiver lest we return to thonged simple sandals depending on one toe for anchorage. All the newest evening dancing slippers have two or three, seldom more, extremely slender straps and a thin sole and a snooty high heel, high in altitude and in color. Luxurious jeweled clasps make up in glamour what is lost in protective covering.

The hose that exposes even more than the sandals are the sheerest cobwebs that can be bought . . . silken snares, in most instances the same flesh shade as the sun tanned skin of the dancer.

The newest white footwear is of a thin white lizard, very supple and porous, especially practical for hot weather wear . . . new models are contrasted with black patent leather and stitched in black. Other whites are of linen and a delightful pebbly cloth called marcelle, and, of course, you can always find the white slender kidskin shoes, the classic kidskin opera pumps that go everywhere with the smartest of white and summer tinted clothes and accessories.

Navy Coat, White Dress Favorite of Ultra-Chic French

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Ensembles are not what they used to be in Paris fashions. Gone are the days when coat and dress must match in fabric and color alike. Style dictators have become more lenient. One coat may take as many dresses, in a different color and fabric, as it likes. But there is one point on which Paris is strict. Coats must be all-enveloping, and whether they actually are first cousins to the dresses beneath or not, when on, they must seem to have no relation.

Of course, you may satisfy your own personal tastes about colors. You may wear the practical black coat, but if you want to be chic you will wear a coat in navy blue, which is almost as practical as black and twice as smart this season. Your dress, too, may suit your color fancy. Paris says white is the ultra-chic color to go under the navy coat on a summer afternoon, but there are no hard and fast rules—let your conscience be your guide. Some smart Parisiennes are reversing the usual order, and are wearing white coats over navy or black dresses.

In the sketch today you see a navy blue coat and a white dress. They are both in a heavy canton crêpe. The coat has a small collar and its long sleeves are caped. Slightly indented at the unbelted waist, it gives just a slight blouse effect. This coat owes half its charm to its intricately cut bands in both the waist and skirt section.

Open Splendid Exhibition on Architecture

Models and Photographs on Display.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

A MOST extraordinarily interesting exhibition was opened with a formal preview last night. It is the display of modern architecture assembled by the Museum of Modern Art, New York, under the direction of Philip Johnson of the staff of that museum. In conjunction with this is shown selected models of Chicago modern and Century of Progress architecture.

The modern architecture as illustrated by models and photographs from places other than Chicago, and many of them from countries other than the United States, stresses symmetrical simplicity first. Secondly, there is shown an honest use of the material at the architect's disposal. There is no sham about true modern architecture nor any falsifying of the character of the material. Pilasters, false fronts, unnecessary columns, balconies, porches or whatever it may be that are not in honest keeping with the building in question are ruthlessly swept away from the design of the modern architect.

Louis Sullivan, dean of modern architects, in the Chicago fair of 1893 forecast in his beautiful building with its gorgeous "golden portal" the true modern architecture of today. Frank Lloyd Wright, in a house built in 1907, forecast modern architecture. Do not mistake it: there are the two architectures, modern and modernist. Chicago's 1933 exposition buildings are modernist.

One of the most beautiful modern houses, perhaps the more comprehensive word, building, may be used, in the world, is the Tugendhat House, Brno, Czechoslovakia, of which Miss Van Der Rohe was the architect. The house was built in 1930. You will find it beautiful because of its perfect balance and proportion, its exquisite symmetry and simplicity. Walls of onyx and infinite windows of glass are compatible with its serene rightness. Another illustrated example of modern architecture at its best is the Savoye House, Poissy-sur-Seine, built in 1930 by Le Corbusier.

The exhibition is of interest to layman and architect, student and professional. It is housed in the Sears gallery, sixth floor, of the Sears, Roebuck & Co. building at Van Buren and State streets. The exhibit is sponsored by leading citizens and such organizations as the Architects' club, the Arts club, the Renaissance Society of the University of Chicago, the Gallery of Modern Life and the Association of Arts and Industries.

All Fair Buildings Will Be Open to Exhibits by Women

A decision to throw open all the World's Fair buildings to women's exhibits rather than to have a special woman's building was announced yesterday by exposition officials. The position follows a policy of two years' standing, and any proposals to the contrary have been rejected.

At the first World's Fair in Chicago in 1893 Mrs. Potter Palmer headed a board of women managers who took a prominent part in the exposition's activities.

A statement of the policy of the 1933 Fair was issued by officials yesterday. "Woman's position in the economic and social world has become too important to be isolated in a women's building," the statement read. "The exhibits of women should be placed side by side with the contributions of men."

An international congress of women will be held in connection with the fair. Plans are being made by the National Council of Women, of which Lena Madsin Phillips, a New York attorney, is president. Besides the congress the national council is planning a display in the social science building the power, growth, and development of women's organizations in the last 50 years. Dr. Kathryn McHale of the American Association of University Women is preparing a book on the history and significance of women's organizations.

$2,000,000 World Foundation to Aid Battle on Cancer

Philadelphia, Pa., June 8.—(AP)—The death of a beloved son three years ago has led to the creation here of a $2,000,000 foundation for world-wide cancer research.

The moving spirit in the new force is William H. Donner, of Villanova, retired steel manufacturer of Pittsburgh, who today was elected president of the International Cancer Research Foundation, a Pennsylvania corporation.

Mr. Donner, it is understood, has placed at the disposal of the foundation cash and securities on the basis of today's values amounting to $2,000,000. This was set aside by Mr. Donner as a trust in 1929 when his son, Joseph W. Donner, died.

The hope of the foundation, as announced by Mr. Donner, is that it will "increase interest in the amount and quality of cancer research; develop new minds and theories; broaden the viewpoint of some investigators already in the field, and increase cooperation among scientists throughout the world, correlating results of their investigations and preventing duplication of work."

Youngster of 10 Years Demands Permanent Wave for Birthday

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We heard the other day about a youngster of 10 demanding for her birthday present a permanent wave. Mother offered a new bike, a new party frock or a wrist watch as a substitute gift. But with the youngster it was a permanent or nothing.

The advice given to the mother when she put her child problem up to a woman friend was to give the youngster a permanent, not on the head but where we of a generation not permitted orgies of "self-expression" were wont to receive chastisement.

Well, another mamma asks our advice about turning a child loose on a manicure set which happened to be given as a present. The item of content that intrigues the child most is the nail coloring. Still, the mother notes that her 11 year old is taking more interest in nails, her own included. It's not nearly so much of a job now to have the girl appear at table with clean hands and nails.

We would discourage the nail tinting. There does seem to be some question about the wisdom of its frequent use on young nails. Anyway, the tinted nail tip is just too worldly for an 11 year old. But encouraging the young ones to make use of the cleaning instruments in the manicure case is a good thing. Clean hands mean more than just clean hands at this tender age. We have it from skin specialists that much of the pimple and acne trouble that begins about this time could be minimized if clean hands were encouraged. The young ones' hands being notoriously into everything and necessarily picking up germs and soil in the course of a day, it is wise to teach them the pride of cleanliness.

As for the permanents, our recommendation is akin to that of the friend who advised the permanent in chastisement form for a 10 year old. Mothers with a passion for curled hair on their youngsters should begin with the brush at an early age. Straight hair can be converted into beautiful curls with the daily brushing if the brushing is done in the opposite direction from the usual procedure. Brush the hair up and to right and left, always on the up movement of the brush.

If the child reaches 10 without this brushing treatment, it is better to let the hair remain straight and to study becoming cuts for the child. Time enough when she is in her late 'teens to take on the permanent treatment.

Sudden Love

By ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her forlorn young life between the office where she is an inefficient typist and a dismal home. The widowed Mrs. Sully loves her children blindly, but doesn't know how to direct their spiritual or physical needs. Lew, a year older than Esmee, is mingling in bad company. Jimmy Connadine, a crook lawyer, forces Lew, whom he has in his power, to introduce his sister. Lew warns her she'll make trouble unless she keeps away from Jimmy. Esmee is fascinated by Jimmy's grand manner, but finds him an unmanageable lover. But when she meets Michael Marriott, a dissipated young playwright, imbued with the futility of life, it's love at first sight and she feels Michael's need of her is real. Esmee is late keeping a dinner engagement with Michael because of Jimmy, who threatens trouble. When she gets to Michael's apartment she is met by Arthur Twining, Michael's roommate, and Mrs. Cowley, Michael's sister, but no Michael. Returning home she finds him waiting for her. He'd been drinking heavily. Esmee takes him home in a cab, but he has no key and can't get in. In desperation she takes him to a hotel and registers as his wife. When she calls the hotel next morning she learns Michael has checked out. That evening Claire Cowley invites Esmee to dinner and tells her that Michael is engaged. But when Michael calls Esmee goes to see him. He tells her his engagement is broken, that he can't live without her and wants to marry her. Esmee tries unsuccessfully to break with Jimmy. He accuses her of double crossing him and threatens to have Lew sent to jail. Esmee drives out to the country with him on Sunday. He promises freedom for Lew if she will spend the week-end with him and forces her to accompany him to a roadhouse where his word is law. Michael has trailed Jimmy's car.

INSTALLMENT XXII.

MAD GALLANTRY.

A desperation, a fury possessed Esmee. She began to struggle against Jimmy tigerishly, with such violence that he let her go for a moment. She made a dart for the door, but he caught her by the arm. She turned and struck him as hard as she could on the chest with her clenched fist.

"I like that," he said. "Like you to show a little spirit."

Then he spread out her fragile little fingers and looked at them.

"God!" he said. "You poor little devil!"

"Jimmy—you will let me go—won't you?"

"I can't," he answered, with a queer sombreness. "I'd keep you if I went to hell for it."

He was still holding her by the hand and she looked up into his face and saw there his torment, his most bitter compulsion. He did not want to love her as he did. He had the pride of Lucifer. He was strong, arrogant, free—but for this one passion he could not master. He did not trust her. He never could trust her. He knew she would never be quite in his world. He resented her way of speaking, her unaccountable squeamishness, yet he could not let her go and forget her.

Michael fired and Michael did not miss.

"Well, just what's your idea of the way I ought to act?" he demanded. "Just hand you over to this guy and say God bless you?"

There was a knock at the door of the adjoining room.

"Get the hell out of there?" shouted Jimmy, and the knocking ceased. "No, he went on. "If you'll be good to me I'll be great to you. I'll give you——"

Michael came walking in through the bathroom.

With a movement quick as a snake Jimmy's hand darted under his coat. But Michael already had him covered with a revolver.

"Stick 'em up!" said Michael.

Jimmy flung Esmee behind him with a movement so sudden and violent that she fell to the floor. But neither he nor Michael were looking at her, or thinking of her. Jimmy put his hands in his pockets and regarded Michael.

"What d'you think you're going to do about it?" he asked.

"I don't particularly care what I do," Michael answered. "I'm going to take Esmee home; that's all. If you want trouble you can have it."

Esmee had risen to her feet and stood leaning back limply in a corner.

Jimmy was smiling his insolent smile, but Michael had a sort of insolence beyond measure crueler; a cool, aristocratic disdain. Jimmy had superb courage, and he had foresight, resource, expert ingenuity. Michael had that mad gallantry that would send him, utterly unprepared, into any peril.

"You're not going to take Esmee anywhere," said Jimmy. "Get that."

"You know," said Michael, "I've shot deer—and I don't like it. I don't particularly like to shoot you down in cold blood—unless I have to. But I can, you know. And I undoubtedly will, if necessary. Esmee, go over to the window."

With a gesture almost too quick to follow Jimmy had pulled a revolver out from under his arm. As he shot, Esmee screamed and Michael sprang aside. And then Michael fired, and Michael did not miss.

Jimmy stumbled backward and sank into a chair, his face a mask of pain. He was grasping one elbow with his hand. But he made no sound.

"Other—door!" called Jimmy.

"Locked," said Michael briefly. "Esmee, stay here. Pick up his gun—there, near the bed. If he tries to get up, call me."

He went into the next room, as Frank was kicking on the door.

"Wait a moment!" he said. "I'll let you in."

Then he flung up the window and looked down into the driveway below, where his car stood, the chauffeur straight and correct at the wheel.

"Pyne!" he called. "Drive like hell and bring the police here."

"You needn't send for the police," came Jimmy's voice. "You can go—you and the girl."

"Hold on, Pyne!" called Michael; and to Jimmy: "Mean that?"

"You can go," Jimmy repeated.

"Then, see here, Pyne. Wait five minutes, and if I'm not out there go for the police."

"Very good, sir," answered Pyne, imperturbable.

"Let 'em go, Frank," said Jimmy. "Both of them."

"Then come on, Esmee," said Michael.

But she did not move. She stood behind Jimmy's chair, looking at him. Then she drew near, and, bending, kissed him on the forehead. Because of her great pity for his suffering, and because he had loved her, and, most of all, because she had once thought she loved him.

"I'm sorry, Jimmy," she whispered.

Michael was coming back through the door and Jimmy looked at him.

"You've shattered the bone in my arm," he said. "And you'll die for it. I swear by God you'll die for it."

They went out together through the door of the other room, Michael and Esmee, and Frank came rushing in, past them.

The hall below was crowded. Every one who had been eating or drinking on the veranda had come in there.

"Say! What happened up there?" cried one man. I heard shots and a woman scream."

"Just a couple of Wops getting excited," Michael reassured him. "Nothing to worry about."

"Nothing to worry about!" Frank's voice repeated, behind them. "Two men, I let them have a room. They're drinking; they got in one big fight. But nobody hurt. All I think is, I keep this quiet. I don't want all these nice ladies and gen'lemen to go to de court, for witness. Nobody don't like to be witness."

Nobody did. They began to move away, some back to the veranda, some toward the door.

"You please take your seats like he was and I open some little, nice champagne I got. On de house. Nobody pay for heem. I don't never have before in my house any trouble. I don't want these nice ladies and gen'lemen they go away and think maybe something bad about Gallani's."

He was still talking, with vehemence, as Michael and Esmee went out.

And then Michael said something she never forgot.

"D'you know, Esmee," he said a little unsteadily; "I felt—sorry for that fellow I hit."

Michael wanted to take her arm, but with a mechanical smile she drew a little away from him, walked down the steps and across the drive, carrying herself very straight.

"That's an awfully cute car you've got, Michael," she observed.

He glanced at her uneasily. This time he couldn't understand her. He was afraid she was about to faint, to burst into tears. There were, indeed, still the marks of tears on her face, but otherwise she was, he thought, abnormally composed. He himself felt very far from composure; his highstrung nature was fairly quivering with a strange and painful excitement. He had shot a man, hurt him like the devil, perhaps crippled him. His imagination developed the theme prodigiously. Perhaps one of those fellows in that house, one of those fellows whose faces haunted him, would take this chance to finish off the fellow.

And Esmee, who had witnessed everything, who had been through heaven knew what horror and wretchedness, could be so composed now. She couldn't, obviously, imagine what this day had been for him, the feverish anxiety of the previous night, the dread of this day. Her face, when he had seen her going upstairs with that fellow, that smile of hers, the smile of a lost little martyr going to the stake.

But if she wanted it like this, she should have it.

London Theaters Get Shock as Three Hits Face Closing

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 8.—West end theaters which have suffered a score of one week runs the last six months got their biggest shock yet this afternoon when C. B. Cochran hung "last week" signs outside the most successful productions in London.

Noel Coward's "Cavalcade," Reinhardt's "Miracle," and "Helen?" the last written by A. P. Herbert, all are coming off the boards in the near future. "Cavalcade" played its 300th performance tonight. It drew record houses at first and Coward sold the film rights to a Hollywood company at a fancy figure.

"Helen?" has played 150 nights and "Miracle" seventy-five. The costlier seats are nearly empty and Cochran is scaling down the prices in an effort to keep the productions, all of them employing vast companies, running a little longer although there are "indications that public support is not forthcoming."

Real Nobility Marks Novel of Missionary

'The Answering Glory' Has Vivid Character.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Answering Glory," by R. O. Hutchinson [Farrar & Rinehart]. Published June 6.

IF any one offered you a book about a missionary to Africa and told you that the only thing that happened in it was her last trip to London, where she died alone and in poverty, you would probably find some charming excuse to decline the pleasure of reading it.

Life is depressing enough nowadays, you might say to yourself if not to your generous friend, and I don't have to read about lonely old maids dying in want. And you would blithely pass by, for want of a little of the quality of the heroine of "The Answering Glory," a book which, oddly enough, and despite its apparently gloomy subject matter, does give you a leg up on that perilous ladder of "faith in human beings."

Most modern fiction is devoted to reducing men and women to the lowest common denominator. Mind you, I'm not complaining about modern fiction, or saying that the truth about the lowest common denominator is not stimulating to the spirit—because it is truth! But I do say that it has been a sort of accepted fact that books about "nobility" are either soppy or so false as to be nauseating. There has been the cheap "nobility" of the Iris Marshes and the saccharine droolings of hundreds of other heroines whom I, in charity, do not name.

Rare Type of Nobility.

We all know, however, that absolutely simple, noble souls do walk the face of this earth. Mostly their simplicity and their nobility is founded on their confidence that they walk with their hands in the hand of God and are supported by His everlasting arms. In the "religious," oftener than in other types, is pure, simple selflessness found. A picture of that rare type is almost out of date, what with our Freuds and our "conditionings" of which they, simple creatures that they are, would never dream.

R. C. Hutchinson, a twenty-five year old Englishman, has bravely chosen such a type as the heroine of his first novel. S. Thompson [Dr. Thompson, perhaps Sadie, for all we know] is an old woman of indeterminate age, forty years "Mother" to an island full of savages off the African coast, a woman who honestly and quite simply has never thought of herself during those forty years and who has an inner something which has kept her going through unimagined labor and trials. She has a true missionary spirit and it is with a breaking heart that she leaves her charges—taken bodily away by a sailing captain who sees death written on her face. Her few months in London, her momentous trip to a girls' school, are described in detail. And the spark which her simple devotion kindles in the heart of a young girl lights the latter pages.

It is a record of hardship and poverty and discomfort and discouragement, but through the pages shines the real nobility of the human spirit. There are parts of the book which are dull and which are badly done—the part about Dr. Thompson's visit to the school in Bristol and the description of the life at the school, for instance, but the inner reality of the spirit of Miss Thompson never is lost in the pages.

Book Is Not Depressing.

Oddly enough the book is not a depressing one at all. Its tragedy is the tragedy only of Miss Thompson's inability to do all that she wants for others. There is no falseness about her self-lessness. It is as real as the super selfishness of most modern heroines. There is something in that old warrior's spirit that is so indomitable that it is inspiring.

The author is not in the least sentimental about his heroine. He doesn't need to be. She has enough appeal in her own right to win any reader's heart. No matter what the reader feels about the use she put her life to, he knows that Miss Thompson LIVED in a vital sense. And the picture of that shabby, sick, bewildered figure in London, sturdily and passionately set on one thing in life, returning to her charges, is a touching and an unforgettable one.

"The Answering Glory" is one of those books that has practically every fault of a first novel, except sentimentality, but that has, on the other hand, a character so real and vivid and vital and touching that you can't forget her. You'll remember Dr. Thompson as you have never been able to forget Somerset Maugham's Sadie Thompson, two women ironically of the same name, but so different in a strange, far away spot.

Two Novels of Other Types.

Two novels which certainly have none of the fragrant old fashionedness of "The Answering Glory" are published today. They are "Crooner," by Rian James [King], and "Only the Rich," by Bruz Fletcher [King]. "Crooner" is about a dreamy voiced lad who, through publicity, became the first crooner of the land and who revolted against his fate, and used the enemy's weapons to his own ends.

"Only the Rich" is about a gal who had only 40 million dollars to her name [when she heired them] and who tracked romance to its lair as "only the rich" can afford to.

Yesterday we talked about slow cooking meat cuts for summer—what to buy and why, and a little of how to cook our inexpensive cuts so they could turn up at the table tender, juicy, and flavorful, and call forth as much whole hearted praise as any of their aristocratic and higher priced steak and chop cousins.

And today I promised to be silent and let recipes talk. So here they are: Three savory dishes for using slow cooking meats. Three suggestions for doing away with needless expense, stove watching, and last minute scrambles in a hot kitchen. I've already found them a big relief as the days grow warmer—and here's hoping you do, too.

BRAISED LAMB WITH EGGPLANT.

3 pounds lamb from shoulder.
1 medium sized eggplant.
2 tablespoons chopped onion.
6 potatoes.
3 stalks celery.
1 green pepper.
3 teaspoons salt.
½ teaspoon powdered thyme.
1 bay leaf.

Wipe the meat with a damp cloth and rub well with salt, pepper, and flour. Sear, then brown well in a deep baking dish or iron kettle. Add one-third cup of water, the onion, the eggplant, which has been skinned and cubed, and the celery, and pepper cut fine. Sift over this the seasoning, cover and cook in a slow oven [300 degrees F.] an hour and a half. Add the peeled, uncut potatoes. Cover again and cook until meat and potatoes are tender—an hour or more. Serve with mint sauce or currant jelly.

STUFFED FLANK STEAK.

Flank steak.
2 cups stale bread crumbs.
1 medium onion chopped fine.
2-3 cup chopped celery.
1 teaspoon salt.
Pepper to taste.
2 tablespoons pork drippings or butter.

Wipe the meat with a damp cloth and lay it out ready for stuffing. Heat the fat in a frying pan and brown in it the onion and celery. Add the other ingredients and simmer five minutes. If too dry to pack together, add a little hot water. Spread the stuffing over the steak, and starting at the side, roll it up like a jelly roll. Tie around firmly in several places with string. Sear on all sides in a little fat in a heavy skillet. When well browned slip a shallow rack under the meat, cover tightly, and cook in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] till tender, about one and one-half hours. When done drain off part of fat, and prepare gravy from juices, remaining fat, flour paste, and milk. If desired, potatoes may have been cooked with the meat during the last hour.

NECK SLICES OF LAMB EN CASSEROLE.

Have the neck of lamb sliced one inch thick, and remove the small bones carefully from each one. Roll each piece into a round like a cutlet and skewer securely. Rub the slices with salt, pepper, and flour, and sear in meat drippings in a Dutch oven. Add one cup of tomato juice or half and half meat stock and sour cream, and simmer over low heat for one hour, or until tender. Uncover to brown. Remove slices and make gravy of fat and meat juices. Season with a little horseradish.

Lovely Miniatures Will Have Preview.

summer that she took the lessons in wood carving which made it possible for her to carve the exquisite things she has made. I could go on for columns, trying to describe the various things, but you can go and see them for yourself next week, which will be much more satisfactory than reading about them!

The doll house, which Mrs. Thorne made last year for the Woman's Exchange, of which she is president, started her on the designing and arrangement of the model rooms for in making the house she became so interested in fitting everything in a room to the proper scale that she decided to do some rooms that would be beyond the doll house stage [although the house looked perfect to me] and would really be examples of the best in architecture and decoration.

Narcissa Swift Poem Published.

Miss Narcissa Swift, who has been writing industriously ever since she went to New York last winter, is one of 29 students of Sarah Lawrence college whose work is to be published in a volume entitled "New Strung Bow."

The book, which is one of the first undergraduate anthologies to be professionally published, is scheduled to appear on June 17.

The announcement of the publication of the poem is doubly interesting coming at the same time of the announcement of the showing of the artistic achievement of Mrs. Thorne. Miss Swift is the niece and namesake of Mrs. Thorne.

Miss Swift was graduated from Sarah Lawrence in 1930 and the poem to appear in the volume is one she wrote when she was a student in the creative writing class of the college. Her parents, the Alden B. Swifts of 209 Lake Shore drive, have opened their summer estate in Lake Forest.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Rend gave a dinner party last night at their residence at 70 Scott street for members of their own family and of the family of Miss Helen Rend's fiancé, John Vaughn Clarke III., son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Clarke of Pasadena. Mr. Clarke's parents arrived at the Pearson hotel last Thursday, the day Miss Rend's engagement to their son was announced. They are former Chicagoans.

Summer Trip of Miss Bartlett.

Miss Florence Dibell Bartlett, who closes her Chicago residence every summer and sails to Europe for a grand holiday, is planning another trip this year which makes stay-at-homes envious.

With Judge Mary Barthelme, she is to leave New York on the Ile de France on the 21st. They are to go first to Majorca for several weeks and then to Switzerland before returning to Chicago in early September.

Last year, you remember, Miss Bartlett spent the summer in Sweden and brought back with her some intriguing additions to her famous collection of wall hangings which was exhibited at the Art institute last winter under the auspices of the Antiquarian society.

Invitations have been received by the Chicago friends of Miss Josephine Allyn for her marriage on June 25 to Samuel Young Ramage III. of Oil City, Pa., and there probably will be quite a few of them going up to Delavan, Wis., on that day for the wedding.

The marriage will take place at 4 o'clock at the Christ Episcopal church in Delavan, with a reception following at the Delavan Country club. Miss Allyn, who was graduated from Miss Erskine's school in Boston last spring, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pratt Allyn of Delavan.

Two interesting announcements arrived yesterday from the Arts club. Because of the political conventions the club has postponed its usual closing date and the clubrooms will remain open during this month. Luncheon and tea will be served until the 20th and tea only from the 20th to the 30th.

The second announcement should be a welcome one to Arts club members who are vacationing abroad this summer: The club has made an arrangement with the Sporting Club de France in Paris whereby members will be admitted to that club for one month at a fee of $6. It is located in the former mansion of Baron Roger and has a swimming pool and gymnasium and restaurant facilities.

Party for Y. W. Groups.

Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, chairman of the metropolitan business and profession women's committee of the Y. W. C. A., is to be hostess to members of her committee and of the city-wide council of the Y. W. C. A. business girls at a picnic supper and garden party tomorrow evening at her residence on Rosemary road in Lake Forest. After supper there will be a discussion of vocational counsel for business girls.

Mr. and Mrs. Snelling Robinson of Lake Forest and their children will depart a week from Saturday for their annual summer stay at Northport, Me.

Mrs. Mellen C. Martin of Winnetka and Mrs. Wesley Polk of Evanston are sailing Saturday from Montreal on the Empress of Australia. Mrs. Martin, who is well known as a Spanish dancer, will give a recital in Lausanne, Switzerland, on June 23, and Mrs. Polk will play her accompaniments. Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Polk will go to Spain for a visit before returning home late in August.

Mrs. Martin will bring home with her the two Martin children, Marilyn and Edward, who have been in school in Zurich for the last year.

Mrs. Neil C. Ward will sail on Friday with her sister, Miss Neil Cronin of Janesville, for a two months' holiday abroad. On their return in early August Mrs. Ward will join her husband and their small daughter, Mary Ann, at their camp on Batchewana Bay, Canada. Mary Ann will be at a girls' camp in the meantime. The Wards have given up their apartment at 219 Lake Shore drive and in the fall they will move to Memphis for a year or so.

Ira Nelson Morris, who has been traveling in Europe since midwinter, returned to Chicago yesterday. Mrs. Morris, after a stay at their country estate at Manchester, Mass., has gone to New York for a few days and will join her husband at their Lake Shore drive hotel apartment next week. They both, of course, want to attend the political conventions, and probably will remain here for several weeks afterwards. Mr. Morris has been busy in Europe with the International Radio Forum and has plans for putting on another of his good will programs from Chicago.

Kemper Hall Exercises.

Girls from Chicago and its suburbs have figured prominently in the commencement exercises this week at Kemper hall in Kenosha. "Cranford," adapted from Mrs. Gaskell's much loved book, was given as the commencement play on Tuesday evening and diplomas will be presented to the graduates this evening.

Local girls who will say farewell to the school today include Miss Elizabeth Lindsay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey B. Lindsay of Evanston; Miss Susanne Peirce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Peirce of Winnetka; Miss Joan Parker, daughter of the C. Paul Parkers of Evanston; Miss Bernice Diersen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ewald Diersen of 2438 Smalley court, and Miss Jean Vollantine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Vollantine of Hinsdale.

Freshmen Get First Tests of U. of C. System

Questions of the short answer type were given yesterday to 204 University of Chicago students who have completed the first year of work under the university's new plan of education. This test was the first of a series of comprehensive examinations unique in college history and will be the only method of determining whether the student has been successful in his year's work.

The physical sciences examination, for which six hours were alloted yesterday, constitutes the first of a series of four quisses covering "general education." Educators throughout the country are watching the university's experiment in freeing the student from all other requirements than an ability to pass these examinations.

Among the tests which the students were directed to underline the one word or phrase in the parenthesis that makes the correct statement were the following:

"The period of the apparent diurnal motion of a star near the pole star is (exactly equal to, greater than, less than) the period of a star near the celestial equator."

"The differences in mean temperature at different latitudes are due (largely, partly, not at all) to the number of hours per year the sun is above the horizon at the particular latitude."

"Of two regions at the same latitude, a dry region at high altitude would be apt to have (an earlier, a later) spring, from the standpoint of climate than a humid region at sea level."

A question in physics was:

"A workman on a high building drops his hammer. The hammer strikes the pavement below in four seconds. Answer the following questions, assuming that gravity causes an acceleration of 32 feet per second per second:

"How high was the man above the pavement?

"How far did the hammer fall in the first two seconds?

"What was its velocity at the end of the third second?

"What was its velocity when it struck the pavement?"

Other puzzlers were:

"A certain quantity of gas is in a closed vessel at 27 degrees Centigrade. If the volume remains constant, to what temperature must the gas be heated in order to double the pressure?"

Japanese, Heiress to U. S. Fortune, Is Bride of American

Haverford, Pa., June 8.—(AP)—Miss Fuji Hashimoto Hale Adamson, a daughter of Japanese parents and heiress to the fortune of a Philadelphia manufacturer, was married today to Henry L. Stephens, an engineer of Brooklyn and this city.

The bride, who is 30 years old, inherited the estate of her foster father, William Baeder Adamson, glue manufacturer, who died in April, 1931. He was a childless widower.

She is the daughter of a Japanese gardener and maid who were employed by Adamson at the time of her birth. When she was an infant she became the manufacturer's ward and when she was 4 years old her parents returned to Japan.

A year before Adamson's death she was legally adopted by him. Stephens is 37.

Boy Suddenly Starts to Fight All His Friends

Worried Brother Asks for Advice.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Buck, 21, has a brother, 19, Terry by name. Terry had an excellent school record. He is a bright, smart boy. His mother had plans for a college education and expected great things of him. Then came a girl, an alleged insult before the girl—and Terry's gone "tough guy" all of a sudden. He's taken to loud gangster's clothes, tough talk, and goes around picking fights without provocation. Has given up all thought of college. Got himself a job, and a good one for so young a boy, because he is smart. He keeps the tough side down during working hours.

It seems his downfall started one night at a dance to which he had taken the girl. Some one made a sneering remark about his size in the presence of his girl.

"Well," his brother reports, "Terry started right in on this fellow and gave him a terrific lacing. I never saw him so worked up before."

Why not turn the fighting spirit into real fight channels? Get the boy to take up fighting. Tell him he's got the stuff in him to go over big. Turn him over to a fight instructor. Let him work it out of his system this way. If he gets into the hands of a good boxing man, some one experienced in handling boys, he'll come through all right.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Charley Berry, pretty sore about having a homer go to waste in Tuesday's White Sox opener with the Washington Senators, yesterday socked a story book triple with the bases full, two out in the ninth, and two strikes against him. The three runs thus accrued were just enough to give the Comiskeys a 3 to 2 verdict over the second place Washingtonians.

Charley's mammoth smack, a liner to deep right center, was the fifth hit the Sox troupe was able to accomplish. Robert Burke, the Joliet beanpole, had done a great job of pitching, but was yanked with two out and two on in the ninth after he had thrown two wide ones to Kress. Lloyd Brown went in and finished the pass to Kress, filling the bases. Then Mr. Berry functioned.

Mr. Daglia Wins in Debut.

The Sox went into the ninth with the distressing knowledge that no one had made a hit off Burke after Selph's infield scratch in the fourth. The distress was greater when Blue flied to West. Hodapp landed when Myer fumbled his grounder. The Sox were sadder than ever when Selph flied to West for the second out.

There was some perking up when Fothergill lined a single to left, Hodapp stopping at second. Burke couldn't get two over for Kress and Manager Walter Johnson went to the center of the diamond to talk to him, after which came the aforementioned yanking of Burke and the happenings immediately subsequent thereto.

Pete Daglia, recently arrived from Oakland, got credit for the victory. His chore was retiring the Senators in order in the ninth, on eight pitches, after Ted Lyons had given way to Pinch Batter Appling in the eighth. Ted had pitched one of his old time games, allowing only seven hits. He had held the invaders helpless except during the sixth, when they bunched three of those seven hits to score their two runs.

Burke Gets the Rap.

Burke was the losing pitcher under the rule that the walk to Kress, who scored the winning run, was chargeable to Burke, even though the pass was given on two more balls thrown by Brown. If Burke had thrown only one ball to Kress, Brown would have taken the rap.

During the first five innings Burke and Lyons were almost equally stingy. Eighteen batsmen faced each pitcher in this span. A double and an infield single was the hitting record against Lyons, and a double by Kress and infield singles by Berry and Selph was

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BASEBALL CHATTER.

WHEN Chicago's Cubs surprised baseball critics and many of their own admirers by going out and setting the pace in the National league baseball race, discussion naturally arose over their weak team batting. The Wake dug out a series of statistics to show that no title winner of either league during the last eight seasons had finished the year worse than fourth in collective swatting. The Cubs at that time were eighth in batting.

Whereupon Hornsby's young men proceeded to collect bingles and gradually stepped up the rounds of the batting ladder. At the last unofficial compilation they were third, only 15 points behind New York, which was having difficulty keeping out of the cellar in the percentage standing and whose plight led to the retirement of the veteran McGraw.

This increased batting was offset by weakening in those departments in which the Cubs were surprising. Pitching became less effective. Those brilliant fielding youngsters became erratic in defense, just as the conservative Mr. Vaughan, in our office argument, suggested was possible.

What Manager Hornsby has wanted all season, another cleanup hitter, is still lacking, of course. Otherwise The Wake is not dissatisfied. Perhaps, even probably, the Cubs may not become champions. They at least are contenders. This later increased club batting, if continued, will have its place when pitching and fielding return to the early season standard, if they do return. The point is, the Cubs still are playing above the level for which they were pegged by most critics before the season opened.

Major league pennant races in number of games played are about one-third over. There is a wide disparity in range from top to bottom in the two circuits. Mathematically, eight teams in the National still have a chance for the flag. Betting odds give four of them a pretty even chance. In the American league five teams suggest gonfalon chances.

Richbourg.

Wake: In 1928, when the Boston Braves were floundering around helplessly in the National league race, one player on that team continued trying as if a championship were at stake—Lance Richbourg. Before pitifully small crowds at Boston he tore in for shoestring catches, backed up his infield religiously, and at beating out a bunt compared with Ty Cobb. In 1930, playing here against the Cubs, he banged out three triples in one game. Now, with a team of different caliber, he is playing brilliantly in right field and getting proper appreciation for the first time in his life.

SANDWICH LINKS PIE TO SARAZEN; HE SHOOTS A 70

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SANDWICH, England, June 7.—Gene Sarazen, with a 70, had a stroke lead today in the first round of the British open championship over his compatriot, MacDonald Smith, and the Englishmen, Percy Alliss, W. H. Davies, and Charles A. Whitcombe.

When Sarazen came to the 480 yard eighteenth hole this afternoon he needed a birdie 4 in order to lead the field. He drove a long tee shot into the great wallfaced bunker to the left of the fairway.

He took a niblick and chopped the ball with a swift stroke sideways into the fairway. "Bad luck," shouted the sympathetic spectators. Gene just smiled. He cracked a No. 3 iron shot onto the green, 30 feet to the left of the pin. It was a dead straight putt and Sarazen had started for the clubhouse before the ball was halfway to the cup.

Armour Cards a 75.

Smith, Allis, Davies, and Whitcombe had all had their putts for 70s on the last green, but failed.

Tommy Armour, who was putting badly, rolled in with a 75 and was "lucky to get that," he admitted. Walt Pursey had a 76. The two American amateurs, Robert Sweeney, with 76, and Douglas Grant, with 82, were far down the list.

The Prince's course today, with practically no rough and no wind, appeared almost too easy for a championship course. It came to be a battle on the greens, and there the leaders fought it out. The greens were too fast for the majority of the amateurs, who did so well yesterday.

The greens beat Abe Mitchell, too, and Samuel Ryder, his patron for five years, disconsolately remarked that the honor which the British public so wanted for the great golfer had eluded him once again.

Americans Best Putters.

Spirits were high in the American camp. Sarazen and Mac Smith are in fine positions, and Armour is not far behind.

Edward Blackwell, one of the world's finest hitters of a golf ball in his day, after watching MacDonald Smith, said that this championship is going to be won by the best runup putter, and the Americans have already shown themselves masters of this art. Smith, however, missed from less than two feet at the fourth and seventh, and missed from four feet on the eighteenth when trying for a 70. But he one-putted on six greens, holing his ball from fifteen feet at the ninth and from ten yards at the fifteenth.

Smith is an emotionless golfer and a spectator, after a quick glance at his somber gray and black garb, remarked disappointedly on joining the gallery: "O, he's not one of the Americans; he's a country pastor."

Armour was unfortunate in finding deep footmarks in the bunkers where his second shots landed at the second and eighth. The eighth cost him a 6.

Gene Bags Birdie at 14th.

Sarazen's only mishap in the first nine was when he overran the green with his second at the eighth and pitched back too far, taking a 5. He kept his score at even 4s at the 13th by chipping dead from the rough. He stood two under 4s at the short 14th, where he sank a 14 foot putt for a birdie 2. He was nearly shipwrecked at the 16th, where he was off the green to the right with his second and chipped too far, but his 15 foot putt went down for a 4.

A birdie 4 at the long doglegged 17th is a gamble, but Sarazen's second wood shot curved around the corner onto the green and a ten yard putt just failed to drop for an eagle. It was a heartening effort for the tribulations of the last hole.

The two best amateurs were Lionel Munn and W. L. Hope with 74s.

Dale Letts Runs 660 Yards in 1:20.4 at Stagg Field

Dale Letts, former University of Chicago middle distance runner, who is now in training for the Olympic 800 meter race, yesterday covered 660 yards in 1:20.4 in a trial run on Stagg field. Coach Ned Merriam of the Maroon track team, who held one of two watches which caught Letts' time, believes that the ex-Maroon's mark is a full second under the world's record for that unusual distance.

Americans Open Davis Cup Battle with Brazil Today

New York, June 7.—[Special.]—The American zone final Davis cup match between the United States and Brazil will open on the Forest Hills courts tomorrow with Frank Shields, who ranks No. 3 among United States tennis players, meeting Ricardo Pernambuco, star of the visiting team.

Wilmer Allison, Texan, will meet Nelson Cruz. The doubles match will be played Friday. Although the draw has not been made, it is believed Allison and John Van Ryn, Philadelphia, will oppose Ivo Simoni and either Cruz or Carlos Aranha.

"We have no hope of winning the doubles match, so it doesn't matter whom we select to meet the American doubles team," said Ignacio Noguerira, nonplaying captain of the South American team.

COLLEGE TRACK STARS MENACE SIX OLD MARKS

372 Entrants Ready for Meet Tomorrow.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Six records may be broken in the national collegiate track and field meet tomorrow and Saturday at Stagg field. This is to say that six of the marks registered in the preceding ten championships are within the range of the best performers entered, but it is unlikely that all six will be broken. Indeed, if two records are supplanted it will be a splendid performance for the college men already have equalled one world figure, surpassed the accepted record for another, and have come close to world records in all others.

The records which may be broken are the 220 yard dash, the high and low hurdles, one mile and two mile runs and the high jump. George Simpson's record 220 yard sprint in 20 7-10 seconds, only one tenth of a second from the world mark, has been beaten this year by Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette university. Jack Keller of Ohio State has run the 120 yard high hurdles faster than the meet record of 14 4-10 seconds held by Earl Thomson of Dartmouth and Steve Anderson of Washington. This is the accepted world record. Keller won the Big Ten high hurdles in the spectacular time of 14 seconds, but he was aided by a strong wind which prevented acceptance of his race. George Saling of Iowa, who will resume his duel with Keller, equaled the world record at the Drake relays this spring.

Hurdles Mark Up to Keller.

Keller must be depended upon to break the low hurdle record of 23 2-10 seconds, if it is to be broken. Cuhel of Iowa and Sentman of Illinois jointly hold the record. Keller has run the distance in 22 9-10 seconds this year. The low hurdle race is not an Olympic event so Saling, who won this title in the Big Ten games with a record of 23 seconds, will not compete. He is shooting for the 400 meter hurdles, an Olympic race added to the N. C. A. A. program, and he may not run in the high hurdles. The 110 meter high hurdles, however, are run in the Olympics.

The 400 meter hurdle race is over three foot barriers, an intermediate height, since the high hurdles are 3 feet 6 inches and the low hurdles 2 feet 6 inches. Eugene Beatty of Michigan State Normal, who set an American collegiate record of 53 1-10 seconds for the 400 meter hurdles at the Pennsylvania relays, is favored to win the National Collegiate race. Saling probably is his chief competitor. Others in this are Simmons, Michigan State; Crank, Loyola; Duggins, Northwestern; Lambertus, Nebraska; McBeth, Notre Dame; Schrier, Western State Teachers; McGuire, Oklahoma Aggies; Wyngarden and Taylor, Morningside; Pearson, North Dakota; Roden and Braun, Wisconsin, and Thurston and Nugnis of Iowa.

Two Within Inch of Mark.

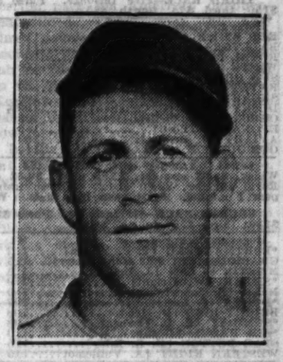
The high jump record of 6 feet 7¼ inches set in 1926 by W. C. Haggard, of the University of Texas, can be broken only if Spencer, Geneva college Negro star, or Bert Nelson of Butler comes through with a superior performance.

The records in the one mile and two mile are more likely to be broken. Here Henry Brocksmith of Indiana university and Glenn Cunningham of Kansas are the stars. Both have beaten the mark of 4 minutes 17 6-10 seconds in the mile while Brocksmith established a new American two mile mark at the Drake relays April 30.

The hop, step and jump is the other Olympic event added to the national collegiate championships. Weatherly of Monmouth, who jumped 47 feet 7¾ inches to win the 1931 title at the Drake relays, and Lambert Redd of Bradley, who defeated Weatherly this year in the same set of games with a mark of 47 feet 5 inches, are outstanding in the list of entrants.

The entries closed yesterday, sixty eight colleges and universities have entered 372 athletes. Last year there were ten more colleges, but the number of competitors was smaller.

OUT AT FIRST



Charley Grimm, Cubs' first baseman, suffered an injured hand in the Brooklyn game yesterday, but he'll be back in the lineup this afternoon.

Red Whisk Is Victor by a Short Whisker

BY FRENCH LANE.

Red Whisk, the flying chestnut from down in the blue grass country, dashed on toward the western 2 year old championship yesterday when he won the Sunset Ridge purse at Washington park.

It was his third consecutive victory here and his most impressive, for he had to be fleet of foot and game to the very inside of his heart to withstand the terrific challenge Edward R. Bradley's Ballygran made all through the stretch.

At the end Red Whisk was leading by an inch or two. "Make it a head," the chart callers chanted. It wasn't the margin of victory, however, but the way Red Whisk was going at the finish and the time he had hung up over a slow track that indicated to horsemen he is a great colt.

Time: One Minute.

Red Whisk had run the five furlongs in exactly one minute, fractions of a second off the track record, and he had outgamed and outrun Ballygran, which had beaten him in his first Chicago start of the year. Back in third place came Royal Blunder from the Audley Farm stable, beaten five lengths by the two leaders.

Red Whisk's victory didn't surprise most of the folks in the crowd of 9,000, for he was the favorite again, and not such a short priced one at that. He paid $5.22 to win, $2.88 to place, and $2.32 to show. Lots of folks had backed Ballygran, a son of Bubbling Over, and, of course, closely related to Burgoo King. And they say the Bradley connections wagered heavily on Ballygran. He paid $3.46 to place and $2.62 to show. Royal Blunder's show price was $2.60.

In the early running Ballygran fought it out for the lead with Snorky, a California colt, but Red Whisky would never let them get very far away. He was racing easily and in even stride in third place. He stayed there until they had rounded the bend heading for home.

Fisher Takes a Nap.

There was a narrow opening between Ballygran and Snorky at the head of the stretch. Jockey Fisher drove Red Whisk through it and took the lead. It killed off Snorky, but Ballygran held on like a stubborn old bulldog.

Midway down the stretch Ballygran had taken the lead again, but it wasn't Red Whisk's fault. Jockey Fisher was napping a bit and didn't know he would have to go to work on the son of Whiskalong. When he woke up Ballygran had a lead of half a length. But it lasted only for a few strides. Fisher began riding Red Whisk hard and he came on again, running in gamer fashion than Ballygran when he passed the line of finish with his proud head in front.

Royal Blunder's race behind Red Whisk and Ballygran was no feeble effort. He will do much better in the stake race, for he raced in heavy bandages yesterday and was running as fast as any of them when the verdict was returned.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 8.—The Cubs bounced right out of the hands of apparent defeat today and then went tearing along impressively to climb back into first place with a brilliant 7 to 5 fourteen inning victory over the occasionally diligent Dodgers.

For the better part of the afternoon the Chicagoans staggered almost hopelessly. Their pitching strength, as exhibited by Guy Bush, was woefully weak and after six bad innings Manager Hornsby mercifully took him out. Meanwhile there was no Cub hitting to speak of against the southpaw hurling of William Watson Clark. But the eighth changed it all. The Chicagoans suddenly swarmed on the left hander, crowded him out of the picture with a tying three run rally, and then went on behind Charley Root's sensational relief pitching until the bats of Riggs Stephenson, Gabby Hartnett and Bill Jurges broke up the party.

Stevie Starts It.

Stephenson's contribution which put an end to almost six innings of effective work by old Jack Quinn was a single to center to open the 14th. Hemsley tried to bunt but merely tapped into a forceout. Then Hartnett, in there as a first baseman since the opening inning because of an injury to Grimm's right hand, knocked the bottom right out of the Brooklyn ship. He sailed a triple into the right field corner and Hemsley raced home with the run that broke the 5 to 5 deadlock. Then Jurges made victory doubly sure by smacking a two bagger over third to count Hartnett.

Root's work as a rescuer was so outstanding that the wild bugs of Brooklyn had to acknowledge him quite a workman. When he stepped into the fight with the 5 to 5 tie at the start of the home eighth he walked the first man, but nothing came of it. He walked the first man in the ninth and nothing came of this because Lefty O'Doul bounced into a double play and Hack Wilson rolled easily to Herman. After that only one Dodger reached base and that was on the only hit Root yielded in seven innings of labor. The lone hit was the work of Quinn, who never got off first base in the eleventh.

Danny Taylor Says Hello.

Takes Two Firsts, Three Seconds and a Third.

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

Entries of the Sunset stables dominated the second day's exhibition at the twenty-third annual South Shore Country club horse show last night by winning two firsts, three seconds, and one third. A crowd of 1,000 witnessed the performance.

The Sunset horses took two first places and three seconds in the hunter divisions. Golden Sunset won a third place in the ladies' hunter class.

The big surprise of the show was the failure of Joanna Jones, defending champion in the $500 junior stake, to retain her title, losing it to Jennette Grey, an entry of the Milky Way farm. The former champion is the property of Dr. Charles Bramwell of Chicago. Edna Ann, another Bramwell horse, compensated in part for the loss, however, by winning the combination five-gaited event.

Device on Mowers Gives Birds Good Chance to Escape

BY BOB BECKER.

Land owners always have played an important part in raising and protecting bird life. In practically every state it is possible for a land owner to create a bird refuge on his acreage affording both song and game birds the most favorable opportunities for multiplying.

The state conservation department of Iowa goes a step farther to protect bird life in his fields. It is supplying a new flushing rod to farmers, a device which fits to cutting machines and sweeps ahead of the blades to flush nesting birds.

Many a bird is killed each summer as soon as the machines go into grain and hay fields. Invariably a nesting bird sits tight. Many won't fly until the clashing blades are right on them. Frequently they move too late to save themselves or their nestlings.

The flushing rod has been designed to give these devoted parents a chance. It was first tested in Wisconsin and found to be successful. When the flat, straight rod swept over the vegetation, the nesting bird jumps out in time to permit the farmer to swing clear and leave a small uncut piece around the nest.

With most birds now occupied with family raising, the mowing machine is far from being the most dangerous menace, however. This is the season of the year when dogs can do a lot of damage.

The tournament in which tenants on several floors of the Merchandise Mart were scheduled to meet yesterday at the Vernon Golf club was indefinitely postponed.

Cornell, Michigan Elevens Meet in '33 After 17 Years

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 8.—[Special.]—After a lapse of seventeen years, Cornell university and the University of Michigan will resume football relations next year, it was announced today.

Crisler Leads Alumni Against Maroons Today

H. O. [Fritz] Crisler, Princeton football coach, and an assorted group of coaches, lawyers and professors who once played baseball on the Midway, will take the field today against the University of Chicago squad in the annual varsity-alumni game on Greenwood field. The match will precede the annual dinner for winners of the "C" which will bring 350 former Maroon athletes together at the invitation of Coach Stagg.

Harold G. Moulton, noted economist who is president of the Brookings institute in Washington, will be in the alumni outfield, along with Prof. Frederick Merrifield, an ex-captain whose son won his numeral this year.

Paul Hinkle, Butler coach; Fred Walker coach at Lindblom; Dr. A. H. Rudolph; Elidor Libonati; John Boyle; Ted Curtis, and Skee Sauer will join a group of more recent graduates which includes Kyle Anderson, Bill Macklind, Marshall Fish, Will Urban and Art Cahill for the alumni.

J. P. Sullivan, '05, whose brother pitched for the White Sox; Walker a former Giant pitcher; Coach Page, Curtis and Mackland are to pitch for the alumni.

Other results:

Scotty Sylvano beat George Holden [3].
Joe Luppino beat Phil Morris [3].
Frank May beat Bud Ginter [3].
Charles Neige beat Walter Jerz [3].

Yankee Tracks Beautiful, but 'Ard to Win On

"Bli'me your tracks are beautiful, but they are not as large as our'n and your bloomin' races are tough to win."

That was what Tommy Woodcock, the Australian who trained and developed the ill-fated but world famous Phar Lap, said when he arrived at Washington Park yesterday.

He brought a division of the Willis Sharpe Kilmer horses here from Belmont Park, including the American Derby candidate Sunmelus and the speedy 2 year olds, Dark Conquest and Dark Winter.

So far Woodcock hasn't saddled a winner for Kilmer, with whom he signed soon after Phar Lap's death in April.

Walter J. Salmon's Mad Pursuit and W. R. Coe's Osculator reached the American Derby scene at Washington Park yesterday. Both came from New York for a 10 day prep before filling their Derby engagement.

Jockey Steve O'Donnell is nursing a broken left elbow, sustained when one of Val Crane's Wildrose Farm stable's horses fell with him during an exercise gallop. It is likely he will be out of the saddle for two months.

Remember way back in 1930 when so many folks lost their money when High Foot failed to accomplish anything in the Kentucky Derby? He is a 5 year old now and is going to attempt a comeback, having been put in training at Washington Park yesterday. He is owned by Dick and Pat Nash of Chicago.

A lot of Chicago horses were in action at Washington Park yesterday, but Ben Rosenheim was the only Chicago owner able to gather in a purse. His Portmanteau was the 6 furlong fourth race, with Gracious Gift and Martie Flynn second and third. Portmanteau performed like he has regained his very best racing form.

Economic, the Ohio Derby winner, made his first appearance on the Washington Park course during the training hour yesterday. Hard held he breezed six furlongs in 1:19. He's a more robust looking horse than when he finished second to Burgoo King in the Kentucky Derby.

CARDS TURN 20 HITS INTO 15 TO 8 WIN OVER BRAVES

Pound 4 Boston Pitchers in 3 Hour Game.

Boston, Mass., June 8.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals today came out of their batting slump and captured the series opener by pounding four Boston pitchers for 20 hits and a 15-8 victory in a game that lasted almost three hours. The defeat pushed the Braves into second place in the league standing.

Socks Seibold started on the mound for the tribe and his mates gave him a four run lead in the first inning, all of the runs coming in after two were out. The world champions, however, tied the score in the third and in the fifth blasted four Boston pitchers for seven more tallies. They added to their lead in each of the last three frames.

PHILLIES, 11; PIRATES, 10.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 8.—(AP)—The Phillies won a free swinging contest from the Pittsburgh Pirates, 11 to 10, today by putting on a four run rally in the eighth inning. The Pirates made a counter attack in the ninth when Traynor and Vaughan walked and Dave Barbee hit a home run over the center field screen. The tying run was on second base when Ray Benge retired Dugas, pinch hitter, for the last out.

BROWNS POUND 3 PITCHERS; BEAT RED SOX, 11 TO 4

St. Louis, Mo., June 8.—(AP)—Three Boston pitchers each allowed six safeties as the St. Louis Browns smashed out an 11 to 4 victory over the Red Sox today. Jolley knocked out a homer in the third with the bases clear, but Goslin's circuit drive in the same inning scored two ahead of him. Gray, who relieved Hebert in the second, held the Red Sox to six hits the rest of the game.

Cops Hunt All Day, but Can't Run Down Par

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

More than 150 policemen—captains, lieutenants, desk sergeants, traffic cops, and patrolmen—assembled at the first tee of the Olympic Golf and Country club yesterday morning for the department's second annual hunt for the notorious Par, alias 71.

At a late hour last night representatives from headquarters indicated that while the ringleader himself had not been arrested, several of his gang were in custody. One of these, known as 73, had been captured by three of the posse. They were Officers J. M. Zamecnik and Rudy Bodecker of the Sheffield avenue station and young Gene Kissane Jr., whose father works out of the 29th district. They shared low gross honors among them, Zamecnik winning first prize after matching cards with Bodecker, and Kissane taking low gross for guests.

They were commended by Mayor Cermak at a dinner following the tournament.

Paletti Sets Course Record.

An amateur detective named Joe Paletti, who happens to be the professional at Olympic, turned in the best job of the day, however. Joe joined the gendarmes in their search for Par and wound up by shooting a 67 for a new course record, one stroke better than the figure he set last fall. Joe's card:

Out	442	443	336—33

William Roemisch and Lee Creagan tied for first low net among the officers, while the guest prize went to Si Mayer, former secretary of the department.

Senators Choose Prof. Weaver to Halt Sox Today

Prof. Monte Weaver will go after his ninth victory in the semi-final between the Sox and Senators this afternoon. Tommy Thomas may endeavor to take care of the Sox end.

Selph, who has been slipping at third, was moved to second to make room at third for Willie Sullivan, the commuting collegian. Appling, who had a great day at second in the Senator opener, warmed the bench. Carey and Willie did right well at fielding.

Bob Burke trams to his home in Joliet evenings while the Senators are in Chicago. Tommy Thomas has a similar arrangement when the Sox are in Washington, Tommy's home in Baltimore being his focal point.

Bob Poser, former University of Wisconsin athlete who has been touring with the Sox this season, yesterday was sent to Toronto on option.

Yesterday was a tough day for both starting pitchers. Burke drew a loss for a four hit performance in 8⅔ innings, in which no runs were made while he was on the scene. On the other hand, Lyons, who pitched a swell game and did not leave under stress, got no credit because he gave way to a pinch batter in the last of the eighth.

Cubs Conquer Dodgers, 7-5, in 14 Innings

a wind blown fly over Moore's head and was on third by the time it was returned from the outlying precincts. With the infield drawn in Finn singled past Herman and Taylor scored. O'Doul grounded into a forceout and this brought up Mr. Wilson, who was still red necked about his three strikeouts yesterday. Hack boosted a fly to Stephenson and the inning closed with Cuccinello doing the same thing.

Sukeforth's failure to touch the plate when trying to score was the only thing that prevented the Dodgers from adding to their lead in the second. With one out Sukeforth lined to center and the ball took a trick hop in front of Moore, thus converting a single into a triple. Kelly flied to Moore and Sukeforth broke for the plate, but in his haste missed his target; so Hemsley, after taking Moore's throw, simply walked over and tagged him.

Cubs Get Going in Fourth.

When the Cubs started their fourth they could boast of only two hits. English opened by singling to right for his second safety. He was forced on Hornsby's hopper to Finn, after which Stephenson walked. Hemsley sent a low drive over third and O'Doul reached for it with his bare hand, but the ball hopped merrily along on its way to the fence. Hornsby and Stephenson scored and Hemsley went to second, but was credited only with a single. Hartnett fanned and Jurges hoisted to Taylor.

The chance Wilson has been waiting for finally blossomed in the home fourth. Bush served up a fast ball to suit Hack's fancy and he slapped it beyond Moore's reach for a double. Then Hack enjoyed an easy jog to the plate on Cuccinello's homer, which hit the short right field screen and bounced back on to the field. The screen isn't there to prevent cheap homers, but merely to reduce the possibilities of unsuspecting pedestrians being bumped on the head.

Surprise for Gabby.

Bush lost some more ground in the fifth, but it might have been avoided if Hartnett hadn't suffered a temporary lapse at first base. Clark started the inning by singling and going to second on a wild pitch. He headed for third on another wide pitch, but Hemsley recovered the ball and threw him out. Taylor walked and went to third on Finn's single to right. Hartnett put on a beautiful reaching stop of a hard grounder by O'Doul, but was so surprised to find the ball in his glove that he couldn't throw to the plate until after Taylor had scored. Bush got out of this on flies to center by Wilson and Cuccinello.

The sixth furnished a true indication of just how badly Bush was misbehaving as a pitcher. Seven men faced him, but only one scored and only one of the seven hit safely. This hodge podge of action began when Slade was punctured by a pitched ball. He stole second after Sukeforth had popped up on a bunt. Kelly walked and Clark grounded to Hartnett. Slade scored on Taylor's hit to short. Then Bush filled the bases by hitting Finn, but O'Doul did nothing.

Now for the Big Rally.

Clark plunked Hornsby on the seat of the trousers to start the eighth and that's all the Cubs needed to get started on their tying three run rally. Stephenson sent the manager tearing around to the plate on a double to right center. Hemsley and Hartnett went out, but Jurges doubled to left, Stephenson scoring. Zack Taylor trotted in to bat for Smith and singled over third, Jurges bringing in the tying run. Moore then notched a single on a pop behind short, putting Zack on third, but Quinn relieved Clark and stopped the fun on Herman's roller to Cuccinello.

the extent of the smacking off Burke. Each pitcher walked one batsman and each pitcher had registered one strikeout.

Despite this unusual balance the Sox had men on third and second with one out in the third, but curled up under the bearing down of Burke. Kress opened the third with a double to right and held second while Berry beat out a single to deep short. The runners moved up on Lyons' sacrifice. Then Funk popped a little fly to Rice in short left and Sullivan rolled to Bluege.

Senators Go to Work.

Tiring of the equality of things, Manager Johnson flashed the production sign to his men in the sixth. Rice walked with one down and went to third on West's single to right. Reynolds singled to right, scoring Rice and putting West on third. Carl then stole second. Judge dropped a single in short left, West scoring and Reynolds taking third. Kerr grounded out to Blue and Reynolds was doubled, Blue to Berry, trying to score.

The Senators developed no other scoring threats.

ROSENBLOOM HAS EASY TIME WITH LARRY JOHNSON

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 8.—(AP)—A shivering crowd tonight watched Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion of the world, cuff his way to a decision over Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro, in 10 rounds. Johnson was badly cut and tired at the finish. Rosenbloom weighed 178; Johnson, 181¾.

Charley Grimm's Hand Injured, but He'll Play Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 8.—It took 25 minutes to run off the first inning of today's Cubs-Brooklyn game and the 7,000 fans bellowed lustily about the delay. Most of it was caused by Grimm letting his mates take turns yanking at his right hand, injured when O'Doul jammed into him at first base. They tried to pull out the pain, but it couldn't be done, so Charley decided to retire. As soon as he reached the club house the dislocation was corrected. He expects to play tomorrow.

Kiki Cuyler made his first appearance since he suffered a broken left foot in the game of April 24. He batted for Bush in the seventh and struck out. It was apparent that he was afraid to take a healthy cut at the ball.

While running to first in the seventh inning, Slade, who has been doing the Brooklyn shortstopping, pulled a charley horse and was forced to retire. Wright, the ex-Pirate star who has slipped considerably, filled the vacancy.

The Cubs gave the bugs a big scare in the ninth by filling the bases. English singled, Hornsby popped up, and a wild pitch moved English to second. Stephenson then was passed intentionally. Kelly flagged Hemlsey's fly. Hartnett also was passed purposely and Jurges then tapped to Cuccinello.

Pat Malone will make his weekly appearance tomorrow in the third of the set with the Dodgers. Max Carey, the Brooklyn chief, thinks he'll depend on Van Lingle Mungo, the 20 year old right hander, who recently won four games in ten days.

Tilden Blazes in Old Form to Beat Kozeluh

Bill Tilden disposed of Karel Kozeluh in straight sets, 6-3, 6-2, in the second and final match of the two day exhibition at Northwestern university yesterday.

Apparently Tilden set out to prove that he was still the Tilden of his amateur days, for his game bristled with brilliant returns and deadly smashes. His performance was quite the opposite of the previous day when he lost to Nusslein in three sets.

Kozeluh captured the opening game of the match, but from that point on he never had a chance against the terrific pace his American opponent maintained. Tilden won the next three games, due principally to his accurate placements which had Kozeluh darting from one side of the court to the other in an effort to return. Kozeluh won two out of the next three games but Tilden captured two in a row to win the set.

In the opening game of the final set Tilden ran the count to 40 love, but Kozeluh rallied to win five points in a row to take the game. They divided the next two games and then Tilden swept Kozeluh from the court with a display of brilliant tennis in which he won five straight games to terminate the match.

YANKEES DEFEAT TIGERS, 5 TO 4; RUTH HITS 17TH

Gehrig's 12th Home Run Wins Battle.

Detroit, Mich., June 8.—(AP)—The Yankees' Big Three, Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, and Vernon Gomez, got together today to take a close game from the Detroit Tigers, 5 to 4. Ruth and Gehrig drove in all the New York runs, the Babe hitting his 17th homer in the first inning and Lou providing the winning runs with his 12th four bagger in the seventh. Gomez was in trouble only through wildness. He yielded five hits and fanned 13, but gave nine walks. Billy Rogell hit a homer in the fifth after two men had walked, to keep Detroit in the running.

Are Aids to Efficiency, Engineer States.

BY AL CHASE.

Air conditioning and quiet are factors which make for higher rentals, greater comfort, and better health in the modern office building, according to Samuel G. Neiler of Neiler, Rich & Co., Chicago consulting engineers, who spoke yesterday at the Drake hotel before the delegates to the twenty-fifth annual convention of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers. His subject was "Air Conditioning."

"What is uppermost in your minds, and what I think you are searching for, is to create a condition of human comfort for occupants of office buildings that space may be more desirable," said Mr. Neiler, "competition lessened and sales resistance minimized, and this is entirely aside from desirable building location and appointments or the character of service rendered tenants.

"A building provided with an effective ventilating system which is operated is more desirable to tenants than one not so equipped, and one where at least certain portions are air conditioned should and will rent more readily than where ventilated only.

Brings Higher Rents.

"To my mind, where space desirability is the controlling factor, there appears to be a decided relation existing between noise abatement and air conditioning, a relationship which results in bringing about a greater value to rentable area, for at least the lower floors of an office building, say up to and including the tenth story.

"Noise is nerve racking to the majority of people, although some of us believe we are used to it and can carry on our work regardless. The fact remains, however, that modern office buildings are being constructed with sound deadening partitions and ceilings are being treated with sound absorbent material. Noiseless typewriters are being used in increasing numbers.

"It is now generally accepted among those acquainted with the subject that the elimination of noise brings about an economic saving due to increased efficiency of the individual and adds to his comfort and health, all of which is likewise claimed for complete air conditioning, or humidity control.

Suggests Double Windows.

"For the first ten stories of office space I believe double windows should be used. Thus, with sound deadening partitions and ceilings coupled with treated atmosphere, an exceptionally livable, workable space can be offered to tenants where quietness and bodily comfort will result in a decidedly increased efficiency of the office occupants. In fact, more work will be turned out and with less effort than without double windows and humidity control.

"If you will give this some serious consideration I know you'll agree with me that the first ten floors of your buildings will be as desirable as those higher up and will command a larger rental than if not handled as suggested."

Mr. Neiler told of the growth of air conditioning and listed some modern examples of it in this country. A building is going ahead in St. Louis in which all of the thirteen floors will be entirely air treated, several floors to be occupied by a public utility company and the balance for rentable offices.

Cool Texas Offices.

The Milam office building in San Antonio, Tex., cools and dehumidifies air for all store space and 750 offices. The Los Angeles Stock Exchange building is completely air conditioned.

The new home office building of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, now under construction, to house 8,000 employés, will be provided with treated air throughout thirty-two stories, four of which are below street level. This will be the first New York office building to be entirely air conditioned.

The Northern Trust Company in Chicago, a six story building, is entirely air conditioned. Several floors of the Chicago Title and Trust Company building are air treated.

GRAIN BOARD STAGES FIGHT IN WASHINGTON

Lawyers Clash Over Policies.

Washington, D. C., June 8.—(AP)—Each charging the other with trying to put it "out of business," the Chicago Board of Trade and the Farmers' National Grain corporation argued today before a federal commission.

Further testimony on the grain corporation's financial condition will be submitted tomorrow morning, although Arthur F. Lindley, president of the board's clearing house, declared that question was not considered in denying it membership.

Lindley sought to absolve the Board of Trade of responsibility by testifying the directors of the clearing corporation had on their own authority unanimously voted in a twenty minute session to deny the coöperative clearing privileges. The decision, he said, was based entirely on amended rules of the clearing house which since 1929 have denied membership to corporations.

Recalls Updike Grain Case.

The Farmers' National petitioned for such rights on April 11, 1932, after the Board of Trade had revoked, effective June 11, the membership of the Updike Grain company, through which the Coöperative had obtained clearing house connections.

The Famers' National still is represented on the Board of Trade by J. M. Chilton and George S. Milnor, its general manager, and its counsel insisted that by virtue of membership by those two executives, the coöperative is entitled to all the rights and privileges of the board regardless of the clearing house rule.

That position as taken by Carl Meyer, attorney for the coöperative, brought from Weymouth Kirkland, board of trade counsel, the charge that the Farmers' National was trying to "put the Chicago grain exchange out of business."

Meyer denied that, replying the board had boasted it would put the cooperative out of business. He admonished Kirkland that the board would work its own ruin if it attempted to discriminate against cooperatives "because it didn't like them."

Meyer added his evidence would prove the Farmers' National had complied with all the requirements of the grain futures administration act and that if the federal commission found it qualified financially, the clearing house would have to accept its membership or the Board of Trade be ordered closed as a contract market, for showing such discrimination.

Farm Board as Santa Claus.

At the mention of finances Kirkland shouted the commission would find the coöperative owed the farm board $16,000,000 which he challenged it to pay if the "government suddenly decided to quit being your Santa Claus."

Meyer sought to get into the evidence an auditor's report on the fiscal condition of the Farmers' National together with subsequent plans for refunding the farm board loan.

Kirkland seized on that opportunity again to press for investigation of the coöperative's accounts. He would not agree to the auditor's report as an exhibit unless he was given access to the books or allowed to cross-examine the auditor.

The Farmers' National has refused to reveal its business secrets to the Board of Trade, but Meyer indicated he might be willing by Thursday morning to call the auditor if the commission desired that he do so.

MIDDLE WEST CO. UNITS DECLARE PFD. DIVIDENDS

Regular dividends has been authorized on the preferred stocks of seven units of the Middle West Utilities company, according to announcement yesterday.

Regular disbursements on the 6 per cent cumulative preferred, the $6 junior preferred and the 7 per cent cumulative preferred were voted by the directors of the Michigan Public Service company.

Other units declaring the usual payments on the senior stocks were Southwestern Gas and Electric, Southwestern Light and Power, West Texas Utilities, and the Michigan Electric Power company. All the dividends voted are payable July 1 to stock of record June 15.

NEW YORK CITY TO PAY ENTIRE OUTSTANDING SUM OF $148,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 8.—New York City will pay off on Thursday the entire outstanding amount of the $148,000,000 borrowed piecemeal since January under the $151,000,000 revolving credit arranged by a city-wide group of banks. Thus, with the slate wiped clean, the city may again borrow as needed during the remainder of 1932 up to the full amount of the credit it requires.

The repayment comes from the taxes for the first half of 1932.

Controller Berry is expected to announce tomorrow plans for the sale of an additional issue of one-year tax notes and special revenue bonds to the Chase National bank and the National City bank under a tentative arrangement for a total of $25,000,000 made in April.

Fight Court's Rule on Bank Stockholders

BY SCRUTATOR.

The Illinois Supreme court yesterday granted representatives of seven Chicago law firms permission to file suggestions in connection with the petition for rehearing the case of Charles Sanders and others against the Merchants State bank of Centralia and certain former stockholders.

The decision of the court in this case was handed down at the April term. It vitally affects state banks, stockholders, and former stockholders of such institutions and heirs of former stockholders.

Has Wide Results.

If stock transfers were made during the period when the bank was open, the court held, each successive stockholder can be held liable up to the par value of his shares for the debts accruing against the bank during the period he held the stock. The bulk of such debts would, of course, be deposits unpaid at the time the bank closed.

It was also held that the statute of limitations doesn't begin to operate until the bank closes and, furthermore, that the distributees of a man's estate can be held liable for assessment on state bank stock that the dead man held years before, even though the estate has been closed. Estates that have been thought to be settled years before can thus be unsettled.

A Robert Barron, who died in 1927, had for many years owned stock in the Merchants State bank of Centralia. About two years prior to his death he had sold this stock. The bank continued to function for three years after Barron's death, closing in 1930.

The Supreme court held Barron's widow liable for assessment on the stock that her husband had once held.

New Owners' Liability.

One important effect of this decision has been that depositors can collect more than the par value of the stock if stock has been transferred.

For instance, if Smith held one share of stock from 1910 to 1920 he might be held for debts incurred during that period up to the amount of $100 per share, if that is the par value of the stock. If, after he transferred his stock in 1920, the same share was transferred successively to three different persons prior to the closing of the bank in 1931 each of these persons would likewise be liable to the extent of $100 for all debts incurred during the time they held the stock, respectively. Therefore, the liability on this one share of stock would not be $100 but $400. If there had been numerous transfers the liability might amount to much more.

The decision applies only to state banks. The law under which national banks operate frees from liability former stockholders who disposed of their holdings prior to sixty days before the closing of the bank.

The petition for rehearing has been filed by J. L. McLaughlin, Wilson & Wilson, and W. Gordon Murphey, attorneys for the appellants. None of the appellants held stock in the bank at the time it closed. One of them never had held stock, being merely the widow of a former stockholder.

The suggestions which the court permitted to be filed yesterday were submitted by Scott, MacLeish & Falk; Taylor, Miller, Busch & Boyden; Thomas G. Deering; Thomas V. O'Donnell; Marion B. Stahl; Butler, Pope, Ballard & Elting, and Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautmann, Levinson & Morse.

Lawyers Give Reasons.

The reason for their interest in the case is explained as follows in their motion:

"The question of the liability of bank stockholders who have transferred their stock before the failure of the bank is of great importance to many thousands of stockholders who are directly involved in the many equity suits now pending in the courts of this state for the purpose of enforcing liabilities of stockholders of closed Illinois banks.

"Of equal importance is the question of the liability of the distributees of an estate where the decedent was the owner of bank stock. It is certain that several hundreds of thousands of estates have been closed in Illinois during the last twenty years, a large number of which have involved the ownership of bank stock at some time by the respective decedents.

"The question is vitally important to many thousands who have enjoyed the fruits of distribution peaceably and uninterruptedly for years."

NEW OIL PARLEY LIKELY IN PARIS; REPORT IN EAST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 8.—Arrangements are being completed for another world parley for stabilization of foreign oil export markets. That session probably will start either in Paris or London late this month or early in July, according to information obtained today.

The news was not particularly surprising to the industry at large for the reason that while Charles E. Arnott and delegates from soviet Russia to the recent meetings here announced that the conferences had failed of agreement all subsequent statements have carried an optimistic tone because they have indicated that a good deal of progress was made at the American meetings.

Direct representation for Rumanian oil producers will be one of the developments in the present arrangements for further conferences abroad, and while an immediate agreement is not expected to be reached it is hoped in local oil circles that further progress toward that end will be made.

Step Up Gas Price.

Tulsa, Okla., June 8.—(AP)—Gasoline prices stepped up another ¼ cent a gallon today as jobbers continued to buy tremendous quantities before the 1 cent per gallon federal tax becomes effective June 21. Only a few refiners were quoting as low as 4⅝ cents as bottom price. The top grade was selling around 5⅛ cents per gallon.

LEADERS STUDY WAYS TO BETTER RAIL POSITION

Preliminary Meeting in New York.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 8.—Preliminary drafts of a statement outlining steps which might be taken both within and without the railroad industry to improve its position received consideration at a meeting of a subcommittee of the Association of Railway Executives here today.

The subcommittee is headed by R. H. Aishton, chairman of the association, who presided at the meeting. Other members of the subcommittee who attended were Hale Holden, chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific company; J. J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, and J. E. Gorman, president of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad.

The next step will be for the subcommittee to submit a draft of its proposed outline of policy to the advisory committee of the association and then for the committee to report to the organization as a whole. These moves may be completed within the month, it was said.

Hold Informal Session.

"An informal conference was held at the American Railway association offices today at which were present Hale Holden, J. J. Pelly, J. E. Gorman, and R. H. Aishton," said Mr. Aishton in formal statement issued after the meeting. The American Railway association includes in its membership the membership of the Association of Railway Executives, the former organization occupying its time chiefly with technical problems.

"The discussion covered the railroad situation not only as to the effect of the depression common to all industries," continued Mr. Aishton, "but also as to methods of meeting competition with various agencies of transportation now unregulated together with methods of bringing about further economies in the operation of the railroads, either by addition, research, by coöperative action, coördination, or by the combination of these factors. These matters are all a subject of constant study by the railways.

General Meeting Later.

"The conference today was for the purpose of giving consideration to the many suggestions received from widely spread source. No conclusions were reached and no definite statement can be made at this time as to any further conferences. The situation necessarily will have to be discussed at a general meeting of the railroads at a date to be later determined."

One suggestion put before the subcommittee was to enlarge the scope of the American Railway association so that it can devise improvements not only in rolling stock, machinery, and operating methods, but also in accounting and traffic departments. Specific means for equalizing regulation as between railways on the one hand and trucks and omnibuses on the other were also considered by the subcommittee. It is the aim of the committee members later to appeal to the public for support in meeting the problems that now confront the railroads.

Would Reduce Charges.

Officials of the St. Louis-San Francisco railway departed today for Washington to put before the interstate commerce commission several alternative methods for reducing the fixed charges of the road. They are taking this action in conformity with a requirement attached to a recent loan to the road from the Reconstruction Finance corporation calling on the management to devise some such method by July 1.

The party will comprise E. N. Brown, chairman of the railroad; Robert T. Swaine, general counsel, and C. W. Michel, vice president and assistant to the president. These officials, with J. M. M. Kurn, president of the line, concluded yesterday a series of conferences on the reformation of the company's capital structure with representatives of Speyer & Co., J. & W. Seligman & Co., the Guaranty company, Dillon, Read & Co., and the Chase Securities corporation, the latter an affiliate of the Chase National bank.

Bankers May Offer Plan.

It has been reported that the interested bankers have suggested lowering the road's fixed charges by substituting preferred stock or income bonds for some of the $296,000,000 of fixed interest bonds now outstanding. However, as the interstate commerce commission has expressed disapproval of the use of income bonds in reorganizations, it is understood the Frisco management has not acceded to this suggestion.

These and other differences of opinion resulted in the decision to compromise by submitting all capital revision methods discussed to the judgment of the commission.

Dividend Cut Soon Follows Pay Lowering

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 8.—White Rock Mineral Springs company today halved its common dividend by declaring 50 cents quarterly and at the same time halved the dividend paid on the second preferred by declaring a quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share.

Previously the company had been paying $4 annually on the common and $20 annually on the second preferred. The company declared the usual quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the first preferred stock.

R. C. Harrison, president, stated the company had reduced salaries and wages 10 per cent and that, in regard to the government tax of 2 cents a gallon on mineral spring water recently enacted, it would amount to between $30,000 and $35,000 a year for White Rock, of which about $15,000 would apply for the remainder of this year. Mr. Harrison said the cut in salaries and wages would just about balance the government tax, which the company plans to absorb itself and not pass on to the consumer.

Officers and directors of the company were reëlected at the annual meeting.

Extra Bank Dividend.

Directors of Fifth Avenue bank declared an extra dividend of $20 a share and the regular quarterly dividend of $6 a share. At this time last year an extra $35 a share was paid.

Directors of Anchor Cap corporation declared a dividend of 30 cents a share on the common. Previously 60 cents a share quarterly was paid. A statement by the company said: "We are doing more business now than a year ago, but prices and profit are lower. Last year we added more than 1,200 new customers and failed to receive repeat orders from only 180 customers. We are now running 48 hours a week, which means some overtime, and are employing 633 workers."

Youngstown Sheet and Tube company omitted the quarterly $1.37½ a share dividend due at this time on the preferred stock. This is the first time payment has been omitted on the preferred stock since the initial dividend was paid nearly thirty years ago. The directors announce that while the company is in excellent financial condition it is felt that cash should be conserved. No common dividend has been paid for a year.

United Light Omits Dividend.

United Light and Power company omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.50 on its $6 cumulative preferred due at this time, though the board stated that earnings continued substantially in excess of dividend requirements, the action being taken to conserve cash and improve the company's current position.

Directors of Bickford's, Inc., declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the common, placing the issue on a $1 annual basis, compared with $1.20 previously. A decision to conserve cash was given as the reason for the change in spite of the fact that earnings are in excess of the former quarterly dividend rate.

Federated Department Stores declared a dividend of 15 cents a share, compared with 20 cents in the preceding quarter and 25 cents a share in the two previous quarters.

Braker Bros. corporation omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.62½ on the 6½ per cent preferred stock due at this time.

The Boston Personal Property Trust declared a quarterly dividend of 20 cents, placing the issue on an 80 cent annual basis, against $1 previously.

Pacific Finance Corporation.

The Pacific Finance corporation declared a quarterly dividend of 5 cents a share on its common, reducing the annual rate to 20 cents from 88 cents.

F. N. Burt company of Toronto declared a quarterly dividend of 60 cents on the common stock, placing the issue on a $2.40 annual basis, against $3 previously, and the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred.

Marlin-Rockwell company declared a special distribution from surplus of 25 cents a share on the common. On April 1 a similar payment was made prior to which the stock was on a $2 annual basis.

Eastern Equities corporation [formerly American Glue company], declared a further dividend in liquidation of $2, payable June 14 to stock of record June 10. This makes a total of $1.33 a share in cash and one-half share of Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing company stock distributed to common stock holders.

Sales of 23 Chain Systems Down 14 Per Cent in May

The first 23 chain store systems and mail order companies to report for May had aggregate sales of $98,652,776, a decrease of 13.71 per cent from the total of $115,494,764 reported for the same month last year.

NEW HAVEN ROAD TO ASK U. S. LOAN TO REFUND ITS DEBT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 8.—Although the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company has made some progress in reducing bank loans this year and expects gradually to cut this indebtedness, the management already is considering plans and probably will apply to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan later in the year for refunding a part of the floating debt.

In connection with such operations the Finance corporation and the interstate commerce commission have in several instances adopted a policy of providing sufficient funds to liquidate 50 per cent of the carriers' bank loans with the provision that the bankers carry the balance. In view of this policy it is expected that the New Haven will secure from $7,000,000 to $8,000,000 from the governmental credit body for taking care of its bank loans.

In 1930 the company expended some $30,000,000 in the retirement of funded debt and has since made no effort to reimburse the treasury for these expenditures. Capitalization of these expenditures would provide the road for such collateral as might be required.

WARNER BROS. REPORT LOSS FOR 6 MONTHS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 8.—The net loss of Warner Brothers' Pictures, Inc., and its subsidiaries for the six months ended on Feb. 27 was $2,76.,184 after all charges, including interest and depreciation, and after allowing for a profit of $2,498,515 arising from the retirement of debentures and subsidiaries' funded indebtedness.

No direct comparison is available, but, taking the reports of the company for the thirteen week periods ended on Nov. 29, 1930, and Feb. 28, 1931, the net aggregate profit, subject in the former period to the realization of the face value of trade accounts receivable, less reserves, and the cost of inventories, less reserves, of the radio and record division, amounted to $1,076,355. This was equivalent, after allowing for half the annual dividend requirements on 103,107 shares of preferred stock, to 23 cents a share on 3,767,593 common shares.

The balance sheet of the company shows current assets of $20,329,463 and current liabilities of $12,590,106. Included in current assets are $4,047,253 cash, $1,565,157 of receivable items, $72,754,212 of inventories, and $1,017,190 of rights in scenarios unproduced, less reserves. The current liabilities include $1,040,000 of secured notes payable and $266,525 of unsecured notes payable, $4,951,026 of accounts payable, and $4,182,302 of sundry accruals.

In addition to its current liabilities the company has maturities of mortgages and other bonds aggregating $3,726,584 to be met within a year from the date of the report.

Dollar Gains in Strength After Decline

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 8.—After having weakened again during the early part of the day as a result of the passage of the Garner relief measure by the house of representatives, the dollar resumed its recovery this afternoon.

At the close of trading the French franc was below the export gold point and only the exchanges of Holland and Switzerland continued to be quoted at prices which made gold exports to those countries profitable. In the case of Holland the margin of profit on shipments had almost vanished.

Retain Part of Gain.

Sterling, the mark, and the Swiss franc retained a portion of their early gains and finished the day higher in terms of the dollar than they had been on Tuesday. Sterling was up ¼ cent to $3.67⅛, marks closed at 23.76 cents, up 4 points, and sold at one time at 23.81 cents; Swiss francs showed a net gain of 1¼ points to 19.58¼ cents.

The French franc was down ⅛ point on the day, to 3.94½c, which was slightly under the gold export point, although earlier in the day it had sold at 3.94⅞c, a gain of ¼ point over the previous close. Guilders, at 40.53½c, were off 1 point on the day and down 2½ points from the day's high. Belgas lost 2 points, to 13.96c, which is about 4 points under the gold export quotation.

Loss of $18,219,100.

Gold transactions reported by the federal reserve bank of New York resulted in a net loss of $18,219,100 to the gold stocks of the country. Exports amounted to $30,171,500, but there was a decrease of $11,952,400 in earmarked gold. The shipments abroad comprise $17,078,700 to France, $7,197,400 to Switzerland, $3,493,200 to Belgium, $2,352,200 to Holland, and $50,000 to England. No imports were reported.

Improve in Paris.

PARIS, June 8.—(AP)—Dollars again improved in the market here today, going to 25.34 in response to the action of the American congress in passing finance bills which were regarded as tending to restore confidence. Agence Economique et Financiere expressed the opinion that there would be a resultant slowing down in dollar withdrawals.

HOLDS RECOVERY OF WORLD RESTS ON SILVER ACTION

Los Angeles, Cal., June 8.—(AP)—A statement that economic recovery hinges upon what the United States is willing to do to rehabilitate the value of silver was made today at the American Institute of Banking convention by J. G. Ridland, secretary-treasurer of the Imperial bank of India.

Ridland, who has completed an eight months' tour of the world, was an unexpected guest at the convention. He said abandonment of the gold standard by England and other countries has strangled America's foreign trade. He said the difference in exchange added 50 per cent to the cost of United States products in India.

"Suppose the price of silver was raised." Ridland continued. "It would immediately increase the wealth of all countries on the silver standard and tend to make it possible for them to purchase American made goods. I believe silver should be linked with gold in some way to stabilize the value of the dollar."

Ridland and other bankers agreed the United States would never desert the gold standard, declaring it to be the best for the world.

H. T. PARSON RESIGNS AS WOOLWORTH CO.'S CHIEF; STILL DIRECTOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 8.—Hubert T. Parson, who in his forty years' service with F. W. Woolworth & Co. saw the 5 and 10 cent store chain grow from fourteen scattered units along the Atlantic seaboard to 2,430 in five countries, today resigned as president of that organization due to reaching the age limit—sixty years.

He was succeeded by Byron D. Miller, formerly vice president and treasurer. While Mr. Parson no longer will be the executive head of the chain store, he will remain as a director.

The only other change incident to his resignation was the election of A. L. Cornwell, a director, to the post formerly occupied by Mr. Miller. C. S. Woolworth, brother of the founder of the chain, will remain as chairman of the board.

It may be said that Mr. Parson grew up with the company, for at the age of twenty he came to it as a bookkeeper and advanced steadily until thirteen years ago he was chosen to succeed Frank W. Woolworth, who died.

SECURITY LOANS DROP 6 TIMES AS MUCH AS IN 1921

New York, June 8.—(AP)—The shrinkage of security loans since borrowings reached their peak in September, 1929, has been nearly six times as large, in dollars, as was the decline during the 1921 depression.

Dow, Jones & Co. today pointed out that these loans had fallen $8,235,000,000 between Sept. 30, 1929, and May 31 of this year, or from $13,205,000,000 to $4,970,000,000, the recent total being 37.6 per cent of the high. A decade ago loans at their lowest ebb totaled $4,196,000,000, or 74.6 per cent of the $5,621,000,000 top attained during the preceding boom.

The decline in borrowings, however, has been less severe than the depreciation in stocks. Shares listed on the New York Stock exchange were valued at 18 per cent of their bull market highs on May 31—$16,141,000,000, against $39,668,000,000 at the end of August three years ago. The current aggregate of security loans is the smallest since September, 1922, when it was $4,812,000,000.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 8.—The stock market continued its decline today and at the close of a sluggish session it had given up all the minor gains made last week in its moments of optimism over the passage of the tax bill and the formation of the Bond Investing corporation. There were no newcomers to the buying side and the bored traders idled away the day waiting for brighter financial skies.

The decline took on added speed over yesterday, but there was no indication of a widespread or drastic break. The market merely continued its curling up process in order that it might mark time undisturbed while it watched with considerable distrust the growing activity in various relief measures in congress and treatment of the economy bill in the senate.

Transit Most Active.

Total sales for the day were about 900,000 shares, which indicated the absence of initiative rather than any major effort to unload. Brooklyn and Manhattan Transit continued to be the most active stock on the decline and at the close had shed another 3¾ points, bringing it down to 11⅝. American Telephone and Telegraph hit a new bear market minimum when it lost 3½ points to close at 82⅛.

United States Steel suffered a decline of 1⅝ points, General Motors was off almost a point, Radio corporation lost fractionally, and American Tobacco slid down 1⅝ points.

New York Central had a 1¼ point decline and other leading rail shares suffered smaller losses in light trading. The oils, including the Standard Oil issues, had fractional declines.

Auburn Auto Gains.

Auburn Automobile shares responded to news of increased production and the introduction of a cheaper priced model by gaining 1¼ points in a declining market. Baldwin Locomotive climbed ¼ of a point.

The market, in the opinion of its closest followers, is due for an immediate testing of the extreme lows established last week before the rally. With the list at its present critical point, the market has completed its full "technical correction." Tomorrow morning probably will see a test as to whether support buying may be expected.

There has been in recent days, according to observers, considerable switching operations, involving the sale of stocks and the purchase of bonds. The tendency to switch has been especially noticeable in the case of high grade railroad securities. The switching is based on the belief that bonds will recover faster than stocks and that the recovery will be more lasting.

Selling in Macy Shares.

One of the features of today's session, if the trading could be referred to as a feature, was the sudden burst of selling developing at the noon hour in R. H. Macy shares. The selling carried the department store stock down to a new low of 17¾. A slight recovery brought it back to 18⅛, for a net loss of 3¾ points on the day. The liquidation was attributed to nervousness over the outcome of the dividend meeting for next week. Merchandising stocks as a group followed Macy's downward during the afternoon.

The American dollar continued to climb abroad, and foreigners lost some of their fears regarding inflation in this country. Francs were quiet at just below the gold point, sterling was little changed, and Dutch and Belgian currency lost a bit of ground. Shipments of earmarked gold out of this country continued, however, despite the fact that there was virtually no profit at present rates of exchange.

PRICES OF WHEAT RECEDE; SELLING ORDERS INCREASE

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

July wheat dropped below 50c per bu on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday for the first time since last October, and touched 49⅛c for the new style, coming within ⅛c of the inside figure of the season made last October. With the exception of the latter period the price was the lowest since trading was inaugurated in 1870. In October last year the December delivery sold at 44⅝c, while in August cash wheat sold at 45c, compared with 50¼c paid for a car of No. 2 yellow hard yesterday. With the exception of a brief period last year prevailing prices are the lowest since 1853.

Liquidation was on in wheat futures again yesterday, with the September and December selling at a new low for the season. All advances ran into selling orders and at the inside prices showed a drop of 1⅝@1⅞c from the finish of Tuesday.

Stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down and while there was buying against bids and also short covering local brokers stressed the point that the short interest was relatively limited, and insufficient to cushion the effect of the drastic liquidation which has been under way of late.

New Tax Hits Market.

At the inside figure yesterday the old style July wheat delivery sold at 49⅝c, or 10⅞c under the high on May 27. The lack of support in evidence in the local market was apparent in Winnipeg, a message to Lamson Bros. & Co. from the Canadian city, asserted that the decline was due in part to the absence of a liberal short interest.

Wheat prices here have been on the down grade for seven straight days and the finish yesterday was at net losses of 1¼c, with old July closing at 50⅛@50⅜c, old September 52⅛@52⅝c, and December 55½c.

Since it became apparent that the new government tax of 5c per $100 valuation would be imposed on trading in grain futures there has been a steady run of selling orders, in large part representing liquidation by scattered longs. According to those who should be in a position to know the complaint filed by the Farmers' National Grain corporation under the grain futures act, seeking to have the department of agriculture remove its designation of Chicago as a contract market, has had a far reaching influence in shattering confidence.

Letters received by grain houses indicate that many operators have construed the complaint as likely to result in the closing of the grain exchange, not being familiar with the law. The latter provides that that the exchange can take the matter into court if it is not satisfied with the action of the grain futures committee and it might take many months before a ruling could be secured from the Supreme court.

Winnipeg Leads Decline.

Bearish sentiment has become quite pronounced in all the leading world wheat markets of late. There was selling yesterday credited to a leading local professional, and also by houses with eastern connections, the latter presumably representing liquidation of long grain. Winnipeg was affected by a sharp recession in prices in Liverpool and closed 1¼@1⅜c lower, with July at 54⅞c in Canadian funds, or about 47¼c after allowing for the discount on exchange. The latter price was about 3c under Chicago and 6¼c under July in Liverpool. The latter closed 2⅛@2¼c per bu lower.

Foreign demand for Manitoba wheat was less active, although sales of 400,000 to 500,000 bu were reported in all positions. Crop comments from the American and Canadian northwest were generally favorable, with further rains reported.

Corn Nears World's Level.

The drastic decline in wheat prices in the last few days has had relatively little effect on corn. The latter held within a range of ⅜@⅝c yesterday, with the close ⅛@⅜c lower. July finished at 28¾c, September 31⅛c, and December 32@32⅛c, the later leading the decline.

The prospect that a liberal export business might develop in corn has become a decided factor in the market. However, there have been no sales reported of late, although seaboard interests have been asking for offers for several days. It is asserted that American grain is close in line for sales abroad. Local handlers say cash corn can be laid down at either Montreal or New York at about 3⅛c over Chicago July, which would indicate a price of around 32¼c based on the closing price for the future yesterday. No. 2 yellow in Rotterdam was quoted at 36⅛c per bu.

Yesterday July corn in Chicago was around 1½c under the same delivery in Buenos Aires, representing the market in Argentina, which is the largest exporter of any country in the world. A number of operators feel that the American market has declined to around the world level.

Oats at New Low.

September oats sold at 19¾c yesterday, a new low for the season, but there was no material pressure, and a rally from the inside figure followed. The close was unchanged to ¼c higher, with July 20⅛@20¼c, September 20¾c, and December 22⅛c. Rye was unchanged to ¼c higher, with July 31¼c, September 34c, and December 37¼c.

NEWS OF THE CROPS

"Although rains were very helpful to winter wheat in parts of the Ohio valley, especially in the west and north, many areas still are dry," says the government weekly weather crop report. Moisture came too late to be of benefit to other places. In general, conditions vary from poor to very good. The crop is nearly ripe in some western valley areas.

"Corn made generally good growth in the central and western portions of the belt. In some places, however, cultivation was hindered, notably in parts of Iowa and Illinois, with considerable complaint of fields becoming weedy. In the eastern Ohio valley and in the middle Atlantic states the crop needs rain in most places. Good progress was reported from the south though limited areas need moisture."

Personal, Property, and Salary.

Commonwealth Customers—PAY LESS—for LOANS

$2.03 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

NO FEES. You get full amount of the loan and up to 25 months to repay. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.
